known among the older residents. He was indicted for burglary not in a dwelling in connection with the ballot thefts.

He won the Democratic nomination in the spring primary last year, and in the general election defeated Ralph G. Jennings by a narrow margin of 123 votes. With the issuance of a certificate of election, he came upon tempestuous days.

Jennings, a "write-in" candidate, announced he would file a contest late last November and Schermerhorn absented himself until taking office in Siskiyou county, to evade summons. The recount petition was then filed under the "corrupt practice" act.

Recount Ordered.

The matter was pending in circuit court for two months. Finally Circuit Judge G. F. Skipworth of Lane county, after hearing the preliminary arguments in January, returned on February 19. After a day in court, Judge Skipworth ruled the recount should be held, following a determined fight to prevent it.

That night, and in the early morning of February 20, approximately 10,000 of the ballots were stolen from a courthouse vault, and destroyed. The brazen and bungled crime, automatically ended the recount. On February 25 Schermerhorn was arrested by Coroner Frank Perl, on a ballot theft charge, and on March 15 he was indicted with 22 others, on the same charge.

Later, Commissioner Billings and Nelson filed a complaint against Schermerhorn, charging him with inefficiency, obstruction of justice, and favoritism to "congressmen."

Was Banks, Fehi Catspaw.

The governor ordered a hearing, and some sensational facts were revealed. Including testimony that Schermerhorn had been sworn in at the residence of Earl H. Pehl, who made his appointments; that he was unduly solicitous toward L. A. Banks and Pehl, and was under their domination; that he showed an indifference towards "congressmen" and loiterers daily jamming the court-house corridors; that he had taken no action when Banks, at an interview proposed the naming of "50, 100 or 1,000 deputies" to take over Jackson county; that his chief deputy had written Banks, suggesting a convenient time for Banks to be arrested on a criminal libel charge, and that the deputy had loaned his sedan to Arthur LaDieu and Wesley McKittrick, two men indicted for ballot theft, on the night of the robbery.

Denied Wrongdoing.

Schermerhorn in defense declared he had made concessions in the appointment of a jailer, but after agreeing to resign had "refused because I was guilty of no crime, and had done no wrong"; that he did not know of the acts of his chief deputy until told in court; that he showed no favoritism, and performed the duties of his office as best he could.

Friends of Schermerhorn of many years standing say his present trouble is due to accepting the advice of political plotters and schemers, and express a firm faith in his integrity.

BASEBALL SUNDAY AIDS TRUST FUND

A baseball game is being promoted for Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the Senior high school grounds, for the purpose of raising money for the Prescott Memorial Trust fund under auspices of the Odd Fellows, Elks, and American Legion. The entire proceeds are to go to this fund.

A group of girls have volunteered to sell tickets for the affair. Bleachers have been built at the grounds with donated labor and lumber.

Accommodations have been arranged for 500 cars so that people can watch the game from their own cars. The game is to be between Medford Merchants and the Eagle Pointers.

Franklin's Shows Stein Collection

"Tasted to the pine trees whittling at whose root they home established," is engraved about the top of a large wooden beer stein now on display in the window of Franklin's cafe along with 11 regular steins of all sizes and descriptions. The collection belongs to Mrs. G. H. West, and has been arranged in the window on South Central avenue, where it has attracted much attention.

LIVING IS CHEAP IN SOUTH SEAS SAYS SALISBURY

"I have found the ideal place for people to go who are dissatisfied with our country. They can live on sixty cents a year, and can get along without the sixty cents if they want to use tapa cloth." Such was Captain Edward A. Salisbury's reference to the Marquesas group of South Sea islands, where he recently made a visit in his numerous journeys of exploration.

Captain Salisbury is in Medford in connection with the showing of his moving picture "Ra-Mu", being presented at the Criterion theater.

The captain was a visitor in Medford nearly three years ago, and today he expressed regret at the trouble that recently occurred here, spreading adverse publicity throughout the world.

"The quicker you ship these people out of the country who have been causing all this trouble, the better off you'll be. We really ought to find a poorer place than the Marquesas islands, because it's a paradise."

