GIRL SCOUTS OF PHOENIX IN CAMP

Girl Scouts of America, troop No. 8 of Phoenix under supervision of the captain, Miss Lottie May Watkins and Lieutenant Mrs. Loyal Poling and Dr. Burt V. Standaert, a camp physician and instructor in first aid, spent all of last week in camp at Jackson Hot Springs.

The week was very pleasantly and profitably spent, the troop having been thoroughly organized so that the work and play was nicely divided and shared equally by all. The girls cooperated beautifully in all the plans and the hikes and other diversions were enjoyed, though all agreed that the swimming took first place.

Every girl did her best to be an Honor Scout and succeeded so well that it was very hard to make any distinction. Mary Jean Barnes, Estelle Wilcox, Glee Holbrook, Virginia High, Doris Richardson, Maxine Cobleigh, Jeanette McAbee, Doris Bell and June Wright, all registered scouts, were in attendance at the camp. A pleasant surprise was given the troop on Friday evening by its families in the form of a swimming party followed in camp by refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake. Camp broke on Saturday and all returned home with many pleasant memories of the days spent in Camp Jackson.

PHOTO OF BLONDE IN NUDE CLUE IN MURDER MYSTERY

JAMAICA, L. I., Aug. 7.—(UP)—Police studied six photographs of a nude blonde today as a possible clue to the slayer of Henry F. Sanborn, 44, railroad executive found buried head down in a vertical grave.

The photographs were found among Sanborn's effects in the railroad Y. M. C. A. room in which he lived despite his reputed wealth. Police reported they had questioned the young woman in the pictures, that she had admitted posing and had denied knowledge of Sanborn's death.

A berry-picker found Sanborn's grave in a thicket near here yesterday. He stumbled over a boot. Looking closer he discovered the boot was attached to a buried body.

Police exhumed the body and Chief Medical Examiner Charles Norris of New York made an autopsy which disclosed Sanborn's skull had been fractured and he had been shot in the left side of his body. He was unable to determine which wound had caused death but he believed the 200 pound railroad executive was dead when his body was thrust into the grave.

The body was identified by Sanborn's niece, Mrs. James Irving Bush, who hurried in evening dress from a dinner party at the home of Walter P. Chrysler to view the body at a morgue.

Mrs. Bush told Police Inspector John J. Gallagher that Sanborn had vanished on July 17, shortly before he was scheduled to marry a pretty Swedish stenographer against protest of his relatives.

Identity of the girl was kept a secret both by police and members of the Bush family. She was understood to be employed in a Manhattan brokerage office.

ELECTRIC STORMS STRIKE PROVINCES

WINNIPEG, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Scenes of desolation today marked the path of electrical storms which swept over Manitoba and Saskatchewan over the week-end. The storms left damaged crops, broken power and communication lines and extensive property damage in their wake.

Striking in Acadia in southern Saskatchewan, the storm spread destruction as it passed out on its way through Manitoba. Livestock was lost and crops flattened. Few areas escaped. Property damage will run into thousands of dollars.

Saskatchewan was hardest hit. A heavy deluge of hail raked the countryside adjacent to Moose Jaw, Anenold and Gravelbourg. Several persons were injured. More than three inches of hail fell at Moose Jaw and at Gravelbourg the roof was ripped off the convent and buildings overturned.

TRAGEDY CLIMAX TO GAY PARTY IN DIVORCEE'S HOME

BURLINGAME, Cal., Aug. 7.—(UP) A gay party in an exclusive home ended in tragedy last night when Fortune Nelson (Bunny) Burson, 33, popular San Francisco orchestra leader, died supposedly from injuries incurred in a fight with a football player.

The fight, in which flats and beer bottles were used, occurred between Burson and Richard Chilcott, San Mateo Junior college grid star, police said.

It was witnessed by Burson's fiancée, Frances Billison, 23, hostess of the party.

Chilcott, released on his own recognizance, told authorities he fought in self-defense after Burson knocked him unconscious with a bottle.

Other reports, conflicting with Chilcott's, caused police to order an intensive investigation of the affair. One person, whose name was withheld, told of being awakened by a woman allegedly screaming, "Oh, Dick, don't hit him again." The man answered, "I will hit him again." Police quoted her as saying, "Another man's voice was heard to plead, 'No, don't; please don't.' Someone else said, the woman was quoted, 'Let's get out of here; the police will be coming.'"

An autopsy, according to police, showed Burson's death was caused by brain hemorrhages due to injuries "inflicted by a blunt instrument." Discovery of a blackjack near the scene of the fight lent seriousness to the matter, authorities said.

Shortly before Burson was injured fatally, he assertedly turned upon his fiancée and knocked her unconscious with a blow when she tried to separate the fighters, police were told.

The party which ended in tragedy was held at the exclusive peninsula home of Mrs. Georgia Biddison, divorced wife of a wealthy New York stock broker. It was given in honor of Richard Biddison, 20, a son, who planned to leave for New York today. Most of the guests had left before the fight occurred.

Burson was widely known in the bay region. He had directed orchestras in San Francisco and Oakland for many years.
