PORTLAND, Ore., March 8.—(AP) Extreme shortage of chickens was causing considerable worry to receivers of live fowls in the local trade during the last week or so there has been only a nominal offering here.

PORTLAND, Ore., March 8.—(AP) Values in the live chicken trade were unchanged although there was no doubt of the strength of the market. However, there appears little disposition on the part of buyers to bid higher because of financial conditions.

Practically everything in the chicken line was included in the shortage. Market for butter reflects a generally steady tone locally. No price change was shown for the day either in the cube or print trade. Butter values appear more stationary.

Prices were still rather badly mixed in the market for eggs, locally allied trade leaders—both co-operative and private—were inclined to quote out the late advances.

Market for country killed meats was just about steady locally. No price change was shown. Receipts were again practically normal. Only spring lambs were now missing.

TORONTO MINING MARKET BULLISH

TORONTO, March 8.—(AP)—Free from Wall street influence, the Standard Mining Exchange cut loose today and staged a bull market, adding as much as $2 a share to some of the leaders. Gold, silver and base metals participated in the advance and trading speeded up while prices advanced. There seemed to be no explanation for the upward movement other than a local buying demand arising from a feeling the market had receded adequately from the top prices established in February.

LEAGUE OF OREGON CITIES THEME OF ROTARIAN ADDRESS

An interesting talk on the League of Oregon Cities was presented at yesterday's meeting of the Medford Rotary club by Frank Farrell, city attorney of Medford. The purposes of the league were outlined by the speaker, who stated that it was formed as a clearing house for ideas and experiences which serve to benefit the administrative officers of the various cities in the state.

Each community is confronted with numerous problems which are more or less common to all and can gain much good from the experience of others. It is planned to eventually adopt a standard type of charter for general use throughout the state, which will eliminate the necessity for calling special elections at an expense of $300 or more to vote on various local charter amendments from time to time.

The fact that 70 per cent of the taxable wealth in this state is located in incorporated towns and cities, with only 30 per cent in the rural districts, was brought out by the speaker and proved a revelation to many of those present. In closing, Mr. Farrell reviewed a number of the bills passed by the legislature this session outlining the benefits which will accrue to Oregon cities as a result of the several measures which have become law.

A report on the results of the advertising slogan contest, conducted last week by Horace Bromley, who announced W. B. Johnston as the winner of first prize, with a score of 23 correct answers out of 23. Dr. Will Holt was second with 22. Mr. Bromley reported that 15 Rotarians, or 35 per cent of those present, had made a score of 20 or better in identifying the popular advertising slogans used by national and local advertisers. Some of the humorous sidelights of the contest were also reviewed.

George Henselman announced the Chamber of Commerce meeting scheduled for Wednesday noon and invited all Rotarians to be present. A. P. Johnson urged the Rotary golfers to participate in the next Rogie Valley Golf club tournament Sunday at the local course.

Jas. P. Mashburn was introduced as a new member of the local Rotary club, and was given a hearty welcome by all present. Visiting Rotarians at the season were Tom Waters and D. E. Alexander of Kinzath Falls. Moore Hamilton of the Daily News was a guest at the meeting.

INSURANCE HEAD GIVES CHEERFUL WORD TO FORUM

"Hard times make better people and better business. We are going forward not backward"—is the message brought to Medford today by Charles C. Thompson, president of the National Life Underwriters in an address before the chamber of commerce forum luncheon at the Hotel Medford, attended by 94 guests.

Emphasizing the value of personal independence and self reliance, Mr. Thompson stated, "We cannot maintain that self-reliance individualism that has meant so much to our progress without a constant agitation for personal responsibility. Paternalistic government and democratic independence are as unmissable as oil and water" he added, asking the people of the nation to look within themselves for the settlement of their problems not to government aid.

"He who would eat must work", Mr. Thompson declared. "Happiness comes only in freedom." The fall of Rome he then accredited as historians do to the ease with which the people received their food. "From the struggle the nation is now facing" he added, "Americans will emerge a stronger, better people."

The old men in business, who are still thinking of the easy days preceding 1929, Mr. Thompson described as the dangerous pessimists, and remarked, explaining that he did not mean to be unkind, that the younger people right now are getting further in business than their elders, according to the figures.

New businesses are thriving, he declared. Young salesmen are selling because they are meeting the new demands. They are not expecting the depression. "Possibly we older ones are living too much in the past. The young men are meeting the demands and the facts as they are today. Perhaps if we could forget," the speaker added, "the easy times we knew previous to 1929 we would be better fitted to carry on today."

"The young people are the optimists. The pessimists are dying off and as a natural course of events," he explained with a laugh, "we will grow out of this situation." Turning to his own chosen line he stated "Life insurance is largely depression proof as is shown by the fact that in 1928 the total premium income was $3,145,584,784, or four cents of the American income dollar was paid in life insurance companies. In 1931 the total premiums paid had increased to $3,661,105,885 or approximately six cents of each dollar of the national income was paid in life insurance premiums. Mr. Thompson pointed out that this six cents of each dollar produced approximately eighty-seven percent of all estates.

The value of life insurance during our present economic disturbance is reflected in the payments of life insurance companies in United States last year, which amounted to more than three billions of dollars. It is estimated that the total amount spent by relief agencies in 1932 was about six hundred million dollars. Life insurance payments to policy holders were approximately five times that amount. These agencies, or double the amount loaned by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The speaker was introduced by A. P. Johnson, program chairman, and his address preceded by a short explanation of the local issue of cash certificates, made by W. S. Boiger, president of the chamber.

BRUCE CABOT SETS ATHLETIC PAGE AT FILMDOM CAPITAL

HOLLYWOOD—Bruce Cabot must be listed as another of the athletic gentlemen who incidentally and, in a measure, by accident are screen actors.

To any such program of athletic recreation as his when not at the studio a screen career can be little more than incidental. When he isn't swimming, or playing tennis or golf or boxing he can be found at one of Hollywood's health institutes, taking a steam or a sun bath or playing handball. It goes on for hours a day, and at the present pace Hollywood is going to have another George O'Brien on its hands.

"It isn't for health—it's fun," he says ironically, and stretches in the sun. But he doesn't aspire to the George O'Brien type of role.

"I'd rather do other things," he says. "I've done almost everything there is to do, except act—and now I'm doing that, or trying to."

"I'm not an actor, but I think having had a variety of experiences helps. If you've done a thing in real life you feel at home doing it on the screen—and the camera catches that."

In his "variety of experiences" one included cow-punching in New Mexico where he was born, surveying with road builders, sailing the seas as an ordinary seaman, serving as sparring partner for a boxer—(after a week he knocked out the fighter and was fired)—and the more prosaic business of stockbroking.

When that latter occupation disappeared he came to Hollywood and got into pictures. After a little extra work a test opposite a well known stage actress proved more fortunate for him than for her. He was placed under contract, but not she.

So far he has had better breaks than the average contract player. A good role in "The Roadhouse Murder Mystery," followed by the romantic lead opposite Fay Wray in "King Kong," then a part in "The Great Jasper," will keep him prominently on the screen for some time.

He was submerged in "King Kong" for 11 months—the time the human actors worked—and doesn't think his part will do him much good except that it's in a "big" picture.

"Nobody'll remember anyone in the picture except the big ape," he says. His real name is Jacques de Bujac—ancestry French, Irish and Indian—and he's 26 years old.