"These suggestions are merely for the grubbers," the captain said, "because personally, I am quite satisfied with the finest government and the finest country in the world. I only hope I don't do anything or say anything that they will want to ship me out of here."

The islands referred to by Captain Salisbury, are about four hundred miles below the equator and six hundred miles from the French headquarters at Tahiti. The country was formerly densely populated, but due to many deaths from white men's diseases, is now sparsely inhabited. The vegetation and animal life grow in great abundance, with the streams full of fish, and all animals that were once domesticated, now make up the wild animal life of the island.

Referring to his movie "Ra-Mu", the captain said he was "bringing a picture that tells the truth about twenty thousand miles."

GRAPHIC STORY OF LAST MINUTES IN AKRON RECOUNTED

about longitudinal 2, so I went down and stood above the control car and watched the antenna on the port side and also the antenna on the starboard side.

Lieut. Calnan came along and asked me what I was doing there. I called his attention to what I had noticed and he told me to stand by the co-uint.

Went to Smoking Room.

While standing there, Commander Cecil came up from the control car and I noticed the wings on his coat and asked him whether he would rather be on an airplane or where he was.

"He replied he was 'damn glad to be where he was.' 'I then went to the smoking room and I left the smoking room at 12:05 by my watch which was set with the chronometer in the crew's mess hall. It then took my flying gear off. I also my shoes, and laid down on my bunk in the outer keel, with my head on my hand resting on my elbow."

"I happened to be looking up and noticed the No. 7 cell was swishing quite more than usual. 'While looking at this cell the ship gave a terrific lurch sideways and longitudinal girder seven and eight gave way as well as some of the wires. I was on my feet in the keel and the ship started down by the tail. My first thought was to get a pair of side cutters to slip the fuel tanks off, but while thinking this I noticed the control wires go through the sheaves and looking forward at another noise noticed the tank at 147 drop from her forward suspension."

At this time the ship had reached a very sharp inclination, so much so that I had to reach for the side girders to hold myself up.

I decided to go forward as I was afraid that the gasoline tank would carry away altogether and come back and hit me.

I proceeded forward, when I got at frame 170 Bill Russell and Dean were there and some other fellows who I do not remember.

Ship Falling Fast.

The ship was falling quite rapidly now and I knew she was to crash. About five or ten seconds before she crashed the lights went out in the keel.

I retained my stand on the keel and then heard a noise aft and then water hit my feet.

A gasoline tank or something hit me under the water, and I started to go through the motions of swimming, but my right leg was caught in a girder or wire and I pulled on it. And then after quite a spell came to the surface. I took in a couple of mouthfuls of water which was mixed with gasoline.

I started swimming and then noticed lights on the water. It came to me that it was the flares in the control car going off. For a second or so during a lightning flash, I saw a portion of the ship floating in the air. I started to swim for the ship, but she went out of sight.

Heard Cries for Help.

I heard the men crying for help and saw a couple of men float by me. They were either floating or dead. I do not know which. After about 30 minutes swimming I sighted a gasoline tank and saw men on it. I swam up to it and asked who the men were. Erwin replied his name Copeland and I replied his name. I again asked who the other man was. Erwin then replied Rutan. He (Rutan) did not answer. Due to the high waves, the tank would roll and we would lose our hold on the tank.

I remembered Copeland or myself saying to try and take it easy to keep the tank from rolling as there was a spout on it and she would take in water every time she would roll.

Ship to Heave.

Approximately a half hour later I sighted a ship and told the men on the tank that there was a ship in sight and for them to try and paddle toward it. When we did get close to it Erwin and myself yelled "Help" continuously. We saw that we were drifting toward the ship.

Erwin said to me: "I can't hold out any longer." I said, "Hold on, we will be all right in five minutes." We reached the ship and they dropped us life buoys. I slid my body into mine and left the gas tank. I saw the boat so Copeland and myself stayed in our buoys up against the side of the ship. They finally got the life boat in the water, loaded Copeland in and then myself and then I do not remember anything further until I awoke in bed in the German tanker.
