

NEW DIRECTORS OF C. C. INTRODUCED AT BIG BANQUET

Sixth Annual Home Products Enjoyed by 270—Stevenson Says Tax Slash Best Chamber Objective Now

Newly elected directors of the Medford chamber of commerce, who with the seven old members, will compose this year's board, were introduced last night at the sixth annual home products banquet at the Hotel Medford, attended by 270 guests from Klamath Falls, Ashland, Grants Pass, Medford and neighboring communities. Tabulation of election returns was completed just prior to the banquet and the following members were elected: J. C. Collins, Ted Gebauer, Roland Hubbard, Wm. F. Isaacs, John Moffatt, A. C. Pierce and H. A. Thaler.

The old members, who were also introduced by B. C. Taylor, election chairman, are: W. S. Bolger, president of the chamber; A. P. Johnson, treasurer; J. C. Collins, secretary; J. C. Carle, W. J. Warner, B. E. Harder, W. A. Gates and R. B. Reiter.

Optimism seen
A spirit of optimism and intelligent understanding of the problems facing chambers of commerce and all people of southern Oregon, as well as other districts of the nation characterized the banquet program and was emphasized in the address of T. A. Stevenson, secretary-manager of the Tacoma chamber of commerce, chief speaker of the evening.

A plea for reduction of the tax load, built up for the most part by chambers of commerce was voiced by Mr. Stevenson, who insisted that it is up to the chambers of commerce in the United States to tear down that tax load, which has become more than the people can pay.

Adoption of a "live and let live" policy among all businesses, organizations and individuals was urged by Mr. Stevenson. The leading protesters of the country, he stated, are usually people, whose activities have been confined to speech making.

Medford chamber was commended for obtaining A. H. Banwell, formerly of Tacoma, as secretary, the Medford chamber for its plans to cooperate with Grange of the county in promoting agricultural interests of the valley. "The farmer has stayed too close to his plow," Mr. Mickie stated. "He must have aid in the solving of trade and other outside problems. The 'Dear old cow' as a guarantee of prosperity in farming, was frequently referred to by Mr. Mickie, who declared that her success in this field will only be realized when farmers, business men and other milk consumers stop practices which are destroying the profits due the dairyman. He condemned opening of milk depots as one of these practices.

Contentment needed
W. S. Bolger, chamber of commerce president, in a short address, informed the large audience that there is one crop sadly neglected in southern Oregon, "the crop of contentment." He urged the early planting of seeds as the only salvation for this district, regardless of all assets.

Home Entertainment
The musical program for the evening, which was one of the finest demonstrations of home products, was contributed by the Medford Gleemen, directed by James Stevens, with Sebastian Apollo at the piano. The singers, applauded again and again for sncores, entertained with four numbers.

Dinner music was played by the Medford Pep Paddlers, wooden menus for the evening were furnished by the Timber Products company, printing by the Mail Tribune and the decorations in the northern city, always ready to pen of the Rogue Valley Floral company.

The evening's menu included Del. Rogue tomato juice, Table Rock green onions and radishes, Medford pea salad, Rogue River chicken, Apple-gate potatoes, Crater Lake string beans, Knight's Rogue River catnip, Fluhner's rolls, Sluder's ice cream, Gold Seal milk and Central Point Rogue River cheese.

S. P. Officials In Brief Visit

E. L. King, superintendent of the Southern Pacific, arrived in Medford last night in his private car from Portland, accompanied by W. W. Hale, freight-traffic manager of the railway company. The men came in on No. 7 from the north and returned on No. 330, making their stay in Medford brief.

Cantata Much Enjoyed By Eagle Point Folk

Among the very beautiful contributions to Easter service of the past week the "Rogue River valley" cantata "Life Eternal," presented Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church at Eagle Point under the direction of Miss Yetta Olson, high school instructor.

A large and appreciative audience attended the presentation, which opened with the choir singing, "The Lord Reigneth" and closed with "The Resurrection and the Life."

Special solo work was sung by Mrs. Jesse Mittlesteadt, Charles Sturgill, Mrs. Madeline Barrett, Hazel Smith and Mrs. Ray Parker. Devotion was led by Reverend Smith.

The choir for the cantata was composed of the following voices: Mrs. Edith Weidman, Mrs. Roy Smith, Mrs. Madeline Barrett, Mrs. Lottie VanScoy, Mrs. Lula Taylor, Mrs. Ray Parker, Minnie Putman, Hazel Smith, Eleanor Throckmorton, Frances Smith, Evelyn Abbott, soprano; Lawrence Winslow, Charles Sturgill, Gerald Hansen and Lyla VanScoy, tenors; Donna Zarl, Mrs. Jesse Mittlesteadt, Wilda Darnell, Hazel Clingrade and Rose Smith, alto; and Reverend Smith, Dr. D. A. Forbes and Harold Grow, bass.

