College Women Hear Review of Interesting Book

College Women's club met Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Canode. Mrs. F. G. Swedenburg presided during the business meeting. Mrs. F. G. Wagner introduced Mrs. Edwin L. Knapp, who reviewed "A New Deal" by Stuart Chase.

The review brought out the following questions, which are considered by the author:

"Why is purchasing power inadequate, why do we western people fail to gain the full benefits of an economy of abundance; why must we go through such scuffling periods of mental panic and physical deprivation as the present? How can they be avoided?"

The author traces the development through the nineteenth century of the system of laissez-faire or free competition, and the carrying over into this century of a concept of economies entirely at variance with the definition of what an economic system is for.

The author maintains that until those in control realize that it is to provide a means, without excessive waste and loss whereby those who live under it may eat, government cannot be carried on without recurrence of the present conditions.

He offers suggestions which he frankly admits might not work out as he now believes they would.

A peaceful and workable, not radical change in the present plan, one which provides a planning board of scientific, not commercial interest, with collectivism, rather than laissez-faire, or individualism, would work out methods for a managed currency, a drastic redistribution of the national income through income and inheritance tax, and a huge program of public works.

It would necessarily involve control of investments, both private and foreign, public works, higher real wages, the elimination of tariff barriers, and a drastic curb of speculation.

Important functions of the collective system of economic control would be those of an industrial budget of national requirements and industrial capacity to meet them, shortening of the work week, unemployment insurance, the promotion of industrial decentralization, long period budgeting, and national and regional planning boards to coordinate.

While permitting nice profits to industrialists, he is frankly opposed to capitalism and would control through many avenues the amount of such capital.

The author refuses the possible solution of economic control through revolution or big business.

Miss Avis Lobdell of Portland will be the guest speaker of the club, Saturday, March 18th at 2:30 p. m. at the court house auditorium. Miss Lobdell will speak on "Woman's Place in International Peace."

Electric Clock Tells Time Without Hands

HERE is the latest in clocks—an electric clock without dial or hands. The time is indicated by numerals that revolve like the mileage indicator on an automobile, while the seconds "pass in review" on a revolving disc just below them. A small electric lamp illuminates the numbers and the decorative design etched on the face.

This clock, operated by a self-starting Telechron motor, is run by alternating current.

Man's work is

When Our Mothers Were Brides

The above saying was literally true. Electricity has changed all that. Today the average family in Medford lights the home, cooks, heats the water, operates a refrigerator, washer, iron, vacuum cleaner, radio, sun lamp, percolator, toaster, waffle iron, food mixer and other appliances at an average cost of 32 cents a day. The average electric bill, for complete equipment, is only $9.50 a month. Electricity is cheap in Medford, less than half the national average. (Average domestic rate per k.w.h. for the United States in 1931 was 5.7 cents... the average for the Medford district was 2.38 cents per k.w.h.)
