

JUNIOR HI GIRLS TAUGHT TO AVOID FRUMPY DRESSES

(Contributed)
We women are all more or less freaks of nature, and the thing to do about it is to study our Aphrodite and find where she has it over us. We must analyze ourselves, recognize our defects, and look for good points, and then by careful planning select our costumes to hide the defects, emphasize the good points, and, above all, bring out our personalities. Too many women completely collapse their personalities by selecting gowns so fashionable that the attention never gets as far as the face.

A course in costume design is being taught at the junior high school in the regular advanced clothing class in which the girls are learning not only the construction, but the proper selection of becoming dresses. Costume design is simply a set of rules which may be applied easily once the idea that all parts and details of a costume should be combined to lend the attention easily to the center of interest or face, is learned. This course includes the study of correct line direction with its broadening or slenderizing effects, the principles of light and dark combinations which produce either a very striking or a subtle effect, the types of verticality with the effects of the program and becoming to each type, and the construction of an accurate chart letting colors becoming to each of the five hair color types.

Correct line direction is able not only to create the illusion that very stout bulky woman is normal, and to add pounds to the very thin woman, but can square up sloping shoulders, hide flat busts, and slenderize broad hips. There are three kinds of line—straight, curved and broken. Straight lines may be placed in a costume either vertically, horizontally, or diagonally. We readily recognize that the horizontal line broadens, and that diagonal lines tending toward horizontal have the same effect, but, although the vertical line would seem to lengthen and slenderize, care must be taken that the line remains single and full length or, if double, as in the case of a panel, that the panel be narrow, bringing the lines close together. Three or four vertical lines placed at regular intervals broaden amazingly. The stout woman, in order to emphasize the vertical line, needs a longer skirt length with little flare, long plain sleeves set high in the armhole, and the belt should be very inconspicuous. Her hair dress should be close, and all trimming should be flat and smooth. Vests and collars that produce a flat, narrow line add length, and care should be taken that all decorative features should be placed near the face.

Trimnings which emphasize line movement group themselves under three headings. Repetition, the recurrence of a unit at regular intervals, worked out in rows of buttons, tucks, pleats, braids, groups of bows, or spots of color, can slenderize or broaden by being placed in the desired direction. Gradation, the regular increase or decrease in size of repeated units, may accomplish the same object carried out in different sized buttons, graded tucks or ruffles. Radiation is the starting of lines from a common center as the rays of the sun, and is occasionally found in the radiating tucks at neck lines, and often in the construction of goreds.

The curved line, which saves the face of so many thin women, is achieved by capes, peplums, puffs and ruffles. Soft wide belts, flaring sleeves and scarfs, and other draperies in soft fine fabrics camouflage many ugly physical defects.

In general, our aim in presenting a course in the rules of costume design to young girls is to impress them with the fact that a costume should give the figure the impression of being well proportioned whether it is or not, and since we have various types of figures, we must work out variations of design that will create the impression that the figure is charming.

MRS. JUDD MUST HANG IS ARIZONA ATTITUDE
PHOENIX, Ariz., March 31.—(AP)—The Phoenix Gazette will say in its issue of today that the Arizona board of pardons and paroles will refuse to commute Winnie Ruth Judd's death sentence. The newspaper's information was from unofficial sources, it said, but from sources close to the board.

Condensed History of Wednesday Study Club

(From 1908 to 1933.)
At a recent social meeting at Mrs. L. B. Humphry's home, the Wednesday Study Club's silver anniversary was celebrated. The president, Mrs. J. H. Cochran, whose mother was a charter member, presided, and the outstanding feature of the program was the "Reminiscences of the Wednesday Study Club," an informal review of incidents in the club's early history, by Mrs. F. K. Deuel, a charter member. The attractive year-book for 1922-33, with an appropriate silver binding, was displayed with a collection of all the other programs published by the club.

And, also in commemoration of this twenty-fifth anniversary, the club was graciously entertained on February 20 by the members of the Ashland Study Club, at Mrs. Swedenburg's home in Ashland. A delicious birthday cake beautifully decorated with candles and flowers was cut by the president, and a pleasing program and social hour provided a delightful afternoon.

Twenty-five years ago, in March, 1908, the Wednesday Study Club came into existence, first as a Stoddard Reading Club that was started by Mrs. F. W. Streets, Mrs. H. M. Smedicor, Mrs. P. C. Page, Mrs. Kenner and Mrs. Todd. The membership of 20 met in the homes of the members, and acting as chairman. Recognizing the value of this study and interchange of ideas, it was decided to perfect and enlarge the organization. Early in 1909, officers were elected, a constitution was adopted and the name changed to the present one. The membership was limited to 25.

Mrs. W. I. Wavter was the first president, followed by Mrs. M. E. Worrell, Mrs. E. B. Pickel was elected in 1911 and remained in office three years. Other presidents were Mesdames F. W. Meara, P. W. Hollis, F. K. Deuel, E. N. Warner, W. E. Orewa, W. C. James, J. O. Grey and T. W. Miles.

