MATTHEWS FINED, SENTENCED, GIVEN 90 DAYS TO PAY

Raleigh Matthews of the Eagle Point district, charged with drunken driving was sentenced Saturday morning by Justice of the Peace Coleman, to serve 30 days in jail, pay a fine of $150. The court warned Matthews to "keep out of autos and stay on the ranch." A stay of execution was granted on the sentence, and 90 days granted in which to pay the fine.

Attorney Charles Reames told the court that Matthews entered a plea of guilty to the charge, though there was technical doubt about it. He was not driving the auto but was seated in it with one Otto King it was charged that the "press had created a prejudice against Matthews," and there was "prejudice also in the Eagle Point district."

The court informed the defendant and counsel, that the leniency was extended because of the father, Green Matthews, who is seriously ill with paralysis and "with the understanding that Mr. Matthews stays home and works on the ranch, and helps his father."

The court warned Matthews that any future arrest would "make it tough."

In barring you from the use of your auto, a hardship is worked," the court said, "but if you want to go places, you will have to use a horse, until the suspension of your driver's license for one year is up."

"You have had enough experience to know you can't get away with driving an auto during this period, and I warn you against trying it. If you do the law enforcement agencies will pick you up again."

The court suggested, in his remarks, "to go down to the barn to have your good times, and don't come to Medford in an auto."

Matthews told the court he would be busy operating two ranches this summer. His brother, Nye Matthews, is serving a jail sentence for the same offense.

PYROIL OIL AUTO COMPLETES TEST RUN GOOD SHAPE

Completing a run of 1019 miles without the use of any oil except Pyroil treated gasoline, the Model A Ford Pick-up car driven by Frank Hull and Chris Wolff finished the test run Saturday without any damage to the motor, according to the judge. Phil Lounsberry accompanied the car during the run. The Medford Oil Depot, 207 South Riverside managed by Wolff and Hull is the local distributor for the new Pyroil lubrication process.

Previous to starting the test drive, the Ford car was examined by officials and observers, who sealed the gasoline tank and drained the crankcase.

The main part of the remarkable run was made Friday and the Ford was placed in the fire hall Friday evening at 7:05 o'clock in the care of Chief Roy Elliott.

The Pyroil treated automobile was driven at an ordinary speed practically all of the 1019 miles, idling about an hour and thirty minutes of that time. The motor was stopped only thirty-five minutes.

Local motorists have received the advent of Pyroil with enthusiasm, according to the Medford Oil Depot owners who conducted the test run to prove that a Pyroil treated motor will not suffer severe damage if operated for some time without oil.

Mrs. B. L. Sanderson was announced today as the artist who has been preparing the Pyroil program over KMEM.

Mrs. Sanderson's delightful voice won the enthusiastic praise of many radio fans who enjoyed her programs.
