BULL GOES RACE HORSE TO DEATH

A valuable race horse, belonging to Lee Peachey of Ashland, was young death here yesterday, when a young Jersey bull went on a rampage in the C. C. Hoover pasture on the east side, it was reported today.

The horse was pasturing at the Hoover place. The young bull, running in the same lot, had previously shown no signs of being a fractious animal, until he started his attack on the race horse. Rushing upon the frightened animal, he gored it from the front, one horn carrying through the horse's throat, killing it before anyone could intervene.

The bull was immediately lamed and de-horned. And in telling the story, Mr. Hoover today, advised all cattlemen and dairymen to de-horn young bulls before a similar accident results on another farm.

BLOOD CLOT CAUSED PASSING OF TUSKO

SEATTLE, June 12.—(AP)—A clot of blood in the right ventricle of a 133-pound heart was given today as the cause of the death Saturday of Tusko, the largest elephant in captivity.

Dr. O. A. Singley, a veterinarian, performed an autopsy on the beast. He said the clot was at least five years old, weighed several pounds, and might have been caused by excessive richness of the blood and lack of exercise. Deemed "dangerous" Tusko had been rather closely confined the past five years.

GOLD HILL WINS, 6-4, IN 'VILLE

In one of the most thrilling games of the small-town series this season, Gold Hill yesterday took the heavy end of a close 6-4 tilt with the Jacksonville Miners at Jacksonville. The game was climaxed with a hitting and pitching spree by the Miners, who gradually crept up on the six-run lead the Gold Hillers piled up in the second and third innings. With tying runs on second and third base and one out, the Gold Hill nine stifled the rally by pulling a double play.

Kell for Gold Hill managed to hold down the Miner word welding till the eighth, when base hits cropped out. While Pitcher Hess for the Miners allowed few hits and finished the last three innings with but nine men at bat. Ross for Jacksonville and Force for Gold Hill caught.

ROGUES DEFEAT EAGLE PT., 4-2, IN FAST BATTLE

Medford Infield Clicks With Precision On Invasion of Cheese City—Double Play Helps Medford Hurler

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS. Medford, 4; Eagle Point, 2. Roseburg, 5; Klamath, 4. Coquille, 4; Ashland, 3.

In a fast-moving and hard-fought game Sunday at Eagle Point, the Medford Rogues defeated the Cheese-makers, 4 to 2, with the Rogues' infield clicking like clockwork. Pritchett held the Pointers well for the first seven frames and then relinquished the mound to Lake who continued the good work. A fast double play, Lang to Haight to Anderson, in the initial canto pulled Pritchett out of a hole and gave him confidence in his support which he needed.

The Medfordites chalked up three counters in the third on hits by Pritchett, Clay and Lang. Manager Haight of the locals poled out a double in the eighth and crossed the park on a hit by Anderson for the fourth of the Rogues' tallies. Haight overcame his batting slump of the previous Sunday by smacking out three hits yesterday.

Clarence Dunn snared the first run for the Cheese-men in the third and Manager Hoffer scored their only other marker in the sixth after getting on base with a hit and being passed around by a double from Conlin's big bat.

The Medford infield clicked to perfection. Tooley Williams handling the hot corner assignment with three assists and no errors.

A fair crowd witnessed the contest. Box scores: Medford.

Flat, Smooth Stroke and Practice Make Putter

By GENE SARAZEN. (As Told to Alan Gould) I have heard it said often that "good putters are born, not made," but I do not subscribe to that superstition any more than I believe any other part of a good golf game is inherited.

Probably no more consistent putter ever lived than Jerome D. Travers, nor more confident players than Jones, Hagen or Outmet, on the greens, but they developed their skill with a smooth stroke and constant practice.

Travers, in making his come-back within the past year or so, has been handicapped by his inability to use wood clubs successfully, but he still is a match for any professional on the greens.

Keep Putter Close to Ground. I used to "cut" my putts, because I lifted the putter on the backswing, but I have practiced bringing it back along the ground instead, and now obtain better results than ever before.

I also used to "break" my wrists in my putting stroke, but I have gotten away from that bad habit, too. Francis Outmet taught me how to "weed" my wrists in putting. This prevents opening the face of the putter and makes for a truer roll of the ball.

The player who lifts his putter not only will "cut" the ball, but he will be short of the hole nine out of ten times. There still is plenty of truth in the old saying: "Never up, never in."

Still Favors Larger Cup. There has been much discussion this spring over my suggestion for a bigger cup, measuring six inches, instead of the present regulation hole having a diameter of 4 1/4 inches. I am convinced it would be a desirable change and make for a better balanced, more satisfactory game.

The bigger cup will "pay off" for the players reaching the greens more often than others in regulation or par figures. Analysis of the results in the Miami Biltmore Open proved this. This is as it should be.

Here is Walter Hagen, one of the game's master putters, illustrating the "flat" stroke. The club head stays close to the ground, prevents "cutting" the ball and lessens the chances of falling short of the cup.

HEADLOCK STARS HERE WEDNESDAY ON ARMORY CARD

Al Karasick, contender for the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world, who will wrestle Harry Demetral here next Wednesday night, is expected to arrive in Medford some time tomorrow afternoon or early Wednesday morning, according to Mack Lillard, promoter, who arranged the match after much negotiating.

Demetral won from Pete Belcastro here last Wednesday by taking one fall with straight wrestling and being awarded the second fall when Belcastro insisted on kicking him in the stomach. Les Welis, referee, warned Belcastro many times, and finally awarded the match over Demetral's protest. The 50-year-old Greek insisted on finishing the match, but Welis stuck to his decision.

Swede Anderson, Medford's heavyweight hope, will meet Joe Reynolds, also known throughout the northwest as a "comer." Reynolds has been wrestling in Washington and British Columbia, since here last, and has been itching for a match with Abe Kaplan, the Portland Jew.

Fans will have a chance to see Strangler Lewis' headlock used in the Demetral-Karasick match, as Demetral makes a specialty of headlocks, as does Karasick. Karasick, however, puts a bit of chiropractic in his headlocks, thus leaving his opponent with the feeling he has been to the doctor and then some.

Early demand for tickets to the match Wednesday has indicated a full house, and Lillard said he might have the doors opened earlier than usual to the balcony. This, however, depends upon the continued demand for the best seats.
