

"Pussyfoot" Johnson Dry Crusader Is Scheduled for Address Here May 17th

One of the most interesting fights in the struggle for "America sober" has ever produced is "Pussyfoot" Johnson, a world figure because of his undaunted courage. He will visit Medford May 17 and speak at the Baptist church.

William E. Johnson of McDonough, New York, internationally famous, is known all over the world by the nickname "Pussyfoot" Johnson. Comparatively few, however, know how he got his title.

When Theodore Roosevelt was president of the United States, one of his problems was enforcement of federal prohibition laws covering Indian reservations. In that time he had in mind the heads of whiskey barrels in outlaw liquor joints.

Because of the remarkable success of Johnson's endeavors to slip into the lawless communities unnoticed, the Indians called him "Pussyfoot." The nickname stuck and thus he is known throughout the civilized world.

One of the big rum racketeers of the time in that section openly boasted that no man could raid his joint and live. He published the fact that he was looking for "Pussyfoot" and would greet him on sight with a half of hot lead. News of this reached "Pussyfoot" as it was intended that he should. Not long after a stranger walked up to the bar of the boastful bootlegger. He called for whiskey, sampled the same, threw it on the floor and demanded "real he-man fire water."

The bartender filled a glass from a special bottle on the back bar and then turned to look into a pair of forty-fives. "Heard you were looking for Pussyfoot Johnson; well I'm here," said the soft-voiced, smiling stranger behind the guns. In a few moments another outlaw was retired from the business of selling fire-water to the Indians, and the incident added to the fame of "Pussyfoot" Johnson as an officer whose raids were never tipped off in advance.

Since his earlier face to face conflicts with the lawless liquor dealers, "Pussyfoot" Johnson has traveled on every continent and spoken in almost every country advocating the principles of prohibition.

In London he lost an eye for the dry cause when a hoodlum hit him with a cobble stone while a mob of students were carrying him through the streets of the city. The King of England sent a message of sympathy, and London admirers raised a fund to pay for his injury. "Pussyfoot" thanked the King, sent the money to a local hospital for the blind, cheerfully declared his remaining eye would see the world go dry, and invited the students to join a real fight—the battle against John Barleycorn.

While making a transcontinental tour under the auspices of the Anti-Liquor League of America he comes to Medford under the auspices of the Medford Ministers' union, supported by the Rogue River Ministers' association, the Jackson County W. C. T. U., the Jackson County Civic League and the United Young Peoples' societies of Southern Oregon.

Accompanying him is Thomas W. Gates of Fargo, North Dakota, who made his first temperance speech when only 15 years of age. At 19 he was a detective in the city of Montreal, helping enforce the law against the liquor dealers in that city. He faced the best liquor lawyers in Canada and lost only four of a hundred cases in which he had gathered evidence against saloon keepers who violated the law forbidding sale to boys and girls of young men.

So effective was the work of young Gates that threats were made against his life. At one time he was assaulted on the street by a gang of hoodlums, who resented his dry efforts, and at another time he narrowly escaped assassination when a shot fired by one of his enemies perforated his hat.

Following his earlier experiences in the warfare against strong drink while in Canada, Gates came to Chicago to study for the ministry. He became associate pastor with Dr. Johnston Myers of the Emmanuel Baptist church, and was placed in charge of the Central Mission on South Clark street in that city. Here night after night he saw the effects of the saloon as he worked to help the hundreds of hopeless drunkards who spent all they could beg in the bar-rooms.

Following his experience in the ministry, Gates joined the forces of the Anti-Saloon league first in Wisconsin, and then as the state superintendent in North Dakota. In the latter state he has been the leader in the fight to prevent repeal of prohibition laws, directing state-wide campaigns and opposing the efforts of the wet forces at the state capitol. He is decidedly worth hearing.

All who are not afraid to hear the truth about the liquor question will make special efforts to hear these men.

does not include the Medford and Ashland graduation list.

Most rural schools will be out on May 19, Bowman said, although some will run later than this date.

Gold Hill's school board has offered full nine months' contracts to its teachers, at no reduction in salary. Gold Hill is one of the few districts offering a full year's contract, and one of the few not making large cuts in salaries.

Evans Valley

EVANS CREEK, May 2—(Spl.) Mrs. Alice Cosner of Tacoma is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Smith and caring for her mother who lately underwent an operation at the Grants Pass hospital. Mrs. Smith is convalescing nicely and is able to get around now.

Messrs. N. A. DeVeager, Joe Veager and Hugh Cline, Mrs. Ada Russell and daughter Miss Elaine and the Misses Lola and Ida Thomas, all of Los Angeles, returned to California Friday after having spent two weeks visiting Mrs. Catherine N. Law and Mrs. Barto at their ranch. These Californians had many interesting tales to tell of the earthquake. They liked southern Oregon and expect to return at a not far distant date, being interested in ranching and mining.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Moore from New Mexico and Mr. Rasmussen of Gold Hill spent a couple of days at Mrs. Law's home this week looking over the prospects for a mine.

Ted Hatch and his brother Arlie of Rogue River are finishing up their mining work for this season on Mrs. Law's place, owing to the fact that the irrigators need the water. They took out some very good quality gold which brought the highest price but did not strike the main channel.

