WHEAT SKIDS TO FORMER LEVELS

CHICAGO, June 28.—(AP)—Dollar wheat went into eclipse today, recent big upturns in prices being suddenly wiped out by sensational reverse market action.

Uncertainty attending the effect of quick application of the government's new process tax and farm bonus system was asserted in some quarters to be largely responsible for the upset of values. All the grain markets, however, had been honeycombed with stop-loss orders to sell on price setbacks and as soon as these orders were dislodged, an avalanche of profit taking sales carried the markets down, with wild rallies intervening but failing to last.

Wheat closed wild at almost the day's bottom prices, with all deliveries below $1.00, and May contracts at 99 1/2.

The wheat market as a whole finished 3 1/2-6 cents under yesterday's finish, corn 3-4 1/2 down, oats 3 1/4-4 off, and provisions varying from 3 cents decline to a rise of 20 cents.

SIX WOMEN AND SIX MEN NAMED HEAR TESTIMONY

R. F. D. No. 2, under questioning by the state admitted he attended the self-styled "Good Government Congress" convales, in the courthouse, the night the ballots were stolen. He heard no commotion, and at first could not recall any of the speakers. He finally named Henrietta B. Martin and L. A. Banks, as two of the platform orators. The court excused Hammett.

The final juror accepted was Mrs. Mary E. Glenn of Valleyview, no relation to the defendant. In response to state questions, Mrs. Glenn said: "The law is the law, and I am for law and order." She is a former school-teacher and a resident here for 20 years, with the exception of five years spent in Alaska.

Roan Green, former Medford high school football star, now a lumberman, was the first alternate accepted. Green had heard the vote stealing talked, but had formed no opinion. Mrs. Fannie Thompson of this city, who said she once served on a jury in Pittsburgh, Pa., was the final alternate chosen. She has resided here two years. "The only people I know are people I meet in church," Mrs. Thompson said. "Then you don't know any lawyers," remarked defense counsel, causing a ripple of laughter to spread over the half-filled courtroom.

Fixed Opinions Bar

Before Mrs. Thompson was accepted three men were rejected—Peter Fick of Jacksonville, and Fred Taylor of Ashland, because of "fixed opinions." O. L. Payne of Ashland was excused when he declared, "I'm sick of the whole mess." The jury was excused at eleven o'clock this morning, until two this afternoon, to go home and prepare for a hotel stay, during the trial, under the custody of three bailiffs.

Glenn, a man past middle-aged, has resided in Ashland the past five years, coming here from Coos county. At the early morning meeting at the home of county judge Earl H. Fehi last January 2, he was named county jailer, by the county judge, with the approval of suspended Sheriff Gordon L. Schermerhorn. The appointment was a surprise and a shock to many.

Named as Ringleader
In the La Dieu and Jones trials, both resulting in convictions, evidence was adduced by the state to show that Glenn was one of the ring leaders of the crime. He was pictured as the "contact man" to the Sexton brothers; that he "propositioned" them to commit the vote burglary.

"or we will all be out in the street," and proffered the Sextons $10 apiece, and a good job—claiming "I have a pull with Judge Fehi." The Sexton brothers in their testimony described Glenn as the "assistant superintendent," who praised them for their ballot destruction. The evidence in the two previous ballot cases, also linked Glenn as present at "conferences" held in Fehi's office and in the courthouse corridors, before the ballot-stealing, when the state holds, the plot was hatched. The defense exercised its first challenge Tuesday afternoon, excusing Mrs. Agnes Sanderson of Beagle, K. B. Jones of Butte Falls was called in her place. Though he tried hard, he was excused by the court, because of deafness. Ross Tilley of Siskiyou was next called.

Marnie E. Olson of Medford, was excused by the defense in its second challenge. George R. Hammerley of Gold Hill, a miner, and nephew of Joe Hammerley, one of the counsel for the defense in the L. A. Banks murder trial, was called in his stead. Hammerley admitted he signed a "Good Government Congress" card, but never attended a meeting. When Attorney Moody for the state had finished, he said, aside: "I think you'll make a good juror."

