

WINTER PEAR HAS SUGAR TO BENEFIT DIABETIS VICTIMS

Near 100 Per Cent Lebulose Content Discovered Says Professor Hartman — Is Also Rich in All Vitamins

HOOD RIVER, Ore., July 3.—(AP)—Winter pears grown in the orchards of Washington and Oregon, have an almost 100 per cent content of lebulose, the only form of sugar permitted to persons afflicted with diabetes, Professor Henry Hartman of Oregon State College, told mid-Columbia growers at a meeting here Saturday night.

Professor Hartman said this fact has been established through the research carried on by Professor J. C. Moore, also of Oregon State. The only other source of this sugar, so far discovered, Professor Hartman stated, is the Jerusalem artichoke. Thousands of carloads of the winter pears are shipped from Washington and Oregon annually, he said.

The pear was also found to be as rich in all vitamins as oranges and lemons, Professor Hartman said. Professor Moore has found in the east attempting to develop a practical method of recovering the lebulose, which was said to be in heavy demand.

COUNTERFEIT PAIR ARRESTED HERE

William McSwain of Portland, head of the federal secret service bureau there, is expected in Medford from Klamath Falls this afternoon to take John Williams, 19, and Donald Campbell, 21, north, on charges of passing counterfeit money. The two youths were arrested here Saturday by City Officers Tom Robinson and Joe Cave.

The two youths were reported as saying they purchased the money in San Francisco, paying $2.50 for $18 of the spurious coin. Williams was said to have $7.50 and Campbell, $7 of the worthless money. According to officers, Williams said they "flooded" Grants Pass with the money before coming here.

Officer McSwain was to take David W. Middleton, 43, before the United States commissioner in Klamath Falls this morning on counterfeiting charges. Middleton was arrested in Klamath Falls Saturday by state police with $1800 in worthless paper money in his possession.

CRATERIAN GIVEN NEW PAINT COAT

Those attending the show at the Craterian theatre the past few days have undoubtedly noticed all the work being done to the lobby and foyer. Painters have been working between shows and after shows at night. The foyer has already received a complete new coat of paint with new, to follow. New fixtures will be installed, new drapes hung, not only in the foyer and lobby but also in the auditorium. In fact, the entire theatre is undergoing its first redecoration for some time.

After the interior has been completed, the exterior will also undergo repairs and alterations. A new theatre sign and marquee, the very latest in neon signs, will be installed. The outer lobby will have new paint with the box-office also coming in for its share of refurbishment. When all this work is completed the Craterian will once again be the finest of southern Oregon and patrons will be able to enjoy all the modern features in theatre equipment.

MRS. TIBBETT JOINS NOTED HUSBAND FOR VISIT WITH TUCKERS

A tall attractive woman, attired in an ensemble of navy blue, trimmed in pink and white striped silk, and wearing a blue hat with pink petals on it, Mrs. Lawrence Tibbett, wife of the world's most famous baritone, arrived in Medford on the Shasta this forenoon with Miss Helen Garrett, to vacation at the Nion Tucker summer lodge, "Rogue's Roost," for a week.

Mrs. Tibbett said she thought her husband would have already arrived at the river place, making the trip by motor. They plan to remain here until next Sunday evening, she said. On a vacation visit to the coast, Mr. Tibbett is not engaging in any musical work this summer, Mrs. Tibbett said, but will resume his work in grand opera next fall in San Francisco, appearing in the season's most popular production, "Emperor Jones" and "Pagliacci."

Mr. and Mrs. Tibbett have been on the coast only a week, and have been visiting friends at San Mateo. They are joining a party of eight at Rogue's Roost, who came to Medford Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Henshaw are the parents of a daughter, weighing eight pounds, born today at Mrs. Stanley's home, 543 North Ivy street.

BIRTHS

WILLIAMS RITES IN I. O. O. F. CHARGE WEDNESDAY 4 P. M.

Arthur Benjamin Williams was born in Long Valley, Lassen county, Cal., Nov. 10, 1867. He attended school in Greenville, Plumas county, until he was 14 years of age, when he gave up school and went to work in the office of the Greenville Bulletin, where he worked for a number of years, later going to Salt Lake City and worked on the Salt Lake Tribune. He then went to Grand Junction and worked on a daily paper in that city for a time, then returned to Salt Lake City, where he worked again on the Tribune. Later he went to Mt. Pleasant, Utah, establishing a weekly newspaper that he called the Mt. Pleasant Pyramid. His health failed him and he sold his newspaper, but went to Richfield, Utah, and started another weekly, calling it the Richfield Reaper.

He started in with a job press, making a four-page paper, 10x14. In eight years he had paid $4000, equipped his office with a modern typewriter.

Other speakers included William H. Hensley of Seattle, secretary of the Oregon-Washington pear bureau, and Dr. W. A. Schoenfeld, dean of Oregon State.

setting machine and electric press, putting out a 16-page regular paper, with a circulation of 1500. During this time his health was not good, but by sheer pluck and will-power he gave all his energy to his paper, community and family. In 1908 he sold his paper and came to Medford and went to work on the Medford Sun as night editor, later going to Reno, Nev., but after a year in that city he returned to Medford and resumed work on the Medford Mail, now the Medford Mail Tribune, where he remained until three weeks ago when a spell of flu forced him to bed.

He was removed to the Sacred Heart hospital ten days ago when pleurisy pneumonia, with chronic complications developed, making it impossible for him to overcome the disease. He passed away at 7:30 Saturday night.

He made friends wherever he was, owing to his congenial and charitable nature, and no one asked for a helping hand that he did not cheerfully respond. He was a staunch believer in his community and its organization.

Besides his widow, he leaves to mourn his loss, one son, Leo B. Williams; two daughters, Mrs. A. B. Hess and Miss Helen Williams; three grand-children, Gloria and Hugh Williams and Little Billie Hess; three brothers and four sisters, four of whom at present live at Beagle, O. R. and J. H. Williams, Mrs. R. H. Seemiller and Mrs. R. E. Boyles; also his aged mother, who is 83 years old, and a cousin, who was his companion from boyhood, E. N. Day of Edgewood, Cal.

COMRADES WILL GIVE LAST HONOR TO SLAIN OFFICER

machine was stopped during a routine check of traffic and that Baucum found something suspicious about the car's papers, planning to return it and the men to Grants Pass for investigation. He has taken Bowles into own machine and had approached Barrier whom he left for the moment in the admittedly-stolen car to direct him to drive back to this city when he was shot down without warning. Klump told officers that when he saw Baucum fall as he passed the two cars he stepped up to reach a phone, but was overtaken by the two men and threatened against spreading the warning. He persisted and brought officers including State Policeman Taylor, stationed here. Taylor organized a posse of motorists when E. L. Wilson of Portland and Frank Lempe of Port Falls, Isarno, stopped to report they had seen two men push a machine off the grade on the north slope of Sexton mountain several miles back. Men Soon Located The citizens were armed with available weapons including those of the dead state trooper and moved forward, stopping and questioning cars along the way until they finally came upon the men themselves apparently trying to hitch-hike back past the scene of their crime. After the capture, a search disclosed the killers' car 300 feet below the highway where it had lodged against a log without overturning. It contained two bags of money and papers to indicate hold-ups and robberies. What desperate act the men were trying to conceal when Baucum was slain has not been discovered as yet due partly to their successful concealment of their weapons but fingerprints and descriptions have been sent broadcast over California where they gave their homes as Los Angeles and Huntington Park.
