CUPID UNHURRIED AS BAN ON GIN MARRIAGE NEAR UNDER NEW LAW

Oregon's "gin marriage" law, which goes into effect June 9, has not caused any rush to the county clerk's office by the lovers, according to records at the marriage license bureau.

Only one license was issued Thursday and that to William Slinger, 26 and Iona Smith, 26, both of Medford. Seven licenses have been issued during the past week. Officials at the court house are of the opinion that those stricken with the urge to be married are waiting for June, when an influx is expected between the first and the ninth.

When the new law goes into effect, it will require three days to elapse between the time the license is applied for, and the marriage. It will also require publication of the intentions to marry, and is expected to put a stop to many California honeymooners, who have come to Oregon to be married, often spending several days in Medford and the rest of the state.
