When a pretty detective is put on his trail, he is forced to marry her in order to save his own neck. Frank Morgan is also in the cast as the phony doctor Tracy uses in his schemes.

TRUCK BILL HITS TRUCK GARDENERS OF ROGUE VALLEY

Truckmen, during other seasons, have carried the produce of the small grower, including fruits as well as vegetables, into Klamath county and northern California, which offer splendid markets. Under the laws, these men are prohibited from buying their neighbors' produce for this transportation. The growers do not produce in quantities sufficient to satisfy the demands of large produce companies and are therefore ignored and their crops denied a market.

Most of them have no other income and are behind on many small accounts which they expect to meet this year, as they have in other years, through marketing of fruits and vegetables.

"It's our life, we're fighting for," he added, emphasizing his demand for action. "It is the most vicious legislation ever passed in this state, and the farmer didn't realize the seriousness of it until he was suddenly confronted with the loss of his market."

The present injunction, promoted by opponents of the Truck and Bus bill, he explained, fails to solve, even temporarily the farmers' problem, as it does not affect the peddler's act.

What course, the farmers are asking Governor Meier to follow in promoting relief, Mr. Estes did not explain, stating that they are asking for "relief and immediate relief, that they may be spared asking the county for aid."

The Jackson county market is not adequate to consume all the produce raised here, Mr. Estes stated. Klamath county has always offered this region a fine market and by transporting fruits and vegetables to the neighboring county the growers have been able, also, to bring in Klamath potatoes at less cost.

The new laws, he stated, will obviously benefit the large transportation and produce companies only, and will, if permitted to stand, place many self-supporting people on county aid. These people, Mayor Estes pointed out, have neither time nor money to fight the laws through the courts. They are, therefore, asking the cooperation of all persons, affected, in placing the matter before Governor Meier.

To accomplish this end, they ask a large attendance at the meeting Monday night at the Talent City hall.
