VALLEY BOYS AT NAVAL ACADEMY GIVEN PUBLICITY

Mrs. Nellie Winne is in receipt of a copy of the "Lucky Bag," the annual of the regiment of mid-shipmen of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, sent by her son George. Mr. Winne entered the academy this year and his picture appears with a group picture of his class of 1930, taken in front of the academy.

George Winne took the examination here in January, 1932, entered the academy in July of that year and will graduate in the class of 1936.

The "Lucky Bag" is one of the neatest and best printed annuals issued in the United States and is beautifully illustrated with pictures of the navy yard, academy President Roosevelt, secretary of the navy, superintendent of the academy and other officers, and classes, individual pictures, together with sketches of the graduating class, activities and athletics of all kinds, war vessels, sealants and many other illustrations.

Irwin Lowell Dew son of Mrs. I. A. Dew, of this city, is a member of the graduating class of 1933. His picture appears with the graduates and the "Lucky Bag" says of him: "Ike's ready smile and a quick sense of humor make his company always enjoyable, and the girls just love that light wavy hair. He's a quiet lad, this tall boy from what he terms 'God's year around resort,' but that same quietness reacts in his favor and it's a lucky ship that will claim 'Ike,' for he'll give it all he's got."

George Winne left Saturday with the class for a two months cruise to Madeira Island off the coast of Africa.

CONTINUE HORSE CASE TO MONDAY

Preliminary hearing of Robert Rose and Jack Rice, resident of the Long Tom Mountain district, charged with grand larceny, involving the alleged theft of two horses, was continued Saturday morning, until Monday by Justice William R. Coleman.

Evidence was submitted by the state Saturday morning and the defense will be started Monday.

Rose and Rice are alleged to have taken from the range, for their own use, Corbett Smith, two horses, described as geldings. The pair, it is charged, sold the animals to Ernest Coble, never turning them over to Smith.

Rose is a picturesque and well known mountaineer and hunting guide. Last winter he was tried on a forest fire setting charge. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, with the recommendation that the court give a reprimand. A similar case against Rice was dismissed.

O-C COUNTIES TO MAKE FIGHT FOR FEDERAL MONIES

Western Oregon counties, through their county courts and other officials, at a meeting held in Eugene Friday, decided to take steps to retain the Oregon-California land grant funds, and to provide for the yearly payment of claims in full. Large federal holdings of non-taxable lands was also opposed. The counties will hold a meeting in the near future, to formulate definite plans.

District Attorney Guy Condon of Douglas county, was named as legal aide to prepare a brief, urging the 1933 payments. A recent ruling of the treasury department, held that the 1933 claims could only be paid from the O-C fund, which is practically depleted. The counties will insist that the claim is just, and can be paid from the general treasury.

There is now in the O-C fund $220,000 to pay $475,000 in claims, according to word from Congressman James E. Mott. This means payment of but 46 per cent of the individual claims this year, and would demonstrate budgets and county financial plans. The ruling also bars payments for future years.

Jackson county recently submitted a $69,000 claim for the 1932 taxes. The Western Oregon counties coming under the land grant, plan to carry their fight to the floor of congress, if necessary.

Commissioner Ralph S. Billings was named a member of the executive committee which will meet shortly to formulate further plans.

It was the sense of the meeting that partial payments were needed by the various counties at once, and that the government should either pay taxes upon federal land, or return it to the counties.

The drastic action was a part of the Roosevelt administration economy program.
