

Torrid Love Letters of Famous Men Long Dead Bared to Gaze of Public

By DALE HARRISON.
 NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—Love letters of immortals went into the showcase today so that the public might read the hearts of dead men. In an exhibition of amatory epistles placed on display by the Rosenbach company the passions of Benjamin Franklin, Nathan Hale, Lord Nelson and many others are bared. Lord Nelson wrote to his "Dearest Emma," stating he would "rejoice, my Emma, to have you in my arms when I need not envy a king." James Boswell, who wrote a "Life of Johnson" and lived a life of Lethario, was represented with an epistle indited to "My Dearest Life."
 Thomas Jefferson is shown in one letter to have ideas of his own on marriage. To his friend, William Fleming, he wrote: "You say you are determined to be married as soon as possible and advise me to do the same. No thank ye!" Benjamin Franklin, sometimes called "the first civilized American," wrote to Madame Brillon: "I had not the happiness, my dear friend, to see you on Sunday evening, because my horses were at Paris with the young man, and I have neither feet nor wings. If I had wings, I think I should have flown to you, and I think I should sometimes scratch on the window of your bedchamber. It is very mischievous of nature to deny us the advantages that she wastes so profusely on all the little good-for-nothing birds and flies."
 One of the most torrid of the love letters on exhibition is that of Constantine Lloyd to Oscar Wilde:

"My Darling Love—You take all my strength away, I have no power to do anything but just love you when you are with me. Every moment you are with me I worship you more, my whole life is yours. . . Do you believe that I love you most passionately with all the strength of my heart and mind. . . And when I have you for my husband I will hold you fast with chains of love and devotion so that you shall never leave me, or love anyone as long as I can love and comfort."
 Most fascinating of all is a letter of Edgar Allan Poe to a friend, a letter reciting a love deep, moving and tragic. The letter tells of the recurring illnesses of "a wife whom I loved as no man ever loved before." With each recurring attack of her illness he "felt all the agonies of her death—and at each accession of the disorder I loved her more dearly and clung to her life with more desperate pertinacity. . . I became insane with long intervals of horrible sanity. During these fits of absolute unconsciousness I drank. God only knows how often or how much. As a matter of fact my enemies referred the insanity to the drink, rather than the drink to the insanity. I had, indeed, nearly abandoned all hope of a permanent cure when I found one in the death of my wife. This I can and do endure as a man—it was the horrible never-ending oscillation between hope and despair which I could not longer have endured without total loss of reason. In the death of what was my life, then, I received a new—but—oh, God, how melancholy existence!"

FLOWER DISPLAY OPEN TOMORROW AT HIGH SCHOOL

 many opportunities for exchange of plants and gaining of knowledge regarding flower culture, a chance to join the club will be extended all persons attending the show, which will continue through Thursday.
 A group of girls, headed by Doris Bundy, will act as attendants at the show, escorting interested people through the various displays, explaining the arrangements.
 One of the interesting features of the show will be the kitchenware exhibit, which has been added to the list to enable every person to enter the show. A kettle and a garden will be the only requirements and the committee is anxious to see what attractive arrangements local women can accomplish with only a kitchen utensil as container.
 Posters, announcing the show, have been occupying space in various shop windows for many days and a large attendance, as well as a record entry list, is expected for the show. Merchants will display garden things too, adding still another feature to the show, which each year enters new boundaries bringing greater concentration in gardening in northern Oregon.
 Children, as well as adults, play their part in the success of each year's show and their exhibits are eagerly awaited this year.
 Members of the Japanese colony, who have come to constitute one of the most artistic contributors to the show, will also have displays.

