

SCIENTIST FINDS FIRST INDICATION OF LIFE IN SPACE

Swarms of Bacteria, Not Super-Men First Evidence of Life Off Earth Declares Professor Lipman

By Howard W. Blakeslee (Associated Press Science Editor) NEW YORK (AP)—Swarms of bacteria instead of the long-dreamed-of "Martians" and "super-men" constitute the first evidence of life in space announced by a scientist.

These living bacteria were found by Prof. Charles B. Lipman of the University of California in the atmosphere which fell to earth and he offers evidence that the germs already were there when the shooting stars coursed the outer void.

This discovery of the lowest known forms of life is not altogether an anti-climax, for in fact it tends to verify the long-held theory that life elsewhere may be like what he knows on earth.

"These bacteria," says Professor Lipman, "are similar to forms common on our earth, and probably identical with the forms which find 'rods' and 'cocci'."

He finds "rods" and "cocci," the two great divisions, one long, the other egg-shaped. Although among earth-born bacteria the rods include the tuberculosis germ and a coccus is the pneumonia germ, bacteria are not primarily harbingers of disaster, but are the biggest army of terrestrial workmen, each making some environmental chemical change essential to life.

BUTTER ADVANCE IS RETARDED BY OUTSIDE SELLING

PORTLAND, March 2.—(AP)—Influence of the interests who sell much of their product on the California market was all that kept the local trade from showing an advance for all grades of butter.

Market for eggs was showing a generally steady tone locally although the sales of undergrades at various prices was an influence that holds down values on the better stuff.

Demand for live chickens continues in excess of current offerings here and along the coast generally. Prices were firmly held at the recent almost general advance in supplies.

Very scant supplies of turkeys were reaching the trade. Hens continue in best call and are firmly held for quality. Few top birds are arriving.

With the arrival of a few head of spring lamb direct to a retailer, there is much interest in supplies although operators are unable to get in touch with parties who could make immediate shipment.
