

DIAMOND LAKE TO HAVE WARDEN FOR AID TO ANGLERS

PORTLAND, June 13.—(AP)—An organized system of sewage disposal designed to free the Willamette river of pollution, was urged by the Oregon game commission at a meeting here Monday. The system had been proposed at a recent meeting of Willamette valley city officials.

Portland residents will vote July 21 on a proposal to authorize construction of a disposal plant for the city through use of reconstruction finance corporation funds.

Complying with an act of the last legislature, the commission authorized a uniform charge of 50 cents for renewal of free licenses and for issuance of deer tags to holders of such licenses. Loss of deer tags, it was explained, subjects the game commission and the wild life of Oregon to illegal use of such tags by the finder.

The game budget was drawn at $300,000 for the year, a reduction of $150,000 as compared with 1929.

The commissioners were told that 31,550 eggs, of which 28,844 were from China pheasants, were gathered at the three state game farms at Pendleton, Eugene and Corvallis, and at the field hatchery at Medford, up to June 1, and that plans call for gathering approximately 50,000 eggs this season.

The commission decided to install warden service at Diamond lake because of the public interest and tourist value of that region, and voted to recommend that Charles A. Lockwood be appointed warden there. His duties will be not only to supervise operations at the lake, but to direct tourists and vacation parties.

Strong, Comfortable Feet Vital to Sound Golf Game

By GENE SARAZEN
(As Told to Alan Gould)

Most golfers, including a lot of our best tournament players, pay too little attention to their feet.

Proper footwear is a factor too often neglected in our modern teaching of the game, although there has been steady improvement since the old days when we were taught that it was the proper thing to lift the left heel so that it pointed to the hole.

Now, the good player barely lifts his heel at all. He stands well balanced, with feet fairly close together, not spread wide apart or anchored awkwardly so that the swing is hampered.

You have missed something if you failed to study the footwear of stars like Walter Hagen or Ben Jones. To me it was a thing of beauty to watch. Strength in the Feet

Three-fourths of a golfer's strength comes from his feet; not only the way he uses them but how well he is shod. It is important to wear the right kind of shoes.

Nothing will tire a man out quicker than bad shoes, and I mean the him, out mentally, as well as physically. If he wonders why he feels "fagged out" toward the end of the round or why he can't go 35 holes in one day without finishing weakly, it's probably because he has not outfitted his feet properly.

Ever since I learned that lesson myself I have had my own shoes made to order, and I always inspect a pupil's footwear along with his clubs, stance and grip.

Advocate Thick Soles

I advocate thick soles. I can recall noticing the shoes worn by Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, the famous British professionals. They were heavy-soled and comfortable. They never had any trouble with their feet as a result, and Vardon, now 63, still can go 35 holes a day.

Between rounds it is a good idea to change shoes or wear a pair of slippers to ease the feet. Take good care of them and they will carry motion for a directed verdict and dismissal of the state's claim that a conspiracy existed between County Judge Fehl, suspended Sheriff Gordon L. Schermerhorn, Walter Jones, mayor of Rogue River, former County Jailer John Glenn of Ashland, and Tom L. Brechen of Ashland, a ward politician, to destroy the ballots and prevent the recount.

Although he now is 63, Harry Vardon, famous British professional, still can breeze through 35 holes in a day. Sarazen ascribes Vardon's endurance to the excellent care he always has taken of his feet. Gene has his own shoes made to order.

Larney Admitted

In his statement before the court with the jury excused, Attorney A. C. Hough, contended that La Dieu was guilty only of larceny—"the facts prove that," but a lesser crime than burglary, as charged in the indictments.

The defense also contended that the state had not made a sufficient showing to establish a conspiracy, but was overruled by the court.

Connors, when first questioned by the state, refused to admit a portion of his signed statement, holding that La Dieu was at a meeting in the county judge's office at the courthouse, on the afternoon of February 20, and claimed "I don't always know my own signature." The court rejoined: "Everybody knows his own signature."

The witness claimed that he was "bumboozled" by the officers into signing it, and that he had been made promises of immunity if he would enter a plea of guilty, which he did.

Admits Statement

Court recessed while Connors read his signed statement, and then admitted his signature thereon.

Connors testified that he had visited the courthouse, when the recount was under consideration and was instructed by Wesley McKittrick to "watch the steps when the Sexton's bring the ballot pouches back." Connors said he was instructed, "Never mind what for, do as I tell you; get a bunch of the boys, and be ready."

