Miss Evanson Plans Many With Recital.

By Mrs. Hattie Gore. Before a generous staid audience of relatives and interested friends, Miss Betty Evanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Evanson, played a recital of piano music Tuesday evening at the Baldwin Piano Recital hall.

Miss Evanson has been a student for two years of George Hopkins, head of the piano department of the University of Oregon, and has made excellent progress in her study. She shows in her playing the effects of schooling in the modern principles of piano technique, necessary to con-trof of tonal effects on the triple-strung instruments now in use.

The delightful and well-balanced program included three contrasting groups, representing Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin and the ultra-moderns, Dohnanyi, Albeniz, Rachmaninoff and McDowell.

The second and third movements of the F Minor Concerto, by Chopin, were greatly enjoyed and were executed with fine feeling for style, phrasing and shaded melodic line. The orchestra part for second piano, was played by Betty's sister, Miss Helen Evanson.

The various numbers were interesting musically and the playing was marked by intelligence and painstaking care in preparation. The program was given entirely from memory and was one of the best presented this spring and summer by Medford's music students.

Mrs. H. O. Purucker, who manages the Baldwin shop, is to be congratulated upon providing the attractive and commodious hall, where musicians may present their programs to a public eager to hear good music.

Famous Stars In Brilliant Revue Craterian Soon

One of the largest all-star casts ever assembled for a motion picture plays in Paramount's "International House," lavishly-produced, musical comedy which comes to the Craterian theatre Thursday. Peggy Hopkins Joyce, W. C. Fields, Rudy Vallee, Stuart Erwin, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Sari Maritza, Col. Froopnagle and Budd, Cab Callaghan and his Orchestra, Baby Rose Marie, Bela Lugosi, Lorna Anderson, Sterling Holloway, Franklin Pangborn, Raymond Bress, Lumsden Hare and the Girls in Cellophane are the featured players, and between them they represent the best talent of screen, stage and radio.

"International House" is to comedy what "Grand Hotel" was to serious drama. Its action is set in a mythical Chinese city where representatives of big business from all over the world are assembled to inspect and bid on a marvelous new invention.

Legalized Beer Is Theme Rialto Film

America passes the crisis and takes the road back in one of the most brilliant pictures of the year, "Song of the Eagle," which opened yesterday at the Rialto theatre. It is a majestic presentation of two of the most seething decades in American life, from 1913 to 1933, and, in honest manner, pictures this mighty nation's courageous fight to regain its pride and freedom.

Here is a vast sweeping panorama of national life as background for the tale of one family's intrepid stand against the forces of evil and corruption. Such excellent players as Charles Bickford, Richard Arlen, Mary Brian, Jean Hersholt, Louise Dresser, Andy Devine and George E. Stone are in the featured cast.

Jenkins' Comment

He needs three men, he says, and CANT FIND 'EM. Says he'll probably have to go outside and hunt 'em up. Local supply of labor appears to be about exhausted.

Believe it or not. But that's what he said, in the presence of witnesses.

SCHERMERHORN FEARED SEXTONS WOULD CONFESS

and Lay denied that he said "Lowd was mixed up," but admitted he had said Schermerhorn was "implicated." Hot words flew between Hughes and Lay, the witness said, in the presence of a crowd around the robbery scene.

Lowd testified that Schermerhorn appeared "put out" and was more "nervous" after the robbery discovery than before.

Neither of us seemed to think much of that kind of talk," Lowd testified. Lowd said he told the state police all "I knew," and the auto borrowing, soon after the vote stealing.

Lowd testified that after the robbery, he told Schermerhorn, Jones, his son-in-law, Hugg, and Glenn in the sheriff's office, when Hugg identified Lowd's auto as the one he had seen in Rogue River a few hours after the theft, "I served notice on the four of them, I don't know anything about whether you fellows do, or not, but I am not going to be implicated." None said anything, "but all looked at me," Lowd said Jones also admitted Lowd's car had been in Rogue River.

Lowd testified it had been borrowed by Arthur La Dieu and Wesley McKittrick, the night of the thefts, on a pretext.

Lowd also testified that Brecheen, Jones, Glenn and Feh held frequent daily conferences in Schermerhorn's private office, each and after the robbery, and that each often entered through the tax department, an out of the way examination.

On cross-examination, a defense counsel asked many long involved questions on minor points, and Attorney Newman made mild objection when Attorney Moody called them "long-winded."

Howard Lowd corroborated his brother about the absence of the latter's auto on the night of the robbery, and its muddy condition when returned.

Cross-examination of O. O. Clancy, a jail inmate, took the major part of the morning session, the defense endeavoring to pin Clancy down to the time of Schermerhorn's four appearances in the county jail on the night of the robbery. The witness would not be explicit as to time. Clancy testified the conferences and coming and goings of Schermerhorn, Glenn, Chuck Davis and the Sexton brothers aroused his suspicion, and he made a note of the names and happenings, which he embodied in a letter to his mother, with instructions to turn it over to the governor.

The defense contended, from its queries, that Clancy had concocted his testimony as a means to "get out of jail." They laid the foundation for impeachment, by asking Clancy if he had not told Myles Randall, a jail mate, "we will both hit the sidewalk if this letter is mailed," and had told Nye Matthews of the Eagle Point district, also then jail detained "a man will say anything to get out of jail."

Up to noon today 46 witnesses had testified for the state, 13 appearing yesterday, when the best progress of the trial was made.
