BOSCS TO STAGE FINAL RALLY FOR C. OF C. MEMBERS

The Rogues and Boscs baseball teams of the chamber of commerce trotted onto the field this noon at the Hotel Holland in the seventh inning of their membership drive, with the score at the end of the meeting announced as 41 to 18 in favor of the Shangle Rogues.

However it was reported (in an emphatic tone) that the ninth inning rally, so often referred to, will be staged tomorrow by the Henselman Boscs, who somehow think they have it way above the Rogues.

J. Verne Shangle said today he sincerely hopes the Boscs get ripe for tomorrow so the Rogues can pick them, for they detest nothing worse than green Boscs. The membership drive for the chamber of commerce will close tomorrow evening, the ninth day, according to Robert Boyd, who is acting as secretary in the absence of Manager A. H. Banwell.

At this noon's meeting there were 16 present, and the names of new members were read. Five additional memberships were turned in today. It was pointed out this noon that only 16 more memberships are necessary to make the drive a success, and if the Boscs stage their much talked-of rally, chamber officials expect the drive tomorrow evening to end in a victory.

It was also announced today that membership cards have been issued, and old members who desire to have the cards for their business houses, are asked to stop at the chamber of commerce office for them. The cards read: "Member Medford chamber of commerce. We support community development."

UNANIMOUS PLEA FOR INTERVENTION BY GOVERNMENT

Presentation of such a compromise by the administration was done to save time, he said, in order that the agreement may be put into effect for this year's major tree fruits.

Agreement Necessary. Most of the early witnesses were called by William H. Horsley, secretary of the newly formed Northwest Tree Fruit Industries, Inc., the trade association formed to operate under the provisions of the N. I. R. A. and A. A. The corporation appeared in support of the compromise trade agreement, but first witnesses held to the single idea that such an agreement is necessary.

The fruit corporation said the primary aim of any agreement for the fruit industry should be to "peg" a minimum price below which no fruit will be shipped, to prevent shipment of unprofitable or inferior grades, to provide an orderly and regulated feeding of auction markets based on supply and demand, and finally, an effective export control.

Safeguard Consumer. Consumer interests will be safeguarded, it was said, by the stabilization of the industry and the insurance of continued production of fruit demanded by the public at reasonable prices.

The first witness was W. F. Gwinn, a Seattle shipper. His testimony, as was all that taken today, was given under oath. He read a prepared statement which declared all parties from growers to sellers have been engaged in destructive competition that has brought a day of reckoning.

Losses Shown. W. B. Bridgeman, attorney for the Yakima Irrigation district, followed with statistics on losses suffered by growers under the present system, as shown in hearings conducted on power and water costs. The average returns to growers have decreased from $137 an acre profit, to a loss of $127 an acre, he testified.

J. W. Hebert, manager of the Yakima Growers' association, represented that district and reviewed the failure of past attempts at voluntary trade agreements. He said all were wrecked by the selfish action of small minorities who took advantage of the attempts of the majority to better conditions.