"I finally got it out of McKittrick that the pouches were to be seized and we were to get in the road of the people chasing them and fall down and trip them." He declined the proposition testified that after the court had ordered the recount "I thought the decision was wrong, because the court had misjudged the honesty of some of the witnesses," and he was willing to "take the law into his own hands."

Banks Held Same View

The witness was unable to name anybody but L. A. Banks "who felt as I did." Banks told him, he testified, "the ballots should never be recounted."

Connors said he attended the courthouse "Congress" and first saw the Sexton's when the meeting was half over, and was "asked by Burley, to help seal the ballots," and "throw the recount."

He asked, "why pick on me?" and was told, "A little fellow was needed to crawl through the window." He refused to enter the vault alone and the younger Sexton went with him. "He handed the pouches to me, and I put them on the window sill, and somebody—I don't know who—took them."

Connors said he then went to the News office, and went back to "get more ballots later," when McKittrick requested him to do so.

A mild imputation by Connors, against the court, brought a mild rebuke from the court.

Connors suspects Kelly

He asserted that Attorney Kelly had told him, "I can fix things up with Judge Norton for a suspended sentence."

Connors admitted he had talked to defense lawyers in La Dieu's trial, and in the Banks murder trial, and said, "I did not trust Judge Kelly."

Kelly named by the court with Attorney Desours to defend him.

Connors said he signed his amended statement to get out of jail, and that state police officers had told him:

"We don't want you boys—we want the leaders—we want to get L. A. Banks."

Much of Connors' testimony on direct examination was corroborative of the testimony of the Sexton boys.

Rawles Conley of Sams Valley, testified that Burley Sexton told him in the courthouse, four or five days

SPONGES STUFFED IN HORSE'S NOSE

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., June 13.—(UPI)—The first case of tampering at an American track this year was uncovered today when Con Amore, heavy favorite for the Brooklyn race on today's program, was found to have had both nostrils stuffed without the knowledge of her trainer, A. Hutchins.

The mare, owned by J. W. Y. Martin of Baltimore, acted suspiciously during the inspection period this morning and the track veterinarian was called in. He probed both nostrils and found an obstruction deeply imbedded in both of them. Her withdrawal was ordered and the case turned over to the Pinkerton Detective agency.

A law recently passed in Albany, makes it a felony to sponge a race horse.

JAPANESE FLOPS BULLDOG JACKSON

PORTLAND, Ore., June 13.—(AP)—Bulldog Jackson of Klamath Falls won the first fall from Temura Higami of Japan, only to lose the main event of last night's wrestling card here when the Jiu Jitsu artist came back to take the next two.

Jackson weighed 137 pounds and Higami 159.

Jackson slapped on a hammerlock to take the first fall in 13 minutes. Higami evened it up with a series of whip wristlocks in 16 minutes, then took the deciding tumble 12 minutes later with another series of whip wristlocks.

Otis Clingman, 160, of Oklahoma City won the semi-windup from Gorilla Pogle, 161, Argentinian, getting two falls out of three.

NEW YORK, June 13.—(UPI)—Jim Browning of Verona, Mo., recognized in New York state as world's heavy-weight wrestling champion, made a successful but uninteresting defense of his title claims last night by grappling to a decision over Jumping Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football star, before a crowd of 8000 in Yankee stadium.

KARASICK AND DEMETRAL GRAPPLE ATTRACTS FANS

Ticket sales for the Harry Demetral, Al Karasick wrestling bout tomorrow night are exceeding all previous ticket sales. It was reported yesterday, and Mack Lillard, promoter, is expecting a filled armory when the two muscle grinding behemoths tear at each other in the main event. Medford wrestling fans have seldom before had such a card presented, as Karasick and Demetral are among the leading heavyweights of the game on the coast.

Karasick claimed the light-heavyweight championship of the world before he turned to the heavyweight ranks, and he has been battering the heaves about the ring much the same as he did the light-heavies. Demetral, a wily old ring general, has also enjoyed a long and colorful career, having tugged at the best of them for years.

Swede Anderson has been training intensively since he started wrestling a few months ago, and especially during the past week as he will meet his first big-shot opponent, Joe Reynolds, in a preliminary match to the Demetral-Karasick bout. Reynolds, who is no mean wrestler himself, and Anderson will go 45 minutes, or for a best two out of three. It will be a contest between almost unbelievable strength, on Anderson's part, and the finished wrestling of Joe Reynolds.

Al Karasick.

Van Wegan On Stand

L. O. Van Wegan, reputed "Congressman" indicted with Henrietta B. Martin, president of the "Good Government Congress" on a buggy-whippling charge, testified that he brought Banks, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Brown, and Mrs. Martin to the "Good Government Congress" meeting, and
