Younger Misses to Be Guides at Flower Show.

When the annual flower show of the Medford Garden club opens next Wednesday afternoon for a two days' showing, a group of flower lovers from the younger set will be present to escort visitors through the displays. The hostesses will be headed by Miss Doris Bundy.

There will be many things for visitors to see this year besides plant and cut flower displays as several additions have been made to the arrangement classification. One of the most unique will be the kitchen utensil arrangement, where kettles and pans will be used as flower containers, assuming an entirely new role.

Attractive Garden club posters, made by A. R. Livingston, are already occupying the windows of local shops, announcing to the public that Medford is going to have a flower show next week.

The rules and classifications for the 1935 show were published in yesterday's Mail Tribune and the committee expressed the hope today that all Rogue River valley gardeners are making a study of them, preparatory to entering their choice flowers in the proper groupings.

CHINOOK FISHING WARMS UP AGAIN ON ROGUE RIVER

GRANTS PASS, June 2.—(Sp.)—The first day of the final month of chinook salmon fishing during the season saw prospects ahead of a few days, or possibly weeks, of excellent fishing before the conclusion of the drive, according to Rainbow Gibson of Weasaku Inn.

High water in the Rogue river has marred catches for the past three weeks and remarkably few chinooks have been taken. Gibson reported that the water level is now dropping and with another six inches taken off, sportsmen can expect plenty of fish to keep them occupied for the remainder of the run.

The fish are not expected to last much longer than June 20, a number of "jacks" already appearing in the river. The possibility of a few spring steelhead has attracted followers of this fish to the river, although no luck in that quarter has been reported in Grants Pass to date.

Grants Pass rod and reel fans are still trying to break the record set early in the year by Ben Harrison, California fisherman who took a 55-pounder out from under the hooks of numerous local sportsmen. With a reduced water level, one final stab will be made to land some big ones, and according to Rainbow Gibson, the chances for such a catch will doubtless be good within the next few days when the water clears up and the big ones will be lying just under the surface.

The outlook for next week-end is good, as the Rogue will most certainly be down to more or less normal level by that time. The Savage Rapids dam should be the mecca for all ardent fishermen during the next three weeks, as their final opportunity to hook a 40-pound chinook will elapse at the end of that time, stated Gibson, fishing seer of the Rogue river.

BUILDING OF BREWERY BEGUN AS EQUIPMENT IS ASSEMBLED HERE

The aids will soon be brewing in Medford's own brewery, is the report given out today by Ted GeBauer, secretary-treasurer of the Southern Oregon Brewing company.

Louis P. Kappler, brew master has arrived from Sacramento and was visiting the territory today.

Brewing will be started at the new plant before July 4. A period of 60 days will be required for the beer to age and Medford beer, made from Medford's mountain spring water, will then be ready for drinking.