MATTERN IN OMSK HALTS FOR SLEEP ON GLOBE FLIGHT

 commented when told of the anxiety felt when he was apparently overdue on his trans-Atlantic hop, which he ended at Jomfruland Island, off the Norwegian coast, at 4:15 a. m. E. S. T. Sunday. He flew to Oslo 16 hours and 45 minutes later, and at 12:40 a. m. E. S. T. he took off for Moscow, arriving here seven hours and 17 minutes later.
 Sixty hours and 54 minutes after he left New York he pointed the nose of his plane towards Omsk.
 He disclosed an ingenious arrangement for catching cat naps while in the air.
 "I fixed rubber bands to the stick from the compass rack, allowing sufficient margin to provide for a slight drift to the right," he explained.
 "Then I crossed my legs and with my right foot put a slight pressure on the left rudder, which equalized the drift and kept the plane on an even course."
 "That's how I got my cat naps." Message from Home
 Just before his departure, he was given a message from fellow townsmen in San Angelo, Tex., reading: "Jimmy Matern, round world flier, Moscow, Asia boy Jimmy. (Signed) San Angelo."
 "I feel fine, but I would like to have about an hour's sleep," he said when he arrived. But he ate a large meal, talked enthusiastically with newspapermen, and went to sleep, insisting, however, that he be called in two hours.
 "It seems almost like being back home again," Matern told old friends among the correspondents, who with some 200 airport attaches greeted him. A physician examined him, remarking afterwards that "he is very tired and needs rest."
 Matern looked fit, although he had had only three hours of sleep since Saturday morning.

C.C.C. WORKERS DROWN IN SANTIAM'S WATERS

SALEM, June 6.—(AP)—Two civilian conservation corps workers were believed drowned yesterday in the Santiam river near Detroit, Coroner L. E. Barrick said he was informed late last night.
 John Hess, reported to be of Chicago, and Howard Herron, said to be a Willamette valley resident, lost an oar and were swept out of sight around a bend, while attempting to cross the Santiam on a work detail. Observers rounded the bend and sighted only the overturned boat.

In Rialto Hit

In "Looking Forward," Lionel Barrymore's new starring vehicle, which opens today at the Rialto theatre, Cosmopolitan Productions and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who produced "Gabriel Over the White House," are said again to have reflected the problems of millions of people in a motion picture timed to the second.
 After viewing this dramatic story of hope and courage in the life of a typical business man, President Franklin D. Roosevelt permitted the producers to use the title of his widely acclaimed book, "Looking Forward."
 "Looking Forward" deals with the lives of two business men and their families under the acid test of the depression.

Barrymores Score In Craterian Film

"Rasputin and the Empress," which has the three Barrymores, John, Lionel and Ethel, appearing together for the first time in their careers, plays for the last time tonight at Hunt's Craterian theatre.
 Rasputin, the Mad Monk of Russia, is played by Lionel Barrymore and so great is his artistry that the role seems to live on the screen. Ethel Barrymore is seen as the ill-fated Czarina, with John playing the part of the Prince Chegodieff. Frank Morgan, Diana Wynyard and Tad

"Strange Interlude" with Norma Shearer and Clark Gable in the principal roles is now playing at the Studio theatre. This gripping picture has both the spoken word and the unspoken thought presented far more effectively than it was ever possible on the stage.

ARMOR your cows against flies with K-O

A twitching, nervous, tortured; fly-stung cow gives less milk than a placid and contented one. Here is the surest and easiest way to kill and repel these biting, blood-sucking robbers of milk profits—K-O sprayed every day before milking kills the flies on the cows and gives each cow a protecting armor of K-O before going out to pasture. Cows protected against flies feed normally and keep up their regular milk production. When sprayed on cows the new K-O forms a protective film on the hair that repels flies and keeps them from lighting on and biting the cows.

Reach for a Lucky —for always Luckies Please!

I like mine "Toasted"

I have my preferences. When it comes to cigarettes I like mine "Toasted". Not that I understand "Toasting". I simply enjoy what "Toasting" does! I like the fine quality of Luckies — their mellow-mildness. And their purity means a lot to me. For, after all, my cigarette and my lips come in such close personal contact. I've reached for a Lucky ever since I've reached smoking age, and if my womanly reasons count for anything, it's always "Luckies Please!"

because "It's toasted"
