NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—Francis A. Jamieson, 38-year-old Associated Press correspondent, who scooped the world in the Lindbergh case, has been awarded the 1932 Pulitzer prize of $1000 for the "best example of a reporter's work."

Other awards announced last night were: A $500 gold medal for the "most distinguished and meritorious public service" to the New York World-Telegram for articles on veterans' relief, real estate mortgage bonds, fraternal lotteries and the campaign to roll up a big "write-in" vote for Joseph V. McKee in last year's municipal election.

A $500 prize for the "best editorial" to the Kansas City Star. This was in recognition of a series on national and international subjects, and particularly on governmental economy, prepared by or under the direction of Editor Henry J. Haackell.

A $500 prize for the "best cartoon work" to H. M. Tallant of the Washington Daily News and other Scripps-owned newspapers. This was won by a cartoon showing a huge fist labeled Japan, holding a burning sheaf of paper labeled the Nine-Power Treaty.

Honorable Mention Given. Honorable mention went to five reporters—Edward J. Nell, Associated Press sports writer, for his story of a ride down the Olympic bobled run at Lake Placid, N. Y.; Lee McCordell of the Baltimore Evening Sun and Thomas H. Henry of the Washington Evening Star for stories on the bonus army; Chester G. Hansen of the Los Angeles Times for a series on the transient unemployed, and Carl Randau of the New York World-Telegram for accounts of the legislative investigation of the New York City government.

Honorable mention for public service went to the Detroit Free Press for articles entitled "War on Waste; Save the People's Money," and to the Philadelphia Record for its successful drive against a proposed municipal income tax.

Jamieson, in charge of the Trenton, N. J., bureau of the Associated Press, obtained much exclusive news and several "bests" in the Lindbergh kidnaping mystery. His flash on the tragic discovery of the baby's body traveled around the world 45 minutes ahead of other news agencies.

RAIN UNTIL JULY PREDICTS HERRIOT

A spring similar to that of 1915, when dust failed to fly in southern Oregon before July, was forecast today by Ed Herriot, driver of the Hotel Medford bus.

"It started just like this in 1915," Ed told listeners at the Southern Pacific platform, "and it continued with short intermissions until the first of July. I was driving the mail to Crescent City then and the roads were wet until midsummer. The same kind of a rain, yes sir. It might let up, but I'm not expecting it, only off and on."

The roads were slick into Crescent City then, according to Ed, who has known the country for many a year. The new roads hadn't been built and climbing the old grades in the rain was no easy task. "Wouldn't matter so much now, such a rain," he decided after discussing the situation fully this morning, and would "please carholders and wood dealers, yes sir."

10,000 HEAD OF SHEEP PERISHED

WYDELETON, Ore., May 3.—(AP)—No further loss in Umatilla county sheep flocks as the result of the sudden cold storm Saturday and Sunday, was reported today, but wool growers believe 10,000 head perished. Damage was widespread.

The lowest temperature Saturday was 40, and the highest 44 degrees. Nearly all of the sheep that perished had been recently shorn and were being returned to the mountain ranges. The sudden cold and rain resulted in chills and colds from which sheep die quickly.

The storm struck without warning and herders were unable to get the animals into shelter quickly enough to prevent serious loss.

GERMAN YOUTHS, RICH AND POOR, TO BE DRAFTED

Hitler Plans Great Army for Training in Service of the Fatherland—Wipe Out All Class Distinction

BERLIN, May 3.—(AP)—Chancellor Adolph Hitler proposes to draft every German youth, rich or poor, in a great army to be trained physically in service to the Fatherland.

There will be no exemptions made in the enrolling of this huge disciplined force, he declared last night in further explanation of his long advocated compulsory labor program. As originally disclosed by him two months ago, the plan is aimed to wipe out all class distinctions in Germany by what he termed the "ennobling and purifying" process of labor by hand.

Details of Plan Given. In his speech before 1,500,000 Berlin residents, he elaborated on his plans for the future of German workers and farmers. Germany had waited nearly three months to hear the details of the two four-year plans he announced immediately after becoming chancellor—for the salvation of the farmer and the worker.

In expounding his program, he assailed foreign nations which he said sought to destroy Germany.

"We will never bow our necks to a foreign yoke; we want peace and, lo, other nations turn against us, but they will not succeed," he shouted. He told his hearers they were "not second rate, even if the world wants you to be a thousand times."

Eight Points Drawn. The eight parts of the program he laid down were:

1. A fight by the government to keep the power in its hands.
2. Awakening of the self-confidence of the German people.
3. A campaign to convince the people that the government seeks only their own welfare.
4. Compulsory labor service for youth of all classes.
5. Freedom from parliamentarism and "majority votes" for all creative business and industry.
6. Relief for agriculture, thereby aiding factory and white collar workers.
7. Reduction of unemployment by private owners undertaking house repairs and by an elaborate public works program sponsored by the government.
8. Reduction of interest rates and a trade policy to stabilize German production while protecting the farmers.

FIRST OF FOREST CAMPS LOCATED

Jackson county's first "reforestation camp" will be established at Seattle Bar, on the Big Applegate, near the California line, according to word from the forest service office. It is believed the line of 218 men. Present plans are for 40 of the men to be enlisted from Jackson county.

Forest service officials are expecting the arrival of an army officer today to inspect the camp site, and to make plans for the selection of men. It is believed the line of 218 local men will be made up from those already signed up at county relief headquarters here, without having to issue another call. The county relief committee has been busy at the city hall for two days making up the list.

