

BUTTER AND EGGS UNDERTONE WEAK ON DULL TRADING

PORTLAND, Ore., June 15.—(AP)—Shaded prices were reflected for butter on the open market. The market was generally inclined to show slight degree of weakness with increasing dullness in the movement of anything except the two top scores. These were at least held steady upon the open market with most of the movement into coolers. Sales of first cubes were mostly 1/2 pound below established quotations on the exchange, which literally means 1/2 loss considering handling charges. As yet no change was noted in butterfat.

Market for eggs continued to reflect a weak undertone with the bulk of local sales 1 to 2c down below prices established by local co-ops. The difference between the top price and the buying price on current receipts was too great. Slowness was generally reflected in the market for live chickens, even though there was no further price change for the day. The surprising demand for dressed turkeys which has continued generally this season for a longer period than ever before known, was still keeping prices on a rather firm basis and especially for fair quality hens. Supply of strawberries remained inadequate to take care of demand, with quality generally mediocre. Here and there some selected stuff was available and sold quickly at $2.25 crate which was also the top for Clark seedling.

There was an overstock of country killed spring lambs in the local trade, and not only were prices lower but there was sufficient stock in sight to fill demand for perhaps a week. With receipts increasing, sales of California apricots were slow here, although quality was good and prices low. The lack of northwest supply was expected to stimulate demand somewhat for the southern offerings. There continued much excitement in the market for tomatoes. While the local hothouse stock was in chief call and at full recent prices, late outdoor stock from west Texas has been quite good and prices were higher. Easter tone was showing generally in the market for cabbage. Not only was there an increasing local supply as well as from The Dalles, but California was still shipping. Sales were lower all around.

MEDFORD WATER DECLARED IDEAL IN MAKING BEER

He knows, his beer—how to make it, how to drink it, and he recommends Medford water as best for the beer—Louis F. Kappler of Sacramento, California, here as brewmaster for the Medford brewery now under construction. His knowledge of beer and its making he has gained from heredity, education and environment, so to speak, for his father was one of the world's great brewers, "Louis" at the head of the Wahl Heinius brewing school in Chicago in 1903 and 1904 and since the age of 17 he has been brewing, which means over a period of 40 years, with the alcohol out during the prohibition era.

Charles Kappler, father of Louis, was the brewer of the famous Etina beer at Etina Mills, Cal., where he established a brewery back in 1870. In 1909, speaking of his product the United States Health bulletin describes it as reaching "a high degree of perfection, from its care in preparation, its freedom from adulteration, the purity of water used in its manufacture and the sanitary and hygienic methods employed in the handling of it." Again in 1911, the United States Health department bulletin refers to the Etina beer, then brewed by Mr. Kappler, who is here to brew Medford's beer. "We recommend," the report reads, "the product of this brewery to the public."

The beer Mr. Kappler stated today was tested in New York. All was sent to the laboratories without the knowledge of the brewers and the Etina brewery was found to have the best beer in the United States. At the World Fair in San Francisco in 1915 the Etina beer again came in for honors, winning the gold medal. The brewery was operated until prohibition and then dismantled. Mr. Kappler learned the trade from his father and continued with it, working the Acme and National breweries in San Francisco after dismantling of the Kappler brewery and in the Buffalo brewery at Sacramento. He expects to start the brew working here in about a month. Asked how he liked his own product, he replied today, "I drink it, and if it weren't good I'd be the first to say so."

PLOW BORING IN M'KENZIE DRIFTS

BEND, Ore., June 15.—(AP)—The rotary plow used in opening the McKenzie Pass highway to automobile travel, today was boring its way into the big cut at the east approach to Summit lava beds through drifts 25 feet deep, with only 100 feet to go. The crew expected to finish the work in the cut today, despite the great liminary organization plans outlined. The two sales speakers then left this morning to carry their campaign on to Klamath Falls. Broken windows glazed by Trowbridge Cabinet Works. Phone 642. We'll haul away your refuse. City Sanitary Service.
