FUNDS FOR RELIEF SLASHED SHARPLY IN CURRENT MONTH

An initial grant to the state of Oregon for relief work, which amounts to just 50 per cent of the state's total need for June, which will necessitate drastic retrenchment on the part of the Jackson county and other relief committees, was reported today at relief headquarters. The June allotment for Jackson county, based on incomplete information on the state's expenditure from all public funds, was placed at $13,000 accordingly, but $6500 will be forthcoming for use here in the month of June.

The $13,000 total established is considerably under the average expenditure here for the preceding months, which was between $17,000 and $18,000. The payment of but half of this decreased total leaves the Jackson County Relief committee with very inadequate resources to carry on relief work here, which means that more people will have to obtain employment.

The committee plans to do everything possible to accomplish the maximum amount of good with the money available and the members are in hopes that the opening of orchard work and the haying season will bring employment to a certain number of persons. The executive committee of the Jackson County Relief committee is meeting this afternoon to work out some kind of program.

"In accordance with the federal emergency relief act of 1933 the federal relief administration has made an initial grant to the state of Oregon, which is 50 per cent of our estimate of the state's total need for June," is the announcement received from Elmer R. Gaudy, executive secretary of the state relief committee.

"This grant is based on incomplete information on this state's expenditures from all public funds during the months of January, February and March.

"Based on financial and unemployment conditions in your county and from all available information we estimated your needs for June to be $13,000 and accordingly are allocating $6500 for your use for the month of June. It is hoped that on filing additional information with the federal relief administrator we can more nearly meet your total needs for June. In the meantime we are dividing the funds available equitably and ask that you effect every economy. There is no assurance that any more money can be made available and the state relief committee cannot assume your obligations in excess of $6500, which is 50 per cent of your June need.

COAST GIRL GOOD ENOUGH TO PLAY WITH CITY LEAGUE

Although she's out of a job right now, Gertrude Harty had a regular semi-pro contract in the Seattle city league last season. Her name appeared in the official averages 'n' everything.

SEATTLE (AP)—The best girl baseball player in the northwest, but no team to play with, is the plight of Gertrude Harty, who can perform around first base as well as a lot of young men.

Gertrude had an honest-to-goodness contract with a Seattle semi-pro team last year. It all started when the team played an exhibition contest with a touring troupe of girls and Miss Harty was added to the local lineup. After that she remained with the men's team and her work at first base counted in the city league records.

The girl learned her baseball from her dad, Jim Harty, a former semi-pro player around the northwest. She likes to pitch and play first base.

Miss Harty would like to have the boys take her more seriously and give her a regular job, but she hasn't landed yet this season. Semi-pro teams are wary of trusting her feminine tosses when the going gets tough, and Gertrude scorns the playground ball.

Edith Robertine Banks, co-defendant in the murder charge, testified positively under cross-examination that she heard Prescott make no threats, or "utter a word." The four witnesses testified they heard Prescott threaten Banks.

Mrs. Effie McCulliston, residing across the street from the Banks home, testified she was working on her lawn, heard the death shot, instinctively looked towards the Banks home, and saw no one on the sidewalk.

Maie Murray and her daughter, Effie Lewis, testified that they had rehearsed their testimony "four or five times" to Attorney T. J. Enright.

Under Oregon law, two corroborative witnesses are required in perjury charges. The state claims it has ample testimony in this respect.

TESTIMONY OF 6 IN BANKS TRIAL IS SUSPICIONED

(Continued from Page One.) talking to her in her backyard, and by Miss Marjorie Hibbert, a roomer in the Murray home, that the two were walking towards the Banks home on Sixth street, after the news of the murder had spread throughout the city.

John Wheeler, gardener and former Banks employe, testified that two or three days after the sale of the News he heard Prescott make a death threat against Banks, at the Medford National bank corner. The News sale occurred the day before the killing, and the state contended Prescott was dead when Wheeler testified he made the threat.

Held Not On Scene. Wheeler testified also that he was at the Banks home, outside, when the murder occurred, heard threats, and the shot, and saw a pistol drop from Prescott's hand. The state introduced witnesses to show that Wheeler was in the court house at the time of the shooting. Wheeler testified he went into the Banks home after the slaying, but neither Banks nor his wife mentioned it in his testimony. Wheeler, following his testimony, was taken ill with a heart affliction, and was unable to take the stand in rebuttal.

May Powell testified that the day before the murder she was in Nandie's cafe, between three and half past three o'clock and heard Prescott make threats against Banks, and that he carried warrants for arrest for bail-theft.

The state, by witnesses, showed that the indictments were not returned until two hours later that date, that it was therefore impossible for Prescott to have them, and also showed that Prescott was in the courthouse waiting to be called before the grand jury at the time Mrs. Powell testified she saw and heard him.

Cox Also at Spot. Abner Cox testified that he was at the scene of the shooting, and also heard threats by Prescott, heard the shot, and saw a pistol drop from the hand of the slain officer.

The state introduced a witness to show that Cox was in the Pacific Record Herald building at the time of the shooting and left for the Banks home with Walter Jones, after it occurred.

Wheeler, Cox, Mae Murray, and Effie Lewis, testified as eye-witnesses of the murder, but claimed none saw the other, though according to marks made on the state exhibit map, they were within a short distance of each other, according to their sworn word.

Wife Heard No Word. Edith Robertine Banks, co-defendant in the murder charge, testified positively under cross-examination that she heard Prescott make no threats, or "utter a word." The four witnesses testified they heard Prescott threaten Banks.

Mrs. Effie McCulliston, residing across the street from the Banks home, testified she was working on her lawn, heard the death shot, instinctively looked towards the Banks home, and saw no one on the sidewalk.

SEVERE COLD REDUCES STRAWBERRY CROP IN OREGON, WASHINGTON

Continued signs of a drastically reduced strawberry crop in the states of Oregon and Washington, were reported here today in a bulletin from the Jackson County Relief committee from the United States department of labor, which states that the crop will amount to only 25 or 30 per cent of its normal. Severe cold during the winter killed 35 to 90 per cent of the plants in individual fields and other plants were so badly damaged they did not bloom.

The cold also cut the raspberry crop to 35 or 40 per cent of normal and cherries were severely damaged by the cold.

In view of the crop shortage the government bulletin urges outside labor not to move into northwestern states until definite employment is assured.

Local charity organizations through the section, the bulletin explains, are confining their efforts largely to local unemployed laborers, who have work assured, are also asked by the department not to set out by automobile unless they have sufficient funds to carry them to their destination.

'STARVING' HIKER FOUND IN HILLS

Attired in overalls and a derby, Michael Peck, about 40, was located at a cabin near the Richfield station on the Skagway summit Sunday by state police, after some motorists camped along the roadside had reported the man starving. They gave him some coffee.

Peck told the officer he was from Flint, Mich., and had been in the cabin since Friday, as he did not like to walk the highways on Sunday.

"People ride along on Sunday in their nice big cars, and I don't look so good, so I just stay off the highway then," he told the police. The man had two dollars in his pocket.