The work of Miss Olson, who made the production possible, was highly commended by guests in attendance and especially by the appreciative folk of the community, who welcome the musical inspiration, which Miss Olson has brought to Eagle Point.

CRUELTY CAUSES 'STYLISH' HORSES

The young debutante is rapidly swelling the ranks of the elite who must have their daily gallop along the equestrian paths to keep pace with the social trend. "Is your horse 'stylish'?" Has he a kink in his tail like mine has?" she asks. "My dear," she continues, "that is a sure sign of high breeding. Only very stylishly bred horses have such tails."

"Nicked" is the term applied by the knowing horseman to the arched tail. Humane societies everywhere are making every effort to put an end to the "nicking," which they contend is the result of the most diabolical torture and has nothing whatever to do with the breeding of the animal. As a message of "Be Kind to Animals Anniversary," anti-cruelty societies are asking the complete abolition of this practice.

REVENUE ON BEER EXPECTED TO TOP EARLY ESTIMATE

Reports of Heavy Consumption Throughout Country Renew Hope Returns Will Exceed $125,000,000

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP)—Swift moving legislative action by the states and reports of heavy consumption over the country have given the administration renewed hope that federal beer revenues for the year will outstrip the $125,000,000 estimate of Ogden L. Mills, former secretary of the treasury.

Mills, appearing before the house ways and means committee, last year, figured on a basis of sixteen states that certainly would permit sale of beer, and nine others that he thought might legislate legality.

Since then state legislatures have acted so promptly that his figures have been radically changed and the revenue counters are looking for a much larger consumption with resultant benefits to Uncle Sam's coffers.

Mills named these 16 states as certain to permit the sale of beer: Arizona, California, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Washington and Wisconsin.

Then he listed Connecticut, Colorado, Indiana, New Hampshire, Delaware, Illinois, Louisiana, Minnesota, and Vermont as states that might turn to beer if legalized nationally.

Instead of these 25, however, there are now 26 in which the sale is going on and seven more where the amber nectar will pour by mid-summer, legislation having been approved.

Evangelist Teddy Leavitt spoke last night at the Christian church upon the subject "Is the Bible Inspired of God?" He said, in part: "By inspiration we do not mean that God wrote the Bible with His own hand. Only twice is it stated that Deity wrote with His hand. Once on the tables of stone that were given to Moses and once when Jesus wrote on the ground. These were both destroyed."

"By inspiration we mean that God called men and equipped them for their task by means of His spirit. The writers themselves claimed that God was speaking when they wrote. Today, writers of books always want credit for the books they write, but such was not the case with those who wrote the Bible.

"Some people say they believe in Christ, but they cannot accept the Old Testament. If one believes in Christ, he must accept the Old Testament, because Christ, himself, accepted it. The Old Testament was written before Christ came and He placed His approval upon it. Some say they cannot accept the story of Jonah and the whale. Jesus said: 'As Jonah was three days and three nights in the stomach of the fish, so must the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.' Do you believe in the burial and resurrection of Christ? Then you must believe the story of Jonah."

Tonight the evangelist will speak on the subject: "Outstanding Biblical Prediction Fulfilled." He will point out how the world war and many other modern historical facts

NEW TYPE PLANE ON MEDFORD RUN ATTRACTS CROWD

The new all-metal, high-speed Boeing transport plane which soon will be clipping time off present air schedules between Medford and other cities of the country was exhibited here for the first time today as it halted briefly en route from Seattle to Oakland. For twenty minutes Medford citizens had an opportunity to inspect the radically new features of the transport as it was serviced at the local airport.

According to Phil Sharp, Medford representative of United Air Lines the plane is one of 60 being built by the Boeing Airplane company for the Pacific coast, coast-to-coast and other routes of United. It has been operating on the Portland Seattle section of the Pacific coast route, to which it will return after several days at Oakland.

The ship, without any passengers, arrived in Medford in an hour and 22 minutes from Portland, piloted by John Hodgson and his co-pilot, William Sherman. The plane traveled at a rate of 170 miles an hour, against headwinds. In 35 minutes, the twin-engine ship cruised from the Boeing port in Seattle to Portland, an average of 160 miles per hour.

The Boeing is being taken to Oakland, to be transferred to the Transcontinental lines.

A beautiful steel gray, with low-swinging wings, the twin-engine monoplane made a perfect three-point landing as it glided down the Medford runway. A large crowd of local people visited the port to inspect this new ship, the first of its kind to travel this line.

Another plane of the same model made the regular run through Med-
