

NO EXCUSE FOR BANKS' CRIME IS STATE'S CLIMAX

(Continued from Page One)

BANKS AND HIS WIFE AIDING, KILLED GEORGE PRESCOTT WITH DELIBERATION, PREMEDITATION AND PREPARATION, AND THE STATE HAS PROVEN THAT THEY DID!

Referring, at various times in his address, to County Judge Earl H. Fehl, Sheriff Gordon L. Schermerhorn and Attorney Tom J. Enright, Moody said:

"Among those indicted for burglary not in a dwelling—the theft of the ballots from the courthouse, were L. A. Banks, and his close friend, Earl H. Fehl, the county judge of Jackson county, but as Mr. Gage said on the witness stand, the ballots were stolen before they could be recounted, upon order of the court."

"The indictments were secret. . . . But Mr. Banks, the evidence shows got grand jury information in advance on this and on other occasions."

"Judge Fehl admitted on the stand, when he came to reluctantly testify in behalf of his friend Banks, that at a previous grand jury session, he was receiving information from the foreman of the grand jury and carrying it to Banks. The grand jury that returned the ballot theft had no friendly foreman, but what a man can do once, he can do again, and Judge Fehl had the run of the courthouse."

"When Banks told Fleming, just before the murder that 'Coleman and Fehl plan to make me the goat in this ballot business,' was he afraid Fehl, one of his co-conspirators, was going to confess and make him the big frog in the puddle?"

"Mr. Fleming testified that on the morning of the murder, when he called, Mrs. Banks was around the house, performing the duties ladies generally do, at that time in the morning. Attorney Enright took the stand and testified that Fleming told him a day or so later, in the Josephine county jail, that he did not see Mrs. Banks that morning. Let me remind this jury that this is the same Mr. Enright that four or five witnesses, whose truthfulness is in doubt, testified they rehearsed their stories before they came to the stand. And they seek to pit the word of Enright, against the word of Fleming. IMAGINE IT."

Referring to Sheriff Schermerhorn, Attorney Moody said:

"So they wanted to surrender to Sheriff Schermerhorn. Mrs. Banks telephoned to make arrangements to that end and to say in what jail Mr. Banks would be detained. WHAT RIGHT HAD THEY TO DESIGNATE TERMS OF SURRENDER TO THE LAW, AFTER COMMITTING A MURDER?"

"I doubt if Schermerhorn had been sent to arrest Banks he would have been apprehended, at least, when he was."

Schermerhorn Under Cloud "Sheriff Schermerhorn was jointly indicted with Banks and Fehl as a co-conspirator in the ballot theft. That is why he was not given the warrant to serve on Banks. And, I ask you jurors as reasonable men and women, if it was not the course you yourself would have followed under the same circumstances?"

At another juncture of his speech, spoken throughout, save at the close, in a conversational tone, Attorney Moody said:

"I only wish the state had been able to show what was said the night before the murder, and WHO WERE PRESENT in the Banks home. The defense, for reasons of its own, did not see fit to reveal this phase of the case."

"The first scene was enacted at that meeting the night before, when preparations for the murder were made."

Attorney Moody declared, after reading the "two blooded threat" letters to the jury:

Plotted Alibi. "They were acting together jointly when Mrs. Banks typewrote the two letters at the dictation of Banks . . . "When Banks dictated and signed those two letters, he was not alone preparing for the murder, he was also preparing his alibi . . . Mrs. Banks I do not doubt she 'threw him out,' just as Tommy Williams testified he saw her open the door, stoop, and throw something on the porch."

"He (Banks) said to himself: 'I am going to be my own judge and jury and so I will write these letters and tell them if any officer interferes with me there will be bloodshed.'"

Castigating the attitude of Banks before, during, and after the murder, Attorney Moody said:

Banks Too Cowardly. "Banks was cold-blooded—cold-blooded enough to plan the murder, but too cowardly to go to the door, and open it. No! He shoved his wife up there, under explicit instructions about what to do. Why didn't he go himself? The situation explains itself. He could not have used the rifle at an open door."

"Banks was a good marksman. He stood 35 or 40 feet away and hit a man in the heart, through a crack in the door, four or five inches wide. But his crazy theory was also hit. Dr. Joseph said he was crazy when he pulled the trigger. He must have had a lucid moment in his 'transitory mania' when he shot so straight and true. HE WAS NOT CRAZY THEN, nor is he now."

Upon objections of Attorney Longergan, the court instructed Attorney Moody to face the jury while addressing his remarks, and not point at the defendants.

Lived in Luxury. "Banks, after the murder, had the audacity to say that George Prescott was 'burglarizing his home.' "He lived in luxury, not paying his honest debts, and abusing every constituted authority, that is protecting him now . . . He never went into court that he did not file an affidavit of prejudice against the presiding judge, and he was forced to admit it on the stand."

