FEHL'S CONTENTION COLLAPSES UNDER HOUGH ADMISSION

Counsel for Accused County Judge Admits 'Error in Dictation'—Says Attorney General Did Not Lie

The claim of County Judge Earl H. Fehl, charged with a score of others of ballot theft, that Former Assistant Attorney-General William S. Levens had expressed to him belief in his innocence of the charge, and that he was "being framed"—as he expressed it, "virtually collapsed Monday afternoon in circuit court when A. C. Hough of Grants Pass, attorney for Fehl, admitted "an error in dictation," and further said, "the attorney general probably told the truth."

Attorney Hough filed a supporting affidavit to Fehl's affidavit which also charged that Levens, who died on the eve of the Banks murder trial, had told him he intended to report to Attorney General Van Winkle that the accused official was being "framed"—as he expressed it. Fehl alleged that the purported conversation took place about five o'clock April 27.

Attorney-General Van Winkle, in a telegram, denied the claim of Fehl, emphatically and in full. He hoped to see eye evidence.

The affidavits of Fehl and his attorney were filed in support of their motion for the right to inspect confessions and interview state witnesses in the ballot theft case.

It was held that the affidavits were "immaterial" to the motion. The court, as a result of Attorney Hough's statement, and other developments, leaves the issue, Assistant Attorney-General Moody stated in court "between the word of Fehl and a dead man who is not here to speak for himself."

State authorities say that the only conversations between the deceased attorney general and Fehl, was at Fehl's request, when he asked for a reduction of his $15,000 bonds.

Hough Makes Statement. The statement of Fehl's attorney, A. C. Hough, as taken from the official report, is as follows: Hough: "I wish to say in reply, if the court please, to what counsel, the assistant attorney general had to say—I didn't know until he called my attention to it by reading it that I had made an error in dictation here. I stated to the court in the opening statement that I made that after I had spoken to Attorney General Van Winkle and said to him that I had come there for the purpose of telling him what Judge Fehl had told me, that he said 'Yes, that is about what he told me.' I see that I stated it in dictating it 'Yes, that is what Mr. Levens told me.' He didn't say 'That is what Levens told me,' he said 'Yes, that is about what he (Fehl) told me,' but in making my statement to the attorney general I was talking about what Judge Fehl had told me that Mr. Levens had told him, and that Mr. Levens would carry it to the attorney general—and I thought I had made it plain to the attorney general that I wanted a confirmation of it, and after I made my statement, the attorney general said 'Yes, that is about what he told me.'"

The court: "Meaning that is about what Judge Fehl told him."

Mr. Hough: "I don't know now—I can see now through this thing and where the error lies. The attorney general probably told the truth when he said he never saw Mr. Levens after he left Medford up to the time he died. The attorney general had seen Judge Fehl a few days or two weeks before—about two weeks before, and when he used the word 'he' the attorney general probably was referring to the statement that Judge Fehl had stated to him, and probably that is where I erred."

The court: "I think so. As I stated—someone had misunderstood—that no one is trying to lie about it."

Mr. Hough: "Neither one of us is." The court: "I am satisfied you wouldn't lie, and I am satisfied the attorney general wouldn't. I think it is some error."

Hough: "I am sure that at some conversation—it doesn't appear in this record—but I make an error in this matter. I hope counsel will immediately rise to it."

The court: "He will." Hough: "And on the other hand I hope that if I do not, that the attorney general will confess it."

ANGELES MAYOR MAY FIGHT VOTE

LOS ANGELES, June 7.—(AP)—With wholesale change in city officials ordered by Los Angeles voters, the final result of the mayoralty election was clouded today by the possibility Mayor John C. Porter may refuse to relinquish his office without a fight.

Frank L. Shaw, chairman of the county board of supervisors, defeated Porter by approximately 31,000 votes in yesterday's election.

The mayor's son and secretary, Lee Porter, indicated his father might contend he was entitled to remain mayor until his successor has demonstrated he is an American citizen. Porter claims Shaw is a Canadian. Shaw has sought to produce proof that he is an American citizen. The city charter specifies the mayor must be a citizen and qualified elector.

Seven of the ten members of the city council who were on the ballot were defeated for re-election.