Mr. Bruneau of Idaho, a mining engineer is prospecting the Pitman place at present for gold, employing five assistants.

Mrs. Catherine N. Law and Mrs. Barto attended Pomona grange at Wimer last Saturday. Mrs. Barto had a two fold purpose, the most important was to supply a generous sample of "Rogue River" cheese made by the Central Point cheese factory, a complimentary donation from the Churchill brothers who own the factory and who are introducing a very fine quality of cheese into this vicinity and offering the farmers a splendid opportunity to market their milk.

Her second purpose was to explain to the approximately one hundred grangers in attendance the details of the contest being put on by the Oregon Grange Bulletin.

Miss Gillis visited Mrs. Law Thursday. Miss Gillis is a homesteader in section 17, having built a nice little shingle bungalow and made other improvements on her claim.

Mr. Hoye of Gold Hill was calling in this vicinity looking at real estate last week.

Mrs. Catherine Norman Law and daughter Mrs. Barto transacted business in Medford Friday.

KIWANIANS TOLD OF SCHOOLS CARE FOR HANDICAPPED CHILD

The splendid work carried on in the Medford schools for the underprivileged child, was described yesterday by Miss Louise Basford, instructor, who specializes in research work relative to improvement of educational facilities for the handicapped child, at the meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Hotel Medford. There are 33 pupils receiving special instruction in the Medford schools because of handicaps, she stated, and a great effort is being made to educate them into lines where they will be able to enjoy life and work, in spite of their afflictions.

The musical program for yesterday's luncheon was furnished by Violet Pearson, who played several accordion numbers, accompanied at the piano by Miss Ruth Hanstrom and Dixie and Cortha Churchill, who presented several cowboy numbers, also accompanied by Miss Ranstrom.

PROLETARIAT AND TROOPS OF SOVIET MARCH IN REVIEW

May Day Celebration Is Marked by Huge Parade Past Stalin Stationed Atop Tomb of Lenin in Moscow

MOSCOW, May 2—(AP)—While a bright sun beat down on Red Square, the proletariat and the military power of the soviet union passed in review yesterday before the highest officials of the government and of the communist party, in the annual May day demonstration.

From the time a 101-gun salute boomed out from the Kremlin battlements, signaling the beginning of the celebration at 10:00 a. m. until the last section of the shouting and cheering workers passed through the square late in the evening, Joseph V. Stalin, head of the communist party, stood with his colleagues on the reviewing stand on top of the tomb of Lenin.

Wears Frozen Smile.

With frequent waxes of his hand and a fixed smile, Stalin acknowledged the ovation from thousands of cheering throats.

At least a million persons, including between 35,000 and 50,000 troops of the Moscow garrison, participated in the tumultuous but well-ordered demonstration.

Conspicuous by their absence from the diplomatic section of the reviewing stands were the official British representatives in Moscow, none of whom attended because of the present strained relations between the two countries from the Metropolitan-Vickers sabotage case.

Huge Military Display.

Attired in summer uniforms for the first time this year, the soldiers, with a sprinkling of sailors and marines, presented a colorful appearance as every unit of a full army corps paraded. Overhead 350 airplanes dived low in salute to the traditional day of the worker.

Clemence Voroshilov, commissar of war, mounted a dashing horse and first received the oath of fidelity from the troops massed in the square.

Then infantry, cavalry, armored cars, artillery, tanks, and anti-aircraft guns swept past in a procession lasting two hours and forty minutes. Giant Tanks Seen.

More than a score of gigantic tanks painted a battleship gray and mounted three-inch guns in the turret, provided something new for foreign spectators, who never had seen tanks so powerful in previous demonstrations.

After the military exhibition thousands of workers and peasants poured into the square from three streets, forming a solid, seething mass of humanity, filling the whole square as they marched singly through, singing, yelling, cheering and waving endless banners, effigies and signs chronicling the progress of socialist construction.

In a brief speech to the military Voroshilov extended greetings to the "workers of the world."

"In our country, only," he said, "we are the masters, while in the western countries demonstrations today will be met by police rifles and machine guns."

He did not refer to international relations.

SALEM, May 2—(AP)—The annual May festival of Willamette university will be held here Friday and Saturday. Bernice Rickman of Salem will be Queen of May.

BANKS FLOODED WITH LAW SUITS FOR NINE YEARS

Thirty-five legal actions, both civil and criminal, have been filed against L. A. Banks in circuit court in Jackson county since 1924, according to the files at the county clerk's office. Twenty-nine actions were civil, and six criminal.

Included in the criminal actions is a grand jury indictment for criminal syndacism, dated February 20, and an indictment for burglary not in a dwelling in connection with the ballot thefts, dated March 15. Two actions were for criminal libel, and one for contempt of court. The murder indictment was the last, and the one upon which he is now being tried.

Most of the civil actions are for money allegedly due others. Although some were for damages for libel.

The list was prepared for use in the trial at Eugene.

NEGLECT OF COMMON CONSTIPATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Prevent This Condition With Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious disease.

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this "cereal way" safer and far more pleasant than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
