At the annual school meeting held June 19th of this year, the entire non-high school territory of the county comprising the above named school districts will vote on the entire list of candidates in such a manner as will cause one candidate to be elected from each zone.

These five men will hold office for five, four, three, two and one year respectively as they receive the highest, next highest, etc., number of votes. The director receiving the lowest number will hold office for one year and his zone will elect his successor next year.

- 1. To levy annually a tax on the non-high school territory for high school tuition.
2. To make contracts with high schools in the county relative to high school tuition and transportation matters.
3. To issue warrants in payment of claims against this fund.
4. To make reports required by the state and county superintendents.
5. To provide polling places and appoint judges, and canvass votes for the election of its members.
6. To make an annual written report to the taxpayers.
7. To pay election and other necessary incidental expenses of the board out of the high school fund.

It should be borne in mind that the election of this board is not in any way connected with the county unit law for school administration, and also that the tax this board levies is not an additional tax; nor are the duties of this board new duties. The non-high school district board simply performs functions heretofore taken care of by the county superintendent and the county court, and it is hoped such an arrangement will work out to a more efficient administration of high school tuition matters.

Jackson Co. Candidates For Repeal Prohibition

DRY EXPERIMENT CALLED FAILURE; NEW DEAL URGED

Declaring that Jackson county possessed the best repeal organization in the state, A. A. Price and J. T. Summerville, officials from the Portland headquarters, put their personal O. K. on the four local wet candidates to the constitutional convention during a visit here last week.

"This, of course, did nothing to dampen the already present enthusiasm of the four local men. Absolute faith that the Oregon convention will declare for repeal by an overwhelming majority was expressed by all of them.

The 18th amendment should, must and will be repealed," asserted Attorney G. M. Roberts, candidate and a former district attorney of Jackson county. Declaring that it is only fair to put the question of repeal into the hands of the people, Mr. Roberts said: "Dry Law Not Representative."

"The 18th amendment was adopted by a two-thirds majority of the legislature of the state. In this manner the people did not really have an opportunity of expressing themselves, because the legislatures were not truly representative of the feeling of the people at that time. This amendment likewise was the result of wartime legislation when a tremendous number of our truly representative American citizens were on foreign soil.

"The noble experiment has certainly failed; the fact should be recognized by everyone. Then, in all honesty, the law should be repealed, and the overwhelming expression of the voters registered at the polls in the July special election."

"A dismal farce," was how Attorney Rawley Moore, another former district attorney and repeal candidate, described the 18th amendment. Main Issues Controversy. "One of the many shady evils brought about by prohibition is its influence upon national elections," he said. "We know that in practice our presidents and congressmen are elected because of their stand on liquor, rather than on tariff, world court or economics. Consequently, our votes on those other important national questions are completely nullified, resulting in confusion and questions of national politics and a growing discouragement to the average voter."

"The only cure for this situation is to repeal the 18th amendment openly, frankly, unequivocally, quickly," A. C. Ninninger, business man and candidate from Ashland laid upon the shoulders of prohibition a large share of the responsibility for the depression.

"The 18th amendment and resultant legislation has robbed our government of a sorely needed revenue," he stated, "and at the same time loaded her down with the stupendous burden of enforcement expense. I have no doubt that the present taxpayer, staggering under his unmanageable load, will welcome the repeal of the 18th amendment and the subsequent relief from his tax burdens."

Turning to an angle of the repeal argument that had not already been covered, E. C. Kelly, candidate and member of the state legislature, declared: "Cannot Legislate Morals."

"Morals cannot be legislated. Prohibition has proven that. The present law has not only NOT promoted temperance, but has produced the most shocking crime situation ever known in any country on any liquor profits from the illegal sale of liquor have violated criminals and whole-sale law violators. They have made the criminal a dictatorial power, with machine guns, expensive automobiles and airplanes at his command."

"Prohibition has weakened the moral tone of the country by winking at political hypocrisy to such an extent that the majority of the lawmakers drink wet and dry. This sordid condition, in addition to the other aspects of the situation, has I believe, so sickened the average citizen that he will be more than anxious to emphatically register his vote against the 'ignoble' experiment in the July election."

MEDFORD STUDENTS SHINE AS ACTORS IN NORMAL SCHOOL PLAY

A sympathetic and realistic interpretation of the personality, joys and sorrows of Andrew Jackson was given Thursday and Friday nights by students of Southern Oregon Normal school in the nine-act drama, "Andrew Jackson," written and produced by Angus Bowmer, head of the speech department of the school. Authentic costuming and realistic stage settings added to enjoyment of the capacity audiences attending both nights.

Jeanne Wilson, in the role of Rachel, loved by "Old Hickory," gave a professional performance, the excellence of which was closely rivaled by Neville Biden and Ted LeValley who shared the title role, and Norris Porter, who gave an outstanding interpretation as Overton, friend and counsellor of Jackson.

Twelve Medford students were included in the cast, including Bob Nelson, N. K. Porter, Neville Biden, Robert Shaw, Wm. Daugherty, Bertha Gray, George Bennett, Don Barnie, Raynor Guy, Curtis Barnes, Audrey Lofland, and Janet Wray Smith.
