Tomato Benefit Seen
Probability that tomato growers of the Medford district will also receive more for their crops than the price at which they contracted early in the year was seen by Ralph E. Cooser, president of the Bagley Canning Co. of Ashland.

Action of the agricultural adjustment administration in calling for a 25 per cent increase in price to fruit growers is expected to be loved by a similar step in regard to tomatoes would be passed on to the buyers, as is proposed in the pear deal, with the government taking such action as necessary to protect the canner where his product had already been contracted at a price based on the early season values.

According to Mr. Koozer an increase of 25 per cent in the returns on tomatoes in this district, where the yield is estimated at three to four hundred tons this season, will be a very material addition to the total returns distributed among the growers.

Collection of an additional 25 per cent from canned goods buyers was not deemed difficult this year as there is an increasing demand for canned tomatoes which will be reflected in a larger pack than was anticipated early in the season, it was declared.

but number one fruit, and this phase was also agreed to by the canners. As the government has no jurisdiction over prices in export sales and consequently could be of no help to canners in passing on higher costs to the buyers, growers of number two pears will not profit by the federal plan to increase returns. Mr. Koozer pointing out that most number two pears are canned for export purpose.

As to what extent the action taken at the Portland meeting will be felt by Rogue River valley pear growers is problematical, according to Mr. Koozer, who said he was informed by cannersmen in attendance from other northwest points that their requirements had been contracted from Washington growers on the old $15 and $10 basis.

The same recommendation for a 25 per cent increase in returns to growers was made by the agricultural adjustment administration to the California canners' organization, it is understood, but the California industry was reported Friday as having difficulty in meeting the proposal, owing to the large proportion of export business done by the canneries of that state.

MANY THRILLS IN 'THE BIG CAGE'
Actual thrills of danger, rather than those of dramatic situations created by the writers of motion picture stories, feature "The Big Cage," the circus drama which opens at the Rialto today.

This remarkable picture presents in its leading role the daredevil Clyde Beatty, youngest and greatest of the world's animal trainers, who is seen in hair-raising performances with 43 jungle-bred lions and tigers. Beatty is the only man who ever combined lions and tigers in a circus "act."

In this story, written by himself and Edward Anthony, based on his own life, he is seen developing the performance which has made him the greatest attraction of the tent-show world. The climax of the picture takes place in a mammoth circus tent during a performance, with several lions and tigers escaping from the arena and creating pandemonium.
