Can Local Fruit

F EACH before his own door swept the village would be clean." If each housewife in Jackson county who plans to put up peaches, apricots and cherries would insist upon home grown products, the entire community would be benefitted, including themselves.

The local small fruit is superior to the cull fruit shipped in. and when the harvest starts, the price will be no more, probably less. The only advantage California enjoys is the earlier season. But to the home canner, July is as advantageous as June.

Providing a market for local fruits, would not only help the growers, but would provide payrolls, distributing money here at home, instead of sending it to California. Every one would be benefitted, from the worker and producer, through the retailer, to the consumer.

WE TALK a great deal about that old slogan, "With Med-ford trade is Medford made." But when it comes down to cases, we too often make our purchases elsewhere and too often local dealers, make selling features of products produced outside of the state.

Why not all get together on this matter of small fruits and give the preference to local producers throughout the season. Then extend that program to lumber, cheese, boxes, grapes and nuts,-whatever is produced in Southern Oregon.

Nothing would do more to accelerate the return of prosper ity, in Southern Oregon, and assure the maximum benefits when better times are here.

Another Victory for Repeal

THE victory of the anti-prohibitionists in Iowa, following a similar victory in the very citadel of organized prohibition, n Indiana, removes all reasonable doubt as to where the people of the northern part of this country stand, regarding repeal of the 18th amendment. The only hope of the Drys, now rests in the arid south,-and while certain southern states are sure to vote dry, it is very doubtful if the necessary 13 states can be secured, to prevent repeal.

SOCIAL REVOLUTION NIGHT Perhaps you noticed in the papers the other day the word from Moscow, Rusaia that the Soviet will engineer "social revolution in America, with women lecturers drawn from the ranks." This may cause the dire auspicion to arise, that hellraising may be resumed in these parts, dur-ing the fall and winter, and that few if any of the dishes will be washed during the period of revolting and being sociable, at one and the same time. All the layman can say is "Heaven forbid!" and pray that con-stituted authority will not wait for Heaven to act, but do some forbid-ding themselves, before many lec-ture are abed. T IS well to remember, however, that with the repeal of prohibition, the liquor problem will not be SOLVED. The hard work for those opposing prohibition, will then only begin.

For a more satisfactory method of liquor control and the promotion of real temperance, will then have to be devised. than was secured by absolute prohibition.

It is the view of this newspaper that this can-and will bedone. Our own preference is for strict government or state control, with severe penalties for liquor abuses in every form. While a majority of the American people are opposed to continued national prohibition, they are equally opposed to anything approaching the return of the saloon, and the conditions that prevailed when the saloon was legally sanctioned.

ding themselves, before many lec-tures are abed. The Social Revolution, from all that can be pleaned in the way of information, is no different from the plain garden variety of revolution, except that the revolutionists are sociable, and desire that good man-nets prevail while a felony is being committed, and no profanity when the law acknes the guilty. In other words, ere a bit of charming skull-duggery is inflicted, a chapter should be read by the chairman from the "Rules of Etiquette," to have the impression that no one so polite abouid go to prison. Of course, if any social revolutionist cares to quote Scripture, or put in a good word for the constitution, it will be Okay with all concerned. The Soviet seems to be laboring under the delusion, for some reason, that the women will make the best social revolutionists. It is not known where the Boviet captured the idea, but they desire 'a generous mixture of beauty and brains." This is a great combination in most any kind of an enterprise, but so a rule the possessor of either or both talents, is interested in less disturbing things than a revolution, and can attract stention without being an outstand-THE people rule in these matters. Just as all good citizens should yield to the popular will, in the matter of prohibition repeal, they should also yield in the matter of preventing the return of the saloon.

Here then is a double public service to be performed. Under the leadership of President Roosevelt, who must have definite ideas on the subject, we feel confident that a practical plan will he worked out, which will promote real temperance on one hand; and eliminate both the evils of the saloon and the evils of prohibition, on the other.

attention without being an outstand-ing nulasce. We fear that any social revolution will turn out to be more of a social, than a revolution, and the Soviet will not get a run for their money expended, if any. Mos-cow may get some lady revolutionists, but should not bank on the brains, or the beauty. THAT the Owen-Oregon mill will reopen early in July and employ 250 men is good news.

It will open because the lumber market is steadily improving, with demand increasing, as a result of depleted stocks, and building for the first time in three years, on the upgrade, along

Of course the lady revolutionists would have to be mad at something, to be success-ful social revolutioniste, and it might as well be the established form of government as the housework. This would knock by the matron of the women's ward of the state prison.
