MRS. MARTIN BOND FAILS TO APPEAR; JAIL LIFE BORES

Efforts to secure the release on bonds of Mrs. Henrietta B. Martin, president of the "Good Government Congress" and the central oratorical figure in the "convocations" and the "grand assemblies" of the great grand jury, launched yesterday, were of no avail. Her attorney, T. J. Enright, said this morning that no bonds were in sight for today.

Mrs. Martin is reported as becoming exceedingly weary of jail confinement, though at first she accepted it philosophically. The novelty, her keepers say has waned.

Attorney Enright said yesterday afternoon that Ernest Danach of Eagle Point had offered to go surety and that two others were considering the matter.

Mrs. Edith Brown, mother of Mrs. Martin, whose husband, C. H. Brown, secretary of the "Good Government Congress," is in custody on disorderly conduct and slandering a bank in contempt, was at the court house yesterday with friends, hopeful for the release of her daughter. She is reported to have been in tears at one time yesterday.

Renunciation of the "congress" continues brisk. Only a small portion of the withdrawals were published in the press, a majority being made rice to the district attorney's office and the circuit judge. The membership started to shrink following the slaying of Constable Geo. J. Prescott. Many members have admitted they signed cards in the belief it would be a means of procuring work and "the first meeting opened their eyes."

It has become known that all assemblies of the "congress" were attended by local men and women, both inside and outside the court house auditorium, who took notes of the sensational and incendiary speeches. It was the custom of some of the speakers to make inflammatory comment and deny it the next day. One orator claimed he was "speaking in parables" when he advocated "seizing the county." The suggestion for "a rope" and "a nose" for the district attorney and circuit judge was a sure fire applause rouser at all sessions.

It is reported that these notes made by citizens have been or will be presented to the grand jury in its probe of criminal syndicalism charges.

TOLLEFSON WAITS COURT'S MANDATE ON INCARCERATION

Final action in the case of Tollefson, former cashier of the State Bank of Central Point, under two years and six months' sentence in the state prison on a plea of guilty to perpetration of a bank robbery, was still delayed today, due to the non-arrival of the mandate from the state supreme court.

Tollefson's last legal hope was exhausted when the high court ten days ago denied his application for a rehearing.

As soon as the mandate is received, an order of commitment will be asked, and Tollefson, if same is granted, remanded to the custody of the sheriff for transfer to the penitentiary.

Petitions, widely signed by citizens of this city, Central Point, and other portions of the county are reported to have been filed with the governor, asking that executive clemency be granted. The governor is reported as reluctant to act, and extend leniency, until the defendant has been "dressed in" at the state prison.

The robbery was perpetrated on May 10 last. Two weeks later Tollefson was sentenced. Since then the case has been pending in the courts on appeal.

Under the Oregon prison system, which allows one-third off for good behavior Tollefson will serve 20 months, and be eligible for parole when a third of this time has been served.

Friends of Tollefson said he would probably ask the right to present himself to the warden of the prison, after the commitment is issued. He is a married man. He is a former student at the University of Oregon where he was a star tennis player.

DEBT ON RADIO CAUSES MURDER

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—(AP)—Charged with slaying a department store credit official who had ordered repossession of a radio set, Joseph Sikoraki, 62, unemployed janitor, was held in jail here today while authorities prepared prosecution for murder. Sikoraki shot and killed John A. Padgett, 60, the credit official, in the latter's office at the department store last night.

"Now my debt is settled," he was quoted by police as shouting. Scores of customers and clerks in the store hurried for safety at the sharp crack of the gun.

After shooting Padgett, police said Sikoraki placed the muzzle of the gun against his own head and pulled the trigger twice, but the shells failed to fire.

THIRD DAY OF STORMS PREDICTED FOR COAST

PORTLAND, March 30.—(AP)—Storm warnings were flying along the Oregon and Washington coastline Thursday for the third consecutive day as south winds of considerable velocity whipped along the sea and spread inland as far as western Montana. A southerly blow of 48 miles an hour swept the coast during the night. The worst of the storm appeared over today, the weather bureau said.

FUNDS ALLOTTED FOR WAR ON PINE ENEMY

SPOKANE, Mar. 30.—(AP)—Allotment of $1,750,000 of federal funds with which to wage a battle against white pine blister rust was urged by representatives of the lumber and timber industries of four northwestern states at a meeting here Wednesday.

The request was telegraphed to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, to the governors of the western states and to congressional delegations.

Baby Is Compensation For All of Libby's Woes

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds, widow of Smith Reynolds, found fatally shot in his North Carolina home, for the first time yesterday saw visitors other than her close friends.

In a talk she did not reveal future plans except to say she wished to lead a life of peace and quiet which her baby demands.

Mrs. Reynolds saw her callers in the seclusion of the maternity department of the Pennsylvania hospital.

Her son, not yet officially named, was born in the hospital January 10, and has been kept most of the time in a modified incubator because of premature birth.

She said the baby had been "more than compensation for all the trials and tribulations" she had suffered.

When the baby shall no longer need her entire attention, she will decide whether she will return to the stage.

Speaking of the baby, she said: "If when he is older, his tastes and desires turn to the field of aviation, then one of my fondest dreams would be realized, for Smith Reynolds, his father, was a courageous and ambitious aviator."

"Yet if the young one's talents lie in other fields, I shall try to encourage him in whatever he chooses."

"Now, at seven pounds, he looks like a giant to me—a fair, blue-eyed giant of a child, more understanding and lovable than any creature on earth."

MINING SCHOLARS LEAVE FOR HILLS AFTER GRADUATING

The first class of the mining school, being conducted by the Southern Oregon Mining association, in co-operation with the state board for vocational education, has "graduated" and 31 students in the class 20 have already found, or been located upon, ground where they can make a living.

Men and boys ranging in age from 17 to 75 years have been given instruction in the use of the gold pan and rocker, taught how to build and operate a sluice box, how to make tests for values on both placer and quartz, how to trace and locate placer gold and how to make a valid location of a mining claim.

The instructors report that the students have been attentive listeners and enthusiastic workers and, in spite of some inclement weather, have been on hand and answered "present" to the roll call for every lesson.

The second class began this morning with an initial registration of 24 students, including one woman, and the committee in charge of the work wishes to assure all enthusiastic women miners, or prospective prospectors, that all women are welcome and will be given as much care and attention as any of the male contingent.

The secretary of the mining association at the Chamber of Commerce says that he is now receiving registrations for the third class which will probably begin on Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

The interest in this school of instruction is growing and many who have thus far been interested listeners will soon be active students.

HOLMAN PLEASSED BY COURT ORDER

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—(AP)—Rufus C. Holman, Oregon state treasurer, expressed pleasure today when informed the state supreme court had issued a decision countermanding his order not to honor warrants.

Holman will continue to Portland when the steamship Admiral Peoples sails for the north at 5 p. m. today. Meanwhile, he said, his office will follow the edict of the court.

Aroused from sleep when the Admiral Peoples docked, he asked, "Then the constitutionality of the law has been upheld?"

"Yes," "Good," he said. "Then we may proceed with safety to the public funds and my bondmen and to myself and I hope with celerity to the creditors of the state."

Sam Gilardi, 33 charged with disturbing the peace, was fined $10 in city court today. He was arrested at a local apartment house last night by city police, and nearly one hundred bottles of beer and six bottles of whisky were seized by the officers. Gilardi was held in the city jail.
