LIQUOR CANS TO HOLD MILK NOW

Twenty-nine 10-gallon milk cans, used in the illegal transportation of alcohol last summer, were sold at a sheriff's sale yesterday afternoon to the Taylor Bros. dairy, the Wyant dairy, and A. Rubenstein. The total sale amount realized was $41.43. A number of bottles—quarts and pints—and number of tin containers want with the milk can purchases.

The containers once contained various kinds and grades of liquor, around which a political storm flared, and was the subject of a grand jury count. Some of the liquor is alleged to have disappeared, and some to have been transformed into water. Spoken for the "good government congress," for a time advanced as justification and an alibi for the illicit trade, the reputed missing liquor, and one lady orator charged that the bottles had been stolen to cover up the booze shortage. Before the indictment of 22 men, for the brazen and bungled courthouse crime.

Sheriff-Appointee Oimscheld, a few days after assuming office, dumped the troublesome liquor into the court house sewer, so he could have a clean vault, and a clean slate on which to keep his records of seized liquor.

LOUD SPEAKER AIDED CARAVAN HANDLING

"One of the hardest working fellows I have ever met in my life," this statement was made by Roy Shreve, general chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Crater Lake caravan committee in appreciation of the efforts of George Austin who was in charge of the Standard Oil loud speaking equipment car during the caravan.

"By using the loud speaking equipment at the lake, we were able to notify everyone exactly what was going on," further stated Mr. Shreve, "and the work of Mr. Austin in giving publicity to the event on Saturday in Grants Pass, Ashland and Medford cannot be minimized and I hope that in any future events which Medford may put on, we shall be favored by having his able and willing assistance."
