Famous Photoplay Coming Sunday to Hunt's Craterian "Be Mine Tonight," opening Sunday at the Craterian theater, comes to Medford with the most glowing notices ever given any picture. Critics and public alike are unanimous in their praise wherever the picture has played. In practically every city where the picture has played—and in all the key cities—it has been held over anywhere from two weeks to two months. Fred White, drama editor of the Morning Oregonian, has this to say about "Be Mine Tonight": "Hollywood had better look to her laurels if she would continue to dominate the motion picture world. Across the water from Europe has come a photoplay as clean as the Alps, as joyous as spring and full of grand entertainment for the masses and classes of all ages from 7 to 70. It is a picture to please the hardened cynic with its cleverness and delight the ingenuous with its florid romance, to leave every blessed person who sees it uplifted and cheered by delightful entertainment." In the use of music, "Be Mine Tonight" is entirely different from any other picture that has come before. Instead of having the characters breaking out in songs without any definite cause other than that the script calls for a song at that particular point, "Be Mine Tonight" has an artful blending of classic and popular material. Every bit of music introduced is part of the story, and there is a plausible reason for its inclusion. Music, however, isn't the only distinctive part of the picture. For sheer pictorial beauty, it has never been equaled. Dialogue is kept at a minimum and, when used, is brisk, vital and clever. Sound recording is of an exceptionally high quality and has not been excelled by any of our domestic films. The cast of "Be Mine Tonight" is virtually unknown in this country. Jan Kiepura, celebrated international tenor, has the leading role. Magda Schneider, an attractive German girl, possesses of a genuine, vivacious youth, carries the feminine role to perfection. Others in the cast are favorites of the British musical-