The state in the exercise of its first challenge, excused Roscoe P. Doty, a lumberman of this city. Luke Kincaid, drawn in his place had opinions, and Clyde R. Richmond of Central Point was then selected. Richmond was an enthusiastic voter, man, answering all questions briskly and briefly. He said he knew "Chuck" Davis, one of the defendants, who have entered pleas of guilty.

The defense in the exercise of its third challenge excused Ross Tilley of Siskiyou. At this point in the proceedings, the court announced that the regular panel drawn last January was exhausted, and of the ten jurors drawn by the sheriff, only five were in court.

Those drawn were: June Earhart, Medford; O. D. Payne, Ashland; Fannie Thompson, Medford; E. H. Tucker, Brownboro; W. J. Edens, Jacksonville, Peter Fick, Jacksonville, Fred A. Taylor, Ashland; Roy W. Hellenbeck, Medford; B. W. Cody, Jacksonville; Allen Adams, Medford, and Mildred Coghill, Medford.

Formed Opinions
Henderson P. Disney, Dr. E. H.

Porter and C. M. Kidd, all of Medford, were excused because of fixed opinions, as was Claude Miles of Butte Falls, Victor Birdseye of Footh Creek, and Charles Long of Ashland.

Charles Bissas of Trail, former merchant, now a farmer, under examination by the state denied that he had taken any part in "congress" activities in the Trail district, or had discussed the local agitation or ballot thefts at the Trail store. Bissas believed he would be a fair and impartial juror.

Walter E. Miller, for 40 years a resident of the Applegate, under cross examination by the state, admitted that he had signed the Judge Norton recall petitions, and that "he had suspicions" about L. A. Banks or had broken down in Jackson county; and "might be sympathetic to the attackers of county officials."

CROONER CO-AUTHOR SEVEN-POUND HEIR

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 28.—(AP)—Bing Crosby, who flutters feminine hearts with tunes about moons and lilacs and whatnot, today was more interested in the mundane subject of bastards than in star-gazing. He's the co-author of a seven-pound, six-ounce baby boy, born at a Hollywood hospital last night to Mrs. Bing Crosby, the former Dixie Lee of the films.

Ye Poet's Corner

SONG OF THE LOGGER
By Grace Bray Deter
Smell of the river, smell of the pine,
Smell of the pitch and turpentine.
Blister on your hands and feet,
A white toothed smile for the friends
As you greet them on the bank.
Honest sweat on your sunburned face,
'Tis hard to equal the loggers' pace.
Chorus
Felling the trees on the slope of the hill,
Bucking and limbing and trimming until
There comes a sweet sound through
the clear mountain air,
The cook house gong is calling you
there.

Breakfast at dawn and out to the hill
Where the blue oak had one time been graded at his will.
Thinking perhaps of that day and hour
When he'd moved the whole camp
by his mighty power.
Your muscles are hardened, your eyes
are clear.
You feel like a king and know no
fear.

Whine of the saw and stroke of the ax;
Stoop way down and bend your back,
Lift with all your might and main,
Drive in the stubborn canthook again
Fasten the cable, pull in the slack,
Up goes a log to the top of the deck.

You may step to one side to let death
pass
In the shape of a log that is rolling fast!
You may frequently dodge a falling
log,
And you earn your hot biscuits by the sweat of your brow.
There's singing and laughter; there's story and jest.
By the beard of Paul Bunion, this life is the best.

COW IS IMPALED ON HARROW TEETH

A fine milk cow, owned by Albert Ross of Ross Lane, caused much excitement in that farming district yesterday by breaking through a fence and falling on a springtooth harrow. The teeth of the harrow were driven by the contact into her body in a number of places and it was necessary for eight men to aid in removing the animal from the farm equipment.

She bled profusely, but Dr. D. W. Stone, veterinarian, called to the farm, announced today that the cow would probably recover.
