

BUY SUPPLIES FOR 4000 WORKMEN IN MEDFORD STORES

The reserve, four enlisted men of the regular army and 212 conservation corps workmen.

Each unit will be equipped for its own maintenance, as to mess, quarters, equipment, and they will even make their own bread when the camps are established.

The recruits are not under army discipline in these camps. They are paid $30 a month, with a large portion allotted to a dependent.

The government is expending approximately 33 cents a day for each man's rations. They are required to pass physical qualifications of a laborer, and if absent three days, are dropped from the corps.

The advance unit for the Applegate camp arrived here last Saturday, and the parties for the other camps will be here by the 26th of May.

The entire set-up is expected to be complete by June 30, with men probably being brought in from other corps areas. He said it was possible that some of the recruits will be brought in here from the east.

In the district headquarters, which were being established today on the second floor of the old city hall, donated through the cooperation of the city council, five officers will be on the staff with 40 enlisted men from the regular army and 200 corps men.

The equipment for the offices was being brought in today by truck, mostly from Port Mason at San Francisco.

The conservation corps is buying some 25 trucks for use in distribution, and three were expected to arrive in Medford today.

With only one exception, tent camps are to be put up in all of the southern Oregon areas. The specifications show that the Kerby camp will be lumber.

Arriving this morning by motor, to take over duties here, were Major Gearhart, infantry; First Lieutenant Jones, field artillery; and Lieutenant Ross, corps of engineers.

Edmund Nelson Hebert, infantry, arrived with Major Armstrong yesterday, and Captain Steven Massey of the regular army is en route here from Washington, D. C., having left the capital two days ago.

Major Bibbhaus, medical surgeon, with the regular army, is also to be located here.

Men will be enrolled at the district headquarters here, but a few will be taken in at the camps. Major Armstrong pointed out, he emphasized the fact that all men who are put in the camps, must be hired by the department of labor, and that he will be unable to be of any assistance to applicants.

Supplies for the district are to be bought on the bid system, and calls will be issued from time to time for necessary purchases.

Although housing, feeding, clothing and care of the men are duties of the army division, the forest service is in charge of the work to be done by the recruits.

Karl L. Janouch, assistant superintendent of Rogue River national forest said this morning that the work program has not been completed, but will be released as soon as all plans have been arranged.

Through the headquarters of the civic conservation corps, a division of authority and responsibility between the forest agencies and the army has been specified as follows:

TESTIMONY FOR BANKS IS SHOT FULL OF HOLES

voice to a threat against Banks, in Nandie's cafe in mid-afternoon, both he and Prescott were in the grand jury room at the court house, waiting to be called as witnesses before that body.

Threat Reported

Mrs. Powell testified that she overheard Prescott make a purported threat against Banks between three and three thirty o'clock, the day before the killing, and that she telephoned Banks, and later appeared at his home, to tell him about it.

R. A. Boyce, Tolo farmer, testified that about the same time, he talked to Prescott on Main street, near Nandie's cafe.

Sergeant O'Brien testified that on the morning of the murder, he "absolutely did not pick up a gun" dropped from Prescott's hand, as testified to by Mrs. May Murray, and her daughter, Mrs. Effie Lewis.

The two women claimed in their testimony, that they had seen Prescott with a gun in his hand, just before the fatal shot was fired, on the Banks porch, and had heard Prescott say, "I'll get you—you!"

Mrs. Banks, on cross-examination earlier in the day, testified that when she was standing at the door Prescott "said nothing."

Sergeant O'Brien was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Attorney Lonergan, and the defense counsel, twitted the state police sergeant about not "referring to your notebook this time," but their testimony was not shaken.

Alibi for both sides agreed, that insanity was hard to define, and that only a few medical authorities, had attempted to write a definition that covered all angles. All questions were brief.

Banks, after the alibi left the stand, manifested the most cheerfulness he has shown in several days, and was apparently in the best of spirits. After his defense had been denied by impeaching witnesses, as to threats, however, he assumed a more sullen manner.

Mrs. Banks, most of the day, was alert and took a keen interest in the proceedings.

Late in the afternoon she became weary, and sat with bowed head, paying but slight attention to the witnesses.

Jones' Claims Refuted

During the time that Walter Jones, another defense "threat" witness, and mayor of Rogue River, under indictment for ballot-theft, testified he was in the city jail "bull-pen" Sunday, February 26, he was in the women's ward cell, Sergeant O'Brien testified, and that during the time he testified, he had overheard a purported conversation between Joe Cave and Prescott, that Ray Stover was on duty, and Prescott and the witness were making other ballot theft arrests.

