

City Improvement Plans Considered in Order to Give Employment Relief

While an ever-increasing number of men come out of their homes, unemployed, to the doors of the city asking for work, leaders in Medford government, although for the most part silent, are not unmindful of their needs. An interview with various departments revealed today.

They are constantly searching the field for the answer in the possible promotion of a needed local project and the hope is to obtain money from the relief finance corporation for construction of Medford's long-needed sewage disposal plant, a unit of it, or the accomplishment of street improvements.

For any one of the three money could be obtained from the R. F. C. fund to match whatever amount Medford might raise, the city has been assured, and there is a possibility of a 40-60 ratio. It all depends upon the amount spent in labor, as the latter will be financed through relief funds, Mayor E. M. Wilson stated today.

Two plans for launching local work are being considered. One is dependent upon the passage of House Bill No. 422, with inclusion of section 5, which provides:

"Whenever a court of competent jurisdiction shall have ordered any of the said municipalities in this state to abate a pollution nuisance or shall have enjoined any such municipality from discharging sewage or drainage into any lake, stream or other waterway, said municipality shall have authority upon its own affirmative action and without submitting said matter to a vote of the qualified electors of such municipality to issue and sell the necessary bonds for the construction and installation of such facilities, as it may deem necessary to comply with said court order."

If such authority were given the city, a bond issue to finance materials could be floated and money obtained from the R. F. C. fund to pay for all labor. This money would be secured through the county relief committee, at no cost to the city. Men would be put to work and paid for their labor.

In case such authority is not given cities, it would be necessary to vote for the floating of a bond issue. The amount raised by the city would again be matched by the R. F. C. fund.

Under the other plan the city would borrow money from the R. F. C. fund, but would have to pay for both labor and materials, making the cost twice that to be realized through use of the money obtained through the relief committee.

The sewage system, or needed street improvements could be added to the city at this time at less cost than at any other time in history, thus amounting to a saving, both from the standpoint of caring for the unemployed and realizing necessary improvements, officials pointed out today.

Reviewing the costs of establishment of a new sewage system here, Fred Scheffel, city superintendent, stated that the estimates given in 1932 could easily be reduced 20 per cent, the way prices have descended since that time. The estimate given then listed the treatment plant at $147,000, based upon a 2,400,000-gallon flow per day. The present flow is 1,750,000 gallons per day. The cost of the trunk line sewer was then estimated at $85,000. Construction of the treatment plant and a unit connecting it with the end of the present trunk sewer, which would solve Medford's problem for the present at least, could be realized for $171,500, according to the 1932 estimate, which would be reduced 20 per cent.

If Medford considered this program at least half the sum, or $85,750, would be obtainable from the R. F. C. fund.

ROOSEVELT FIRM BUT POLITE WHEN POINT IS SOUGHT

When outgoing Treasury Secretary Mills telephoned congratulations to his successor, Will Woodin, he said: "Bring along a pair of asbestos pants. This is a hot place."

Woodin tried out the chair during their visit here later. He observed: "I think you exaggerated the temperature of this seat."

Said Mills: "Wait."

A spirited young Democrat from New York called at the customs bureau several days ago asking to see the man in charge. He said he had been promised an appointment to that bureau. He asked that the manager tell him what good job was available, which would permit him to keep his home in New York and run down to Washington for business each Tuesday, returning to New York each Friday. The manager answered none.

Rating next to this youngster in gall was another who called at a treasury department and asked to look over the office so he could pick out a good job to apply for.

Troubles of a president are not always understood. Takes the case of Mr. Roosevelt's stenographer back in Albany. A kind friend sent six jig-saw puzzle pictures of the United States capitol. The stenographer worked long and hard trying to figure one out. Finally the inexplicable matter was brought to Mr. Roosevelt's attention. He discovered that an unkind newspaperman had taken a small handful of parts from each of the six boxes and transposed them to other boxes.

Straightening them out would be easy, compared with the difficulties Mr. Roosevelt will have straightening out things in that same building the next four years.
