SURPRISE MOVE MADE TO YIELD LARGE REVENUE

prove the beverages aimed to put taxes on the levies aimed to bring in $180,000,000 a year toward balancing the budget.

Called at the White House "the briefest presidential message in history," Mr. Roosevelt's 72 words were: "I recommend to the congress the passage of legislation for the immediate modification of the Volstead act in order to legalize and manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the constitution; and to provide through such manufacture and sale, by substituted revenue for the government.

"I deem action at this time to be of the highest importance." The Democratic leadership and anti-prohibitionists expressed confidence the votes to pass the bill without ado were to be had.

"I hope it may be disposed of as promptly as may be found practicable," Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader said, adding that "we will have to get this economy program out of the way first, however."

Few members knew the message was coming. When A. E. Chaffee, reading clerk, read the first line, shortly after the noon meeting hour, the house burst into wild applause.

Persons in the sparsely filled galleries joined the members. A few rebel yells were shouted.

At the conclusion of the short message, some members stood and applauded. Others shouted and smiled broadly.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—Foes of the Roosevelt economy bill paraded their objections to it in the senate today after getting a 60 to 20 vote setback.

By that margin, cutting across party lines, the senate refused to send the bill to committee. That process, sought by Senator McCarran (D. Nev.), would have postponed getting the bill to the vote stage.

Leaders in both parties said they expected the bill to be passed after several days' debate. Many attempts to make amendments were in the offing.

Senator Harrison (D. Miss.) urged for the grant of extraordinary power to the president to cut veterans' costs and federal salaries on the ground that it would warn the world "that
