He wasn't in any wreck. He didn't receive any injuries. But he did have a "grand trip to Crater Lake" yesterday...

Where the story got started, nobody seemed to know, but a lot of folks from Portland to San Francisco, "heard it on the radio."

STATE, DEFENSE USE CHALLENGES IN JURY CHOICE

Wendt was excused when, under defense questioning, he said he was a neighbor of E. A. Fleming of Jacksonville, who has admitted ballot theft, and "I am afraid I couldn't take it."

Wendt admitted acquaintanceship with the Jennings family, but said that it would not influence his verdict, and that he had no prejudices against the defendant because L. A. Banks was also a co-defendant.

James A. Martin of Beagle was drawn in Wendt's place. Selection of the jury was delayed this morning by the arguments in the FBI change of venue plea.

It is thought possible that the jury may be completed late this afternoon. Close questioning by both sides continued today.

At the close of the first day of the trial of Gordon L. Schermhorn, suspended sheriff, charged with ballot theft, preliminary questions had been asked eleven of the prospective jurors, and questioning of the twelfth juror was underway.

Questioning of tallmen was exhaustive, and both sides and the court often stressed the point: "The defendant is entitled to a fair trial, and the state to a fair hearing."

The burden of the defense queries were: "Would the fact that the evidence will show that Gordon L. Schermhorn was around and in the courthouse on the night of the ballot theft influence you?"

"do you believe in a government by committee?" "did you belong to the Committee of 7000, or the Committee of 100?"

the extent of the prospective juror's acquaintance with Ralph G. Jennings, or either of his two sons; and "would the fact that the name of L. A. Banks will appear often in the testimony, and that he is a co-defendant, cause any prejudice?"

State Grand Jury. The state asked the jurors if they were members of the so-called "Good Government congress," if they knew, or were related to any of the defendants, and if they would return a verdict in accordance with the evidence from the witness stand and the law as dealt by the court, and if the age of the defendant would influence them against a verdict of guilty. None of the jurors examined yesterday had signed a "congress" card, and few had attended any of their meetings.

Two said they had signed the "Committee of 100" petitions, for the restoration of normalcy in Jackson county, but had taken no further part.

Albert Crump of the Applegate, declared he had no prejudices or opinions, would be able to view the evidence, fairly and impartially, and had read little of the local turmoil.

William Joe Nee, teacher in the Jacksonville schools, said he had paid no attention to the ballot-theft trials, except the verdicts, but did follow closely reports of the Banks murder trial, believed to no committees, and did not know the Jennings family, or the three Jacksonville defendants who have entered pleas of guilty, or admitted their roles.

Ashcraft Has Idea. Perry Ashcraft of Ashland said he had signed the "Committee of 100" petition, and would "like to go home."