Charter members still active in the work of the club are Mesdames E. B. Pickel, F. K. Deuel, W. I. Wavter, H. M. Smedicor, W. J. Warner, H. G. Wortman and M. L. Alford. Death has called six beloved and honored members: Mrs. William Coyle, Mrs. Helen Haskins, Mrs. F. W. Hollis, Mrs. F. W. Meara, Mrs. R. W. Stearns and Mrs. F. W. Streets. These women had a large part in the early work of the club.

The programs have been varied. History, biography, modern education, psychology, literature, art, music and the drama have all had their places. Several years have been spent with travel programs and the changes resulting from the World War and the problems of international relations studied. Travel programs have embraced most of the countries of the world, the important islands and principal cities. Consideration has been given to the customs of the peoples, their governments, religions, etc. In the spring of 1930, when the subject was "Japan," representatives of the club met the Japanese envoys of goodwill, who were touring this country, and presented year-books and flowers to the charming young ladies in the party. In appreciation of the interest in their country, a book, "The Reconstruction of Tokyo," was presented to the club, in the name of the mayor of Tokyo. This book has been placed in the reference department of the public library.

The history of the United States, from colonial days to the present time, has been a subject of paramount interest and the story of our country's progress has been a fascinating one. The Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, Origin of Our Flag.

OREGON PICTURES FOR CHICAGO FAIR IS AUTHOR'S HOPE

Presentation of motion pictures of Oregon at the world's fair in Chicago this summer—that is the ambition of Mrs. Agnes E. Hines and one which she really hopes to realize. The motion picture producer and Oregon writer, here yesterday to describe plans of the League of Western Writers, admitted the ambition to the group gathered at the Hotel Holland and gave a fascinating description of pictures she has made of the Oregon wonderland.

There are several members of the writers' league in Medford and other interested persons were invited to the luncheon yesterday. Upon request of the group Mrs. Hines recited a number of her original songs and poems, which were much enjoyed and met with repeated applause. Parts of her latest song, "I Know a Place Where the Blue Grass Grows," dedicated to southern Oregon, were read to the luncheon group.

Mrs. Hines also entertained with a number of her nature songs, music for which has been composed by Matt Howard of Portland. During her visit in Medford this week, she stated, she was pleased to learn that Mr. Howard is a friend of James Stevens, well-known local artist. While here, Mrs. Hines informed the luncheon group she has had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Stevens sing some of the compositions, accompanied at the piano by Sebastian Apollo.

At the close of the luncheon, Mrs. Hines announced her plans to attend the world's fair, taking with her the scenes of the Oregon country. Her pictures have been booked for showing at Jacksonville, requests have come from Klamath Falls, and she hopes to show the pictures in this city, and all others south of Roseburg, to raise funds to return to southern Oregon with her camera for additional shots of scenery and industries.

Mrs. Hines' latest book "Under Oregon Sky" is now ready for the press and contains three pages devoted to southern Oregon. It is illustrated with colored plates and carries a beautiful view of Crater lake. Speaking of the Rogue River Valley yesterday, the Oregon motion picture producer predicted a wonderful future for southern Oregon because of ideal home sites, fertile fields, and orchards. "I see," she stated, "great opportunity for a large city here and enjoy my own contrast with the present and the past, when I was a child at Ashland and saw the golden apple driven, whose tones bid farewell to the old stage coach, announcing the trains, which united north and south. I like to contrast the old stage coach with modern transportation, trains, buses and the great air bird, making its flight through the clouds."

Mrs. Hines was born at Ashland and spent much of her early life in southern Oregon, to which she frequently returns.

attend the meetings regularly, unless excused, and take her part in the program. Although the club's membership is necessarily a changing one, many delightful and enduring friendships have been formed through its influence and association.

MRS. SEVERANCE HAS REPORT FOR GRANGERS ON RELIEF COMMITTEE

A good attendance was present at the Jacksonville Grange meeting Friday evening, with several visitors present; among them Mrs. Frank Obenchain and Mrs. Albert Richardson of the Big Grange in Klamath county. Mrs. Obenchain is a sister of our past worthy master, Chester Wendt.

Mrs. Florine Severance, Grange representative to the local relief committee, reported on the activities of that organization. W. B. Crouse reported on the legislative, and Mabel Sims for the ways and means committee. Plans are under way for a Grange banquet to be given in honor of the fifth anniversary of the Jacksonville Grange. The ways and means committee is to have charge.

Following the meeting a lively recreational program was enjoyed, presented by Mrs. Emma Conger, and consisted of community singing, games and dancing.

The refreshment committee served oyster stew, which was very much enjoyed after the lively recreation.

The Home Economics club met with Mrs. Jones and had a delightful afternoon discussing the various plans to be considered by the club in the near future. Mrs. Ora Niedermeyer was asked to take charge of the entertainment for the next meeting, to be held at Mrs. Emma Conger's. An exchange of plants and shrubbery will be made.