"Banks shot George Prescott with a nasty, vicious mushroom bullet that civilized nations have barred from use in modern warfare."

"He took away the life of George Prescott, but he can never take away the law enforcement ideals for which George J. Prescott stood and lived and died."

Made Threat Plain. "When Banks told Fleming of his murder plans, Fleming said 'O, don't do that Mr. Banks, it will get you into trouble.' Banks said 'I will do it because I said I would do it. If any officer comes to that door to take me on a trumped up charge, I will go out over their bodies feet first, AND THAT IS EXACTLY WHAT HE DID DO.'"

"Are you going to believe that Edwin Thomas lied, when he testified to threats that Banks made two days before the murder . . . ? Whenever it was mentioned that Banks had to go to court, he would rage. The word 'subpoena' annoyed him. When he said 'I can pluck out the heart of any man who comes to that door with a subpoena,' he pointed an imaginary rifle at the front door—the door to which Prescott came—and then and there rehearsed his murder plot."

Pistol at Breakfast Table. "Banks testified that on the morning of the murder he wore a revolver to the breakfast table. What did he do for that? Was he going to shoot his wife? Did he expect to see game in his own house? Do law-abiding people wear pistols to the breakfast table? Was he expecting to be surprised by the law? Or was he preparing for the murder?"

"Banks gloried in his deed and told Phil Lowd, his friend, he would have shot any officer probably, who came to the door. Phil Lowd might have thought he was Banks' friend, but Banks was never Phil Lowd's friend . . ."

"He showed no sympathy for the victim of his hate . . . He was cold-blooded. He thought only of self. His conscience never bothered him, and he is selfishly and extravagantly egotistical. He was only afraid of getting caught . . ."

Conscious of Guilt. "When he wrote to Rev. L. F. Belknap to arrange for bonds . . . the consciousness of his own guilt was upon him, and he was acting to protect himself."

"I suppose that the thought that went through the mind of Banks after the murder, while casually walking about the house, was that the misguided followers of his Good Government Congress—that organization with the 'hifalutin' name, and the false purposes, would flock to him and surround it, and protect him while he fled."

Alibi Witnesses Flouted. Referring to the alibi witnesses, Attorney Moody said:

"Four or five witnesses have been brought here to testify they saw a pistol in poor George Prescott's hand . . . Even Banks would not testify to that. He testified he saw what he IMAGINED to be a pistol. If anybody knows what a pistol looks like, it is Llewellyn A. Banks. I am just waiting to see if defense counsel will have the audacity to claim these witnesses of theirs are to be relied upon for truth and veracity."

Relative to Mrs. Banks' part, Attorney Moody said:

"What did Banks mean when he cried 'Look out' . . . No one else was in the house . . . Fleming had gone. The warning was not for the officer he plotted to kill. The warning was for Mrs. Banks, and then again they were acting together and jointly."

"Why did Mrs. Banks put on the burglar latch, of their palatial home . . . She testified it was because she did not want it opened any wider than the crack . . . She stepped aside, and made sure she was not an obstruction to the bullet from the vicious rifle in the hands of her mate . . ."

No Distinction in Law "The law makes no distinction between the sexes . . . You can find one or both guilty."

If John Wheeler was in the house, as both Wheeler and Mrs. Banks testified, why did she not give the 'proceed in order' note to Wheeler instead of a total stranger she had to CALL THREE TIMES?"

"Mrs. Banks showed no compunction after the murder—not even when her little daughter asked what had happened."

"When Tommy Williams asked Mrs. Banks, 'Where is George?' she nodded her head towards the body, and said 'Over There.' The nation honors thousands who sleep 'Over There' . . . of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court

of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."

Attorney Moody declared Mrs. Banks "typewrote the blooded threat letters, handed them out the door, knew the officers had arrived, and told Banks of their arrival, opened the door, after fixing the burglar latch, stepped away when Banks warned her, wrote the proceed in order note, and signed and delivered it, said 'We killed him' and telephoned the terms of surrender to the officers."

"I call upon the defense to disprove these proven facts, that show irrefutably that Mrs. Banks acted jointly, deliberately and premeditatedly in the slaying of poor George Prescott."

May Get Badges—Announcement has been made that Girl Scouts who did not get their badges at the court of awards, held Saturday at the Junior Officers of the law are as necessary in peace, as soldiers in war, and George J. Prescott died as much a hero to his city, as any soldier of war to his country."

Wife Linked in Plot. "She acted jointly with her husband . . . If the temporary insanity plea interposed for him holds, she is in the position of aiding a crazy man instead of counseling him against a crime."