The "Swat the Fly" campaign is opened editorially, as follows:

Attention is called to the report of Oregon Dairy and Food Commissioner J. D. Mickle, in which he bluntly sets forth facts that we all know.

Medford is a fly-cursed city. There are more flies than in almost any other city in the state. They are sufficient in quantity to be a public nuisance as well as public danger. And their existence is proof sufficient of the laxness of the city authorities, particularly the city health officer in enforcing the laws.

THE GRANGE

Lake Creek Grange met August 11 with a good attendance and an enjoyable meeting.

The lecture hour, of recreational nature, included dancing and games. Other features were a reading by Julia Sidley and stories by Myrtle Charley, Dorotha Meyer and Ernest Jones.

Music for the occasion was furnished by Frank Simpson, old-time violinist, with accompaniment by Russ Moore.

During the business session the advisability of buying a lighting plant for the hall was discussed.

Arrangements are being made for an evening's entertainment, entitled "Spooks," to be given at the Grange hall at an early date, on a percentage basis, if a date can be agreed upon with the manager, Mr. Whipple.

Master Russ Moore, who was appointed by Pomona Master I. R. Kline to bring matters of importance to the attention of grangers of the county, wishes to announce a meeting of all grangers at the Medford Chamber of Commerce building, August 17, at 8 p. m. All are urged to be present.

All who attended report the Lake Creek-Phoenix Grange picnic a successful affair. The local Grange is proud of the trophies won by its members, most important of which were the kitten ball outfit, won by the Lake Creek team, and second prize in the ladies' horseshoe tournament, taken by Secretary Myrtle Charley.

$20 MINIMUM FOR CLING PEACHES BY NEW AGREEMENT

WASHINGTON Aug. 15.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace today received the proposed marketing agreement for California cling peaches, and indications were that it would put it into effect within the next few hours.

A majority of canners represented signed the revised agreement and it was carried today to the secretary by Dr. H. R. Tolley, chief of the farm administration's fruits and vegetables section.

Apparently all dificulties have been disposed of and in view of the emergency situation in the California peach growing section it was expected Secretary Wallace would make the agreement effective immediately.

It provides a $20 a ton minimum for peaches to the growers and limits the pack for this year's crop to 218,000 tons.

The California peach agreement will be the second marketing agreement formally proclaimed by the farm administration, the first being the Chicago milk agreement, now being tested in the courts.

Both agreements provide for licensing of the interests involved and both fix the resale price of the product.

VILLAGE STORES SEE HARDSHIP IN INSTALLING NRA

The fourth and largest store is owned by an individual who has maintained two employes throughout the depression. He says he cannot shorten hours, take on another employe and pay all three more wages. Yet he is fearful of a boycott from an aroused community if he doesn't.

Another story of woe comes from a small agricultural town in North Carolina with a 40 per cent colored population.

There the grocer has two men in the store with him and three colored youths delivering on bicycles. The laundry, the cleaners and other businesses hire colored help. Adjusted to a simple scale of living it is felt the community does not need the NRA code minimum wage for existence of its lower classes. But again the employers are afraid of what small town personalities may do if the NRA emblem isn't displayed.

Like stories have been reported from Kansas and the pinch no doubt is felt in many rural centers.

One possible way out lies in acceptance of General Johnson's "wound stripe" eagle, especially designed for those who want to help but simply can't at the moment.

The village merchant answers back that the gossip of his community already is too hot to make him want to bare his straitened circumstances in such fashion.

He may be agreeing with the man who said the Blue Eagle's wound stripe shouldn't be in white but in red ink.

Make no mistake about the deadly seriousness with which General Johnson is directing his big drive.

Those who work behind the scenes with him were surprised when they saw the advance copy of his radio speech the other night which contained the first out-and-out appeal for a boycott of all business establishments not flying the Eagle. Previously men and women sent out by the speakers' bureau had been cautioned against any direct reference to avoidance of a non-banner shop.

But Johnson decided the time had come to take the bull by the horns and in characteristic fashion he grabbed hold.

The general honestly is confident he is going to win although he isn't fooling himself about the size of the odds he's fighting.

Several economists of repute have been consulted and have assured him the trick ought to work. These gentlemen of learning have analyzed the movement as one designed to benefit the vast majority. They concede that a marginal fringe may get hurt but predict this will be kept to an infinitesimal percentage of the whole.

This column batted only .600 in reporting recently the names of those who put up $10,000 apiece to launch the Roosevelt-for-President campaign.

Frank Walker, now democratic national treasurer; William H. Woodin, now secretary of treasury, and Henry Morgenthau Sr. were the trio correctly mentioned.

Col. E. M. House of Wilson fame and Jesse I. Straus, now ambassador to France, were not in the original pool.

Sorry.

Imagine the embarrassment of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Tom Hewes the other day.

Because of the absence of all his superiors he was acting secretary. A matter came up which required consultation with Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor. Hewes called the comptroller by phone thusly: "When you get a break in your schedule today I'd like to have you hop over."

To which O'Connor replied:

"Young man, I am really quite busy. I have a lot of people waiting in my office. If you want to drop over and wait about 15 minutes I think possibly I can work you in."

Which was as far as the proposed conference got.

LUMBER SURVEY SHOWS BUSINESS OUTLOOK BRIGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—A definite improvement in business conditions in September was forecast today by the lumber survey committee of the commerce department's timber conservation corps.

"September probably will show marked improvement over last year and the early months of 1933, continuing the start made in June and July towards a genuine upturn in industry, building and general business conditions" the committee said.

"The lumber industry should continue efforts to adjust its production and its stocks to current consumption and not uncertain future prospects; to improve the manufacturing and marketing of its products and to promote and etenxd their uses."

A reduction of 2,800,000,000 feet in lumber stocks for the third quarter of the current year was recommended by the committee.

It pointed out that lumber stocks have been reduced four billion fet since January 1, 1932, and added that after drastic reduction a substantial revival in use of lumber is indicated.

The committee said striking increases in lumber prices have been recorded in the last three months which have gone far toward restoration of price levels that will avoid further capital loss. Rapid and unbalanced price advances should be discouraged, it said, and gradual advances to cover expected advancing costs made.
