

TRIAL SPECTATORS EXPRESS VARYING IDEAS ON RESULT

Stories told by persons returning from Eugene, where they attended the trial of L. A. and Edith B. Banks, for the murder of George Prescott, vary greatly in respect to the probable outcome of the trial.

Early in the morning reports here, Eugene residents were willing to bet five to one that both would be acquitted of the charges. Other reports were that indications were strong for conviction.

Chief among the reasons given for belief that the two would be acquitted were that "such a respectable looking couple couldn't possibly be guilty of the charges against them."

Other opinions voiced were that "with so many lawsuits against them, it is apparent that they were being picked on by the officers and people of the county."

Another, returning from Eugene this morning, reported that Banks' lawyers are having a time with him, trying to convince him he shouldn't get on the witness stand himself.

Mrs. Ariel B. Pomroy, strong Banks follower and a leading member of the "good government congress" returned to Medford Saturday with optimistic reports for congressmen who could not attend the trial.

Many from here plan to attend the trial when the defense in the "good government congress" returned to Medford Saturday with optimistic reports for congressmen who could not attend the trial.

Robert Shaw of Medford resigned as president and George Mason of Ashland was elected to fill the vacancy. Several plans were discussed and it was finally decided that each young people's society should have several meetings and discuss the need for the retention of the 18th amendment.

No definite plans were made except that the organization would back the Civic League in every way possible. The next meeting is to be in Central Point, May 28, and all young people's societies are expected to have at least one representative.

By using a systematic and careful follow-up on these inquiries the Chamber of Commerce hopes that it will be able to bring to the Rogue River valley a number of new settlers. In this work the organization is receiving splendid cooperation from the Medford Real Estate board.

Any firm desiring more boys is asked to communicate with the chamber of commerce or Glenn Smith, principal of the high school, so that arrangements can be made to have the desired number of boys required.

WELFARE BUREAU SHOWS EXTENSIVE ACCOMPLISHMENT

Finer friendships, growing out of many working hours together—distribution of clothing to the tune of 30,000 garments to the needy in Jackson county, and the making of 148 quilts to keep that many families warm, were high spots in the report released today by the Welfare Exchange, through the chairman, Miss Helen Carlton.

The report covers a period beginning the second week in October and ending May 1, when the exchange was closed for the summer season. The shop employed 100 women a month during its continuance. Each shopping day in the old city hall brought echoes of the humming of many speeding sewing machines and chery voices calling greetings and thanks. And from the greetings, the day, working busily together for the welfare of all, have evolved many understandings and friendships, which will bring Jackson county something more than physical relief of the destitute, was the opinion advanced today by Miss Carlton.

The sum of $145 was received by the Exchange for carrying on the shop and relief work. Of that amount $15 remains in the bank to start the new season, if continuance of the shop is found necessary next fall. Thirty-five women donated their services to the shop during the winter season, making its existence possible at so small a cost. No one received money for work done. The needy were paid in an exchange of materials and products for labor. Minimum prices were placed on products as a basis of exchange.

Cooperation with the county commission, the Red Cross, the Medford Unemployed association, and the Lions' relief kitchen also brought about many worthwhile achievements. Pillows were made for the sleeping quarters at the Lions' relief agency and 75 garments were made for the Red Cross. All money spent by the Exchange was spent at local shops and the courtesy and cooperation extended by the citizens in general was highly commended by Miss Carlton today, when she voiced her appreciation of all assistance.

The committee working with her in carrying on the Exchange was composed of Miss Helen Bullis, Mrs. Ralph Bouteille, Mrs. H. D. McCoskey, Mrs. David Rosenberg, Mrs. Glen Smith, Mrs. Robert Munter, Mrs. Roy Duncan, Mrs. Henry Fuhrer and the Misses Frances and Harriet Sparrow. Perchance the Exchange is reopened in the fall, Miss Carlton asks that all persons going through their closets in summer have all extra garments located to donate them to this project, which has developed finer relief practices by enabling the people to work for what they receive.

FRISCO TERMINAL AND FERRY BURN. OAKLAND, Calif., May 9.—(AP)—Cause of the $3,000,000 fire which destroyed the Key route terminal in San Francisco Bay, a ferry boat and rolling stock of the combination ferry-interurban train system remained undetermined here today. The fire, which broke out Saturday night and burned with spectacular fury for several hours, was believed to have started on a ferry slip where a barge had been unloading fuel oil. Warehouses, office and terminal sheds crumbled in the red glow that could be seen for miles. The ferry boat Peralta, valued at a million dollars, broke loose from its slip and drifted into the bay, a floating torch. Electric passenger cars, valued at $750,000, toppled into the water in flames as the open trestle beneath them burned.

ROOSEVELT IRKED WHEN M'DONALD UNABLE DELIVER

play Santa Claus when she accepted our tariff truce. She was just in a better position than England. She has tariff quotas which guard her securely against depreciated currencies. Also she reserved the right to alter those quotas when she took the truce.

It is an open secret in the highest places here (and has been for months) that she must cut her army for reasons of economy and efficiency. Her agreement for certain arms reductions therefore is less philanthropic than budgetary.

Even Mr. Roosevelt himself was annoyed by the Maryland criticism of his fiscal policies, particularly from the Baltimore Sun. That newspaper reaches every breakfast table here, including the president's. Many a democratic dish of ham and eggs has been ruined by the recent anti-inflation editorials of the Sun. The outstanding critic of the original bank moratorium policy was Gov. Ritchie of Maryland.

The liberal gesture was astounding. Up to now nobody but a conservative has been allowed inside the treasury by the administration. Liberals get jobs in other departments, but not in there.

Securities bill will privately admit it is rather toothless. Many of its 84 pages are filled with exemptions. Excluded from the bill are municipal and state bonds, railroad securities and all securities now outstanding. It is in no sense a national Blue Sky law. It requires only that the true financial condition of future issuing corporations be filed with the federal trade commission.

It should help rather than hurt the marketing of securities with the public inside efforts were made to strengthen the measure. Nearly everyone agreed it could not be done without transgressing the constitution. As it stands it fulfills Mr. Roosevelt's campaign promise. He is not completely satisfied but will take it. Originally he thought there might be some chance of purging the existing stock lists, but that proved impossible. Years of labor would be required before it could be done.

Many a loggette has been dropped in horror at the lengths to which the New Deal went at Mr. Roosevelt's dinner for Premier MacDonald. It seems scandalous but it is nevertheless true that there were actually no place cards for the guests. Each

They allipped the under-secretary-ship of treasury to a Maryland liberal so as to keep the wolves quiet over there.

The move probably will not have the desired effect. The appointee Dean Acheson is a good man, but his Maryland residence consists of maintaining a summer home in Washington suburb.
