Convention for B. P. W. Club at Coquille, May 19

Next week-end members of the Business and Professional Women's club from this city and all sections of the state will meet at Coquille for state convention, May 19, 20 and 21. An elaborate program has been prepared by the coast city for the 13th annual state meeting and one of the chief speakers will be Emma R. Yearlan of Lemhi, Idaho, of whom the following sketch is released:

"Few women in the United States can boast such a picturesque career as Mrs. Emma R. Yearlan of Lemhi, Idaho, sheep and member of the Idaho state legislature. From its original motivation to its climatic success her business history reads like a romance.

"The desire to provide a college education for the five Yearlan children first made her a business woman. A school teacher from the east, married to an Idaho cattleman, she vainly sought to persuade him to abandon his long horns in favor of the sheep she was sure would be much more profitable.

"Eventually, however, he did allow her to start a flock of her own and she bought fifteen sheep, which she kept close to the ranch house, where she might always watch over them.

"With the proceeds of her first year's sales of wool she increased the size of her flock. By and by she found it necessary to employ a few herdsmen. Then her business grew until in prosperous years she employed fifteen hands during the busy season, and ran 5,000 sheep on a 2,000-acre ranch, and often had to ride twenty-five to thirty miles to inspect her entire flock.

"With the increase in the magnitude of her business interests, Mrs. Yearlan acquired a business philosophy adequate to their demands. In fortunate years she often realized more than $100,000 from her flock. In bad times, she dropped $60,000 to $70,000 uncomplainingly. But in the main her enterprises succeeded, she educated her children and became known far and wide as one of Idaho's big business women. Late in 1930 she was honored by being elected to the Idaho state legislature, serving her first term in 1931. During that term she was given the chairmanship of the state library committee, and served on three other important committees, the highways, livestock and mining committees.

"Mrs. Yearlan made her first trip to Europe in the summer of 1929 with the Good Will Tour of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs.

"She has been a loyal and enthusiastic member of the federation, and is keenly interested in women in business, and eager that they may be given every possible opportunity and advantage."

Although the blooming of roses in the Rogue River valley has been greatly retarded by cloudy days, members of the Medford Garden club are already busy with plans for the annual flower show, the event which best expresses the character of true southern Oregonians, ever desirous of lovelier homes and bryways.

This year's show will be held May 31 and June 1 at the Senior high school gymnasium. Charles Voorhies, well known local artist, is already laying out the floor plan for the general arrangements committee.

Miss Mae Carlton, acting chairman of the show, stated yesterday.

Since the blooming season is late this year, all flower fanciers are urged to start planning now for entering all blooms possible in the show. The committees are anxious to make the displays as large as in past years in spite of nature's lack of generosity.