More camps will be established in southern Oregon in the near future, forest officials said.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN CAR SMASHUP

ROSEBURG, May 3.—(AP)—The body of a man believed to be C. B. Hurst, 31, Portland mechanic, was found late last night, pinned under the wreckage of his automobile about two miles south of Tiller on the Tiller-Trail cut-off road. The auto and trailer had evidently skidded over a 75-foot grade, killing the driver instantly. The wreck was discovered about half an hour after the accident.

Coroner H. C. Stearns and Deputy Sheriff Clifford Thonson, who investigated the accident, state that identification was made through cards found in the dead man's wallet.

Beer Drinkers of Today Lack Former Technique

The technique of beer drinking ain't what it used to be. Here were the words and music to a theme song, woefully chorused by old-timers both inside and outside local dispensaries this morning.

"Beer hasn't the authority with the old football gone," said one. Then there was the brass spittoon nearby, to carry out the color note," he added. "That cuspidor (to you) loaned emphasis to many a self-liquidating argument."

"Beer will never seem natural until the growler days return," argued another gentleman of experience. "Of course they'll have to put thru some legislation against greasing the growler if the government expects to continue greasing the treasury with the resultant monetary inflow."

Then, as usual, women came in for a certain share of the blame. According to some of the new beer drinkers, there are too many women frequenting the beer "palaces" and intruding lady-like manners into the art of beer quaffing.

"The majority of the modern beer drinkers" sighed one local proprietor, "still have the homelier technique, and insist upon leaving several ounces in the bottom of the bottle, for fear of disturbing the imaginary dregs. It really an insult to the commercial brewers."

"There's nothing that takes the edge off of beer drinking like the depression blues," declared another. The modern beer guzzler has no soul. His whole anxiety is to get his money's worth out of each glass. There used to be that pretty and nonchalant little gesture of blowing the foam off the top of the stein. Now they grab their glass in both hands and gulp it down, foam and all. It's too bad when people get that way."

Yes, the technique of beer drinking has changed. But, if the old timers are to be trusted, the thirst is just the same.

ALL CLASSES IN SALEM SOUP LINE

SALEM, May 3.—(AP)—Aviators, professional musicians, cameramen and civil engineers mingled with hundreds of other unemployed who sought meals and a night's lodging here last month at the "Hotel de Minto," above the police station.

Chief of Police Frank Minto established the "hotel" more than two years ago to keep transients from "bumming" in the residential districts.

Meals are prepared by 318-pound "Heavy" Yonkers, who was himself a "roaster" when he came to Hotel de Minto some months ago.

"Heavy" served meals last month to 1558 persons, representing every state in the union and 23 foreign countries. Three were women and four were children.

The register showed that 104 different occupations were represented. Included were sailors, cowboys, radio operators, telegraph operators, a glass blower, a trapper and a purser. Also there were tobacco and cotton pickers, these occupations being given by negroes.

Almost one-third of the patrons were under 21 years old.

WIDER EAST MAIN STREET PROPOSED AT COUNCIL MEET

torneys, however, have informed the finance committee that they would prefer to have the matter passed on by the supreme court before accepting the bonds. Harder also suggested that coupons on outstanding bonds be made payable at the city recorder's office here, instead of in New York, so the city can get the names and addresses of all bondholders, thus enabling the city to negotiate directly with bondholders with refunding plans.

Harder said he believed it would be impossible to sell new bonds at this time, and that refunding would be the only logical solution to the bonds falling due next year.

The petition presented by Hubbard asks that Main street be widened five feet from Front to Riverside; seven and one-half feet from the east end of the bridge to the east end of the bridge approach, and thirteen feet eight inches from the east end of the approach to Almond street.

Modern Lights Asked. Improvement of the lighting system from Front to Riverside was also asked by the installation of an ornamental lighting system.

Costs of the improvement will be assessed against property owners, according to the petition, with part of the improvement work, mainly the lighting, being bonded under the Bancroft law. Property owners will be assessed $2.70 a front foot for widening costs, and $3 a front foot for lighting cost.

The council also voted to dispense with the services of Harry Moore, manager of the unemployed association, on the grounds that there was no money to pay Moore. The council highly complimented Moore for the work he has done, and intimated that if taxes were paid, finances may be made available so he can be put back at the head of the group. It is the hope of the council that some plan of co-operation between the Medford association of unemployed and the county relief council can be worked out.

Moore declared that several projects were underway closely affecting the unemployed, such as gardening and wood cutting, but the council was determined in its stand.

Announcement was made that the state industrial accident commission had awarded Mrs. George Prescott $30 a month compensation, so long as she remains a widow.

WRIGHTS TAKING LONG VACATION

Embarking on his first real vacation in ten years, M. C. (Doc) Wright, accompanied by Mrs. Wright, left early today for a month's motor trip through California. They took the inland route and expected to return to Medford by the coast highway.

Mr. Wright sold the Auto Supply and Parts company business to Littrell Parts company April 1, after being associated with that firm continuously since January, 1923. Doc Wright organized the Auto Supply and Parts at that time with Jerry Jerome as a partner. For several years Chal Strange was in partnership with Mr. Wright, succeeding E. C. Jerome.

Before selecting another location, the Wrights intend to look into conditions in California and other sections of Oregon.
