

ORGAN RECITAL BY GOODRICH IS MUSICAL TREAT

By Eva Nealon Hamilton.

Blending the tones of the organ, powerful instrument of the munes, into an ever-changing pattern of lightness and strength, Frederick Goodrich, Portland artist, last night carried a Medford audience through a series of moods, and charmed each listener into appreciation of masters, old and new, with his sympathetic and intelligent interpretation of their compositions.

He played at the Sacred Heart Catholic church as visiting artist, making his contribution to musical appreciation. And all who came and heard were most fond of their chosen favorites and had added other compositions to their preference lists when they departed.

He left his audience with a clear and satisfying conception of each composition, whether the work of the western composer, John Humphrey Stewart, or the famous Schubert. As the final strain of each faded into quiet in the church the picture was completed, and the listeners compelled to meditation or inspired to military fervor, whichever the composer desired in the beginning.

The program opened with the second organ concerto of Handel and continued with "Dawn" by Alfred Mason, a realistic tone poem. A number in old minuet form, offering fantastic lightness was then played and the sweet old favorite "To a Wild Rose," followed soon after by the beloved "Ave Maria" of Schubert.

Each number of the program was marked by perfect phrasing and a pleasing fluency, which continued with increased inspiration to the final number, a stirring grand march of Belgian origin.

Hopkins Recital Held Calendar for Tonight.

Plans for the recital of George Hopkins, pianist, are demanding the attention of society folk today, most of whom are planning to hear his program at the Baldwin Piano Shoppe recital hall, beginning at 8 o'clock this evening.

Mr. Hopkins comes to Medford from the University of Oregon school of music and needs little introduction, his reputation as a piano virtuoso being commonly known throughout the Pacific coast. He has consented to come to Medford for a nominal fee and so a small admission charge will be collected for the concert this evening.

The seating capacity of the Baldwin recital hall is small and all plans are to attend the recital are urged to make early arrangements. It will be very informal in nature, taking the style of a lecture recital and the program announced by Mr. Hopkins for the evening is one well within the range of appreciation of all music lovers.

Mr. Hopkins' appearance here is being sponsored by the Jackson County Music Teachers, who feel particularly fortunate in obtaining the Oregon artist at this time.

Of him "Musical West" has said: "Mr. Hopkins has a thoroughly admirable style, a technique responsive to his interpretational requirements, an unusual gift for musical logic, and a well-balanced melodic sense. He won his audience of musicians at once and the last note of his program found his listeners wishful for more.

An interesting feature was a "Scottish Gavotte" of his own, which received a major share of applause."

Numerous other press comments, which have followed the appearance of the American composer from coast to coast, commend not only his powers of interpretation, but his ability at composition, revealing distinct originality and modernistic tendencies.

JACKSON COUNTY VOTE STRENGTH SHOWS SHRINKAGE

Shrinkage of between 1800 and 2000 voters in the Jackson county registration has been noted in the check now underway by the county clerk's office for the special state election to be held Friday, July 21, when a number of measures, including prohibition repeal will be decided as the polls.

It is now estimated that close to 1850 names have been checked off, and that the final total will be close to the 2000 mark.

Most of the cancellations have been due to removal from the county. Some have died, and a few have not voted in the past two years, which automatically cancels their cards unless they re-register. The registration books close June 21, a month before the election.

Last spring and fall there was a great rush of registrants and the vote of the county showed an increase of close to 5000 over normal conditions.

Due to the ballot thefts on the night of February 19, and the destruction of some of the 46 stolen ballot pouches, it will be necessary for the county to purchase new pouches or have them repaired. The tops were cut off some of the pouches and burned. A considerable amount of election supplies, such as pens, pencils, and ink were destroyed by the looters in disposing of the ballots.

PRIEST PRISONER OF PARISHIONERS

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—(AP)—An Augustinian priest who has been held "prisoner" for three weeks by parishioners protesting the transfer of Our Lady of Good Counsel church to the archdiocese of Philadelphia, made an unsuccessful effort to leave the church today.

Two of his four guards, appointed by the protest committee which is holding the church against diocesan authorities, escorted the Rev. Simplifano Gatt "politely but firmly" back to his quarters, which he had left, carrying his belongings in a suitcase.

It was those belongings which led to his "capture" in the first place, for, after the transfer order had been issued three weeks ago, he left when parishioners started a demonstration.

but returned later for his clothes and has been "detained" since.