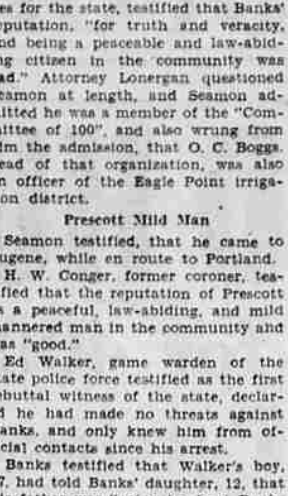

Jones testified that while held in the city jail "bull-pen" he had gone to a wicket to ask for more blankets, and overheard Prescott and Cave talking in which, they both made threats against Banks.

Sergeant O'Brien testified that he was with Prescott, on the same date, until 9:30 o'clock, and that Prescott went home then, and he was on duty at the state police headquarters until four in the morning and Prescott did not return that night, as Jones claimed.

Sergeant Clyde A. Warren, of the state police, testified that he was on guard, on the east side of the Banks residence, from the time the arresting officer arrived, until Banks was arrested, and saw no one leave by the east door. John Wheeler testified that he was invited into the Banks home by Mrs. Banks, after the murder, and a few minutes later left by the east door.

R. T. Seamon, of Eagle Point, engineer for the Eagle Point irrigation district, called as a character witness for the state, testified that Banks' reputation, "for truth and veracity, and being a peaceable and law-abiding citizen in the community was bad." Attorney Lonergan questioned Seamon at length, and Seamon admitted he was a member of the "Committee of 100", and also wrung from him the admission, that O. C. Boggs, head of that organization, was also an officer of the Eagle Point irrigation district.

Prescott Mild Man

Seamon testified, that he came to Eugene, while en route to Portland. H. W. Conner, former coroner, testified that the reputation of Prescott as a peaceful, law-abiding, and mild mannered man in the community and was "good."

Ed Walker, game warden of the state police force testified as the first rebuttal witness of the state, declared he had made no threats against Banks, and only knew him from official contacts since his arrest.

Banks testified that Walker's boy, 17, had told Banks' daughter, 12, that his father was "going to shoot Banks on sight." Banks claimed that when the two arresting officers appeared at his front door, his first thought, was that one of the men was Walker.

Alibi for the defense, Dr. J. Joseph of Portland, and Dr. B. F. Scoble of Eugene, testified Tuesday, at the murder trial, that L. A. Banks was insane at the time of actual firing the death shot, but was not insane before, or now.

Two state alibi men, Dr. George I. Hurley of Eugene, and Dr. C. I. Drummond, Jackson county physician, testified, that Banks was sane — then and now.

The defense alibi men testified that Banks was suffering from "transitory mania" at the time of the tragedy, which was a mental affliction, that did not last for any great length of time, passing almost as quickly as it came, and was a form of frenzy.

The state alibi men declared that the "theory of transitory mania" had been discarded by modern medical authorities, and Dr. W. C. Rebban of Springfield, another state expert, testified, that in his opinion, as did Drs. Hurley and Drummond, Banks was sane at the time of the tragedy, on March 16. Dr. Rebban, further testified, that "transitory mania" was used these days as a "teaching word," and that "transitory mania" was not accepted in many medical circles, as a form of insanity.

The alibi men gave their opinions, from observations of Banks on the witness stand, and in the county jail here, and at Medford.

Dr. Joseph testified that "transitory mania" might be caused by worry, anguish, or anxiety, such as accompanied the tragedy. "Transitory mania" was described as causing the victim, to be possessed of an "overpowering desire to do whatever was in his mind at the time."

Under cross-examination by Attorney Moody, for the state, Dr. Joseph said, that writing threatening letters, and having guns ready to commit murder would not accompany such a form of insanity.

Oil and Water WILL MIX

That's How Cheap Paint is Made!

Are you tempted to buy cheap paint for "economy's sake?" Then come with us now for a little word-visit to a cheap paint factory. See the linseed oil being poured into this vat. That's fine! But what is the paint maker doing now? He's filling up a can with ORDINARY TAP WATER! See him pour that right in with the linseed oil! But oil and water won't mix, will they? They certainly will, if you know the trick!

There are other tricks in making cheap paint too. Chalk and kerosene are cheap. Oh, there are plenty of ways to make a gallon of "paint" out of a quart of honest ingredients!

If the honest paint ingredients stayed just as efficient after the adulterants are mixed in, it wouldn't really matter much. You'd still get a dollar's worth of protection for your dollar. But the adulterants used in cheap paint destroy its protective power! In a very few months, it simply falls off! Your property looks as bad as it did before you painted it! Weather is again getting at it! And the money you have put into labor has been utterly wasted!
