

COUNCIL HANDLES VARIED GRIST AT REGULAR SESSION

Electric Material Sales Ordinance—Beer Permits—Rail Crossing—Street Signs Items Eyed by Dads

Definite action to eliminate from the Medford markets, sale of electrical materials and devices, which have not been approved safe from fire and personal standpoints, was taken last night by the city council in regular session, when an ordinance, aimed to accomplish that end, passed the first reading.

The council's business throughout the session was varied, ranging from authorization of funds for the paving of the Fourth street opening to granting of beer licenses, and approval of ordinances.

To Curb Fire Hazards
The first named, regulating the sale or exposure for sale in the city of Medford of any electrical material, device or appliance, designed for attachment to or installation in or on any electrical circuit, is aimed to prevent a fire hazard, claimed to exist and to provide personal safety. Similar ordinances are in operation in Portland, San Francisco, Seattle and other cities. Frank Rogers, city inspector, informed the council. The ordinance will require that the maker's name, trade-mark or other identification symbol shall be on the material or appliance, together with appropriate ratings necessary to determine the purpose for which intended. Penalties for altering or defacing such information are also provided in the ordinance.

Another ordinance, making possible the erection of across street signs, was passed by the council last night and permission granted George Hunt for installation of a sign near his Craterian theater.

To Pave Crossing
A bill for paving the Fourth street opening with materials, approved by the Southern Pacific, at the cost of $550, was presented by Councilman Al Littrell and authorized by the city dads.

Applications for five beer licenses were presented by C. C. Darby of the license committee and granted by the council. Applicants were: O'Hara of the Nash building, who asked for distributor's license; the three Safeway stores of the city, asking for retailer's license; and Mack Lillard, promoter of wrestling matches, who asked permission to retail beer at the armory on nights of matches.

Report on Memorial Fund
Report on surplus funds, subscribed to the Prescott Memorial, erected in the city park, was made by C. C. Furnas. The council voted to leave expenditure of the surplus up to the committee, which previously announced that the sum would be added to the Prescott trust fund. The council also voted to send letters of appreciation to persons contributing materials and labor to erection of the monument to the slain official.

A letter commending City Superintendent Fred Scheffel, upon preparation of the application for National Recovery Act funds for installation of new units to the Medford sewage system, was read by Mayor E. M. Wilson. The letter was written by the Portland board, representing the administrator of the National Recovery Act, who will decide upon the application.

The matter of adjusting food prices to comply with present low wages, brought to the attention of the mayor by the secretary of the League of Oregon Cities, was filed for further consideration.

POULTRY CONVENTION JULY 27-28 AT O. S. C.

The tenth annual Oregon poultry convention is announced for July 27 and 28 at Oregon State college, where it will be held in the usual place in special quarters near the poultry and veterinary plant on the west campus.

This convention is open to every poultryman in the state without charge, although combined on the educational program will be the annual meeting of the Oregon Poultrymen's association, headed by F. H. Cockell of Milwaukee. This association has long served as the official "mouthpiece" of the Oregon poultry industry and is constantly looking after its interests, say those familiar with its work.

GETS FIRST GALLON NEW FLYING "A"

San Francisco, July 19.—The first of many millions of gallons of the new Flying A gasoline, introduced today throughout the coast by Associated Oil company, was received in San Francisco by P. E. Allan, domestic sales manager for the company, in recognition of his activity in the huge advertising campaign which will carry the message of greater smoothness and quietness to western motorists. The new Flying A, amber colored and a distinguishing mark, is basically different from any non-premium gasoline on the market today, and is said to come closer to Ethyl performance than any other motor fuel.
