

SAVE SMUDGE OIL FOR LATER FROST IF SUPPLY SHORT

Federal Expert Floyd D. Young Advises Orchardists to Concentrate Effort During Blossom Time

By FLOYD D. YOUNG. (Senior Meteorologist, Frost Protective Service, U. S. Weather Bureau.) While there apparently will not be a material reduction in the total pear acreage in the Rogue river valley to be protected from frost with orchard heaters this spring, a number of growers are without sufficient fuel to carry on the firing more than two or three nights in all such cases.

Frosts which occur before and during the blooming period may cause a great deal of damage through marking the fruit, and some reduction of the size of the crop may result following unusually severe frosts during the blooming period. Frosts which occur after the setting of the fruit seem cause more than a slight reduction in the size of the crop harvested. Boac buds and blossoms are unusually susceptible to frost damage, and entire crops of this variety have been wiped out by frosts during the blooming period.

The greatest danger of damage comes during and immediately after the blossom petals begin to fall, and orchard heating will yield the greatest returns at lowest cost if frosts occur during that period. Susceptibility to damage decreases slightly as the fruit increases in size, but it is necessary to qualify an individual for a place on the list. The two Medford girls, who also play a prominent part in campus activities, especially in the realm of music, acquired that scholastic standard.

To sum up the matter: If the grower is short of fuel and must take a chance during some part of the season, he should save his amount of fuel until the petals begin to fall. He may take a chance during the blooming period, but with the exception of Bose, there usually is little reduction in the commercial crop caused by early frosts, and damage usually is confined to reduction in quality due to frost marking. Frost marking, though, is likely to be a total loss from a marketing standpoint, but as a general rule frost marking affects only a portion of the crop.

Advice on dangerous temperatures will be broadcast along with the minimum temperature forecast over station KMPD throughout the danger season by Mr. R. J. Rogers, who will be in charge of the forecasting work here this season.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 3.—(AP)—Hundreds of now idle men are expected to find a living and new health in the woods of western Oregon and Washington this spring, with the formal opening of the annual spring cascara or chittim bark peel. An average peeler, it is said, may earn $3 a day.

H. G. Russell of the Pacific Coast Cascara Bark company, one of the largest buyers, said today the new season prices will be about 3 to 3 1/2 cents a pound, compared with around 1 1/2 cents last season. Work for an extended period for many hundreds of men will be provided, he believes.

Cascara bark, a base for many medical preparations, is found in greatest abundance in the western parts of Oregon and Washington, these two states supplying the entire world.

According to R. G. Fowler, Jackson county agent, there is but limited growth of chittim bark in this region of southern Oregon and he doubts if it can be gathered here in commercial quantity.

BEND, Ore., April 3.—(AP)—Unable to make headway because of a stiff wind Ted Barber and Val Varner, Bend aviators, returned to the airport here today after an attempt to fly to Salem with a glider hooked to Barber's plane tandem fashion.

The headwind and the resistance of the towed glider permitted the plane to make barely enough headway to sustain it in the air. After reaching the Santiam foothills the pilot headed back.

Barber announced the attempt to tow the glider to Salem would be abandoned. It had been planned to cut the glider loose high over Salem, and to land both craft on the Salem airport.

WHITE HOUSE TO ENJOY NEW BEER SAYS FIRST LADY

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today issued a statement saying there would be no ban against legalized beer in the White House.

In her statement, Mrs. Roosevelt said: "When it is legal to serve beer in any government house it will naturally be proper to do so for anyone who desires it at the White House."

"I hope very much that any change in legislation will tend to improve the present condition and lead to greater temperance."

"There has been a great deal of bootlegging in beer and once it is legal, this will be impossible and I hope that a great many people who have used stronger things will be content with legal beer so that the cause of temperance will be served."

"No matter what the legislation, I myself do not drink anything with alcoholic content but that is purely an individual thing. I should not dream of imposing my own convictions on other people as long as they live up to the law of our land."

Mrs. Roosevelt signed her statement simply "Eleanor Roosevelt."

CHICAGO FAIR TRAVEL COST WILL BE SHAVED BY RAILROAD BARGAIN

Planned to meet all travel needs, the lowest and greatest variety of roundtrip railroad fares to Chicago for the World's Fair this summer will become effective May 15, it was announced here today by Southern Pacific officials.

The travel bargains for this season include such innovations as round-trip coach and tourist tickets having return limits of 21 days, and similar short-limit "vacation" tickets for standard Pullman travel with stopover and other privileges. These are at considerably lower rates than the regular summer excursion fares that have a return limit of October 31, which will be available again this season.

In addition to the exceptionally low rates for World's Fair trips to Chicago, it was pointed out that proportionate fares for the various types of travel will be available to cities west of Chicago. Diverse routings will be permitted on all classes of tickets from most cities in western states, it was made known.

The Chicago Association of commuters has announced an agreement from hotel men and others not to increase prices during the fair.

SOLON CHANGES SALES TAX VIEW

He was opposed to a sales tax when he went to Salem, but before the session ended he was convinced that there was no other solution to meet the financial situation in the state and afford relief to real property.

Such was the conversion of E. A. McCormack. Originally Representative McCormack of Lane county thought that a revised income tax and some other odds and ends might be sufficient, but as chairman of the responsible taxation and revenue committee he had to study the whole situation carefully and this he did for many weeks. Toward the close of the session he realized that a sales tax was the one salvation for the overburdened property taxpayer and so he supported it hook, line and sinker.

Mr. McCormack is now chairman of a committee of legislators who are preparing to organize a statewide committee to lay before the people the exact financial situation of the state and the necessity for approving the sales tax, which is to be voted on July 21. The work of the committee is to be confined to an educational campaign. The same facts which led the revenue committee to believe that a sales tax is vital will be explained to the voters—Oregonian

It's a lonesome world for "B.O." offenders (body odor). THEY just can't seem to make friends. And the pity of it is they seldom suspect the reason—"B.O." (body odor). Be extra careful now. For overheated rooms make it easy to offend. Bathe regularly with Lifebuoy. Notice how clean it smells. This pleasant, quickly-vanishing, hygienic scent tells you Lifebuoy is different from ordinary toilet soaps—gives extra protection. Its gentle, purifying lather deodorizes pores—stops "B.O." Removes germs—helps guard health. Complexions aided, too. Lifebuoy's rich, abundant lather deep-cleans pores of clogged impurities. Massage it well into the skin every night, then rinse.
