CHAMBER POLICY ON RURAL VISITS TO BE CONTINUED

The important work of the chamber of commerce in keeping in close contact with the granges of the county which has been carried on in the past will be continued, according to W. S. Bolger, president of the chamber.

The visits which have already been made to the granges have been a means of promoting a better spirit of confidence between the farmers of the county and the business men of Medford and granges and other organizations in Jackson county are appealing daily to the chamber of commerce for meetings with their respective organizations such as have been conducted elsewhere.

The chamber of commerce has received splendid cooperation from the Medford Gleemen and upon every appearance this stellar musical organization has made a distinct hit.
In cooperation with the Central Point and Table Rock granges, and Dr. E. W. Shockley, president of the Gleemen, the chamber of commerce has arranged for a visit to the Table Rock Grange, March 10, and to the Central Point Grange March 17th. Arrangements will soon be made for a visit to the Sama Valley Grange.
It is hoped that a large number of Medford citizens will prepare in advance to attend these meetings and will show the county districts that Medford is vitally interested in their problems especially in view of the fact that one of the major activities of the chamber of commerce this year is agricultural development.
The time for the Central Point Grange has been definitely fixed at 9:00 p. m. and announcement will be made later regarding the Table Rock Grange.

The meeting was closed with a "big feed" put on by those in charge.
Past commanders present were: Frank P. Farrell, Richard E. McEhose, E. C. Ferguson, Paul McDaniel, Wm. S. Bolger and Halbert S. Deuel. Visitors included Perry Ahorn, commander of the Ashland post, and J. Carlson of Sacramento.

INSIDE MOTIVES MADE PUBLIC IN CABINET NAMING

Reaction: Almost unknown here, except as a 1929 campaign friend of Hiram Johnson.
Labor Secretary Frances Perkins—Labor had no candidate who could surpass her. In Mr. Roosevelt's opinion, very capable and efficient, but likely to have a hard time because of bitter resentment among union labor officials (Mrs. Roosevelt had no more to do with it than you did).
Reaction: Very unfavorable among union men, but splendid among women's organizations.

There has been considerable grumbling about the cabinet. You always get that. There would have been meaning even if ten of the original apostles had been available.
Progressive Republicans were particularly unenthused about their representatives. That was partially their own fault. Many declined.
That same answer is being made to those conservatives who are pinning for Owen Young, Melvin Traynor, Newton Baker, Al Smith and Albert Ritchie.
All in all, it stacks up as a cabinet at least equal to average.

The Roper confirmation was held back because several strong protests against his selection were made immediately after the news got out. The commerce department deals mainly with business houses. They do not know Mr. Roper. Also he has many political enemies within the party.
The economy angle of his appointment was not generally known. Like a number of other appointments, he had been considered a big post since Mr. Hoover made it a stepping stone to the presidency.
Nevertheless the appointment was considered certain to go through.

The designation of Roper will give you an idea of what Mr. Roosevelt intends to do with the commerce department. It will be sliced down to a mere matchstick. Foreign trade functions will be given to the state department. That idea, more than the McAdoo endorsement, furnished the background for Roper's appointment.
The Douglas appointment as budget director caused some heartaches.
The Kentuckian, Swager Sherley, had been slated for that job. He was chairman of Mr. Roosevelt's secret economy committee which has been meeting on the fly here for some weeks. On it also were Byrnes, Douglas and Daniel C. Roper, new commerce secretary.

The reason Sherley did not get anything important is Mr. Roosevelt's own secret. A personal reason arose at the last minute.

Walter Huston Has Role Rialto Drama

Walter Huston, who always gives a noteworthy performance, as Per O'Brien, Constance Cummings and Kay Johnson are all featured in the Rialto theatre's feature picture for today and tomorrow, "American Madness".
"American Madness" is a powerful screen play with an endless amount of appeal—dramatic suspense, and love interest. It's a vivid and colorful story of the big "crash" of 1929.
Also on the Rialto program is a 20 minute Vitaphone Technicolor act with singing, dancing, and novelty: also a screen souvenir.

BEER BILL KILLED; SALES TAX PLAN IS RECOMMENDED

The house has been unable to keep up with its calendar. The senate has been pretty well caught up with its schedule. Adjournment Saturday night or before was all hoped for, but still appeared a major task.
A flat fee of $5 for private motor vehicles, with an additional one cent per gallon tax on gasoline was approved by the house late Monday.
In addition to the flat fee and gas tax, the measure provides for the renewal of automobile drivers' licenses of $1 every two years.
The income tax bill passed by the house increases the rates for personal income taxes at varying rates from 2 to 7 per cent and reduces the exemptions. There was no debate up on the measure following its explanation.
Will Tax Many.
The new scale provides drastically lower exemptions and greatly increased rates for the present income tax administration machinery. Exemptions for married men are reduced from $2,500 to $1,500 and for single men from $1,500 to $800.
Rates under the old law ranged from one per cent on the first $100 of taxable income to five per cent on the fifth $1,000 of taxable income and five per cent thereafter. Under the bill which passed the house the rate is two per cent on the first $1,000 of taxable income and the rate increases one per cent for each $1,000 of taxable income until a seven per cent rate is reached.
The bill, if it becomes law, will not be effective on income received from 1932 and collectible in 1933, but will apply to all net incomes received this year and collectible in 1934.

FRENCH DETECTIVE STORY ON SCREEN

The great French detective story, "File 113," is being featured on the Rialto screen today and Wednesday. The large appeal of this picture is credited largely to the cast of favorites, including Lew Cody, Mary Nolan, Clara Kimball Young, George E. Stone, William Collier, Jr., and June Clyde.

JOHNSON SLATED FOR ADDRESS AT CHAMBER FORUM

A chamber of commerce forum will be held Wednesday, March 8th, at noon in the Hotel Medford, with Charles C. Thompson, president of the National Association of Life Underwriters, as guest speaker, according to A. P. Johnson, chairman of the chamber of commerce forum committee.
Mr. Thompson's theme will be "Dependence and Independence," and from accounts of several local citizens who have heard him speak his message will be well worth hearing.

Mr. Thompson resides in Seattle, and has been prominent in business and civic affairs of that city, his greatest interest having been in connection with health activities. He is a member of the public health committee of the Seattle chamber of commerce and of the general bureau of the Public Health League of Washington. He has served on the board of directors of the Nursing association, an orphanage, a savings bank, and has always been an active participant in community funds drives and other welfare activities.
Mr. Thompson has spent more than thirty years in the life insurance profession during which time he has naturally made many friends and it is reported that he knows more men in his chosen line of business in America than any other person.

There is no happenstance about the high regard in which Mr. Thompson is held by his associates both in association work and in the life insurance fraternity. He has all the qualities of a leader. Among these may be enumerated a firm belief in the great public service of life insurance and the prominent part which the qualified life insurance agent plays in protecting the business and family life of America. Add to this a broad vision, a generous viewpoint toward his fellows and one understands the country-wide support which made Mr. Thompson, unopposed, president of the National Association of Life Underwriters.

He has held many important civic offices during his career including chairmanship of the legislative committee of Washington State Life Underwriters Association and has represented the Association of Life Insurance Presidents in legislative committees in Washington on many occasions.
"I feel we are very fortunate in having Mr. Thompson come to Medford," stated Mr. Johnson this morning, "and I am hoping for a large turnout of business men and business women, to hear his message."
