

OSCAR E. HOOVER
RESIGNS POST AS SCOUT EXECUTIVE

Announcement was made today that Scout Executive Oscar E. Hoover has resigned from his position in the Crater Lake council territory, effective April 15, and will accept a similar position in Butte, Mont., leaving shortly after that date, with his family.

Larry Schade has been selected by the regional office, and elected by the local executive board to take full charge of the scouting in this territory. He will not only head the work here, but will at once recognize the district committee to guarantee continuance of the scout program with little change.

Headquarters, at 500 East Main street, will be open at stated periods, to serve the scoutmaster and other volunteers, it was learned.

The local district committee at its meeting at Scout Headquarters, pledged its full and hearty cooperation to Mr. Schade to carry on the work. The board, and those intimately connected with scouting here expressed the hope that financial conditions will soon be improved and that funds can be secured to again employ a trained scout executive so necessary for the proper promotion, advancement and continuance of scouting. Mr. Schade requests full cooperation of all scouters, parents, and friends of scouts during this time.

SCHERMERHORN'S
FITNESS PROBED
ON OUSTER PLEA

Sheriff Schermerhorn is charged with inefficiency, failure to properly perform his duties, obstructing justice, and showing favoritism to "Good Government Congress" members.

Eighteen witnesses are scheduled to be called in support of the charges. They are: County Clerk George R. Carter, Mrs. J. F. Lawrence, who appeared before the "congress" on the night the ballots were burned in an effort to have the "congressmen" subside in talk and acts; Attorney Allison Moulton, Robert Bell, janitor at the court house; J. T. Davis, Wesley McKittrick and Virgil Edgington, two men formerly "Banks guards"; Sam Carey, former ad solicitor for Banks' paper; Ernest Scott, business manager of the News; Bert Harr, an upper Applegate farmer; Joe Gava, city policeman; Chief of Police Clayton McGredley; Fred Kelly, recently named jailer; Miles Randall, Earl Foy, Deputy District Attorney George Nelson, County Commissioner R. E. Nelson, Attorney M. O. Wilkins, and Commissioner Ralph Billings.

Commissioner Billings was the first witness. He was called after Attorney Frank Newman had filed an answer denying the charges, and a motion attacking the constitutionality of the proceedings had been filed. The court ruled that the latter was a matter for the state supreme court. Commissioner Billings testified that since the first of the year, the court house corridors had been overrun with "loafers and loiterers," and that the sheriff made no effort to curb them. He testified that this condition hampered county work, and that lady clerks were afraid to go down the hall, unless a man was with them. Commissioner Billings testified that on March 8th, when L. A. Banks made his "revolution talk," he and Commissioner Nelson, in the presence of Sheriff Schermerhorn, proposed that the halls be kept clear, and that Sheriff Schermerhorn proposed posting of placards prohibiting loitering.

Attorney Allison Moulton testified that when he filed a garnishment of County Judge Feh's salary, the sheriff "seemed reluctant to act," and "wanted to see his lawyer." Attorney Moulton advised the official that he had been called upon to "serve a lawful process and if he failed to do so, his bond was in danger of being questioned."

HOLLYWOOD STARS
POOR AT BRIDGE
SAYS CULBERTSON

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Bebe Daniels is the only screen player in whom Ely Culbertson would be interested as a bridge opponent.

"I've heard her bridge is excellent," he says. "For the rest, I'm sure their bridge is the worst in the world. The game demands concentration, and professionally they would be concerned with how they look and act rather than with their cards."

The maestro of contract—and of publicity, as well, I might add needlessly—has in mind another Hollywood match in which he would be interested seriously. It's Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson against Sam Goldwyn and Joseph Steinick, two of Hollywood's ace, with the stakes at $5 a point.

"I'd give them a hundred points handicap," he says generously.

The Culbertsons, who make a wholesale business of an indoor sport, are here to star in a series of bridge features calculated to combine entertainment with a spice of instruction.

Ely himself is writing the script, with the promise to make it interesting to non-players as well as devotees of the game. One of the characters is to be Bobby, a bridge parrot who kibbles and isn't very ethical.

Bobby is to be similar to a bird Mrs. Culbertson once had—"only mine was honest," she interpolates. Mrs. Culbertson, attractive, smartly dressed, is responsible, as you know, for her husband's entry into bridge as a profession.

"We have children, you know," adds his wife, for her part.

"But we play mentally all the time—keeping us in practice," he declares. Recreation? "I've written a play—and there's no bridge in it," says Culbertson.
