

MAX GEHLHAR IS BUSIEST MAN AS FAIR DAYS NEAR

SALEM, Ore.—"Is Mr. Gehlhar in?" That is the favorite question here in the department of agriculture these days. And there's a reason. It's nearly state fair time and everyone wants to see the man upon whose shoulders falls the burden of putting on "the biggest and best" fair ever starting this Labor Day.

They all troop to Max Gehlhar's office for one thing or another. Some with ideas for the fair, others with amusements to sell, others seeking employment. Right now he's the busiest man in Salem.

Starting with a deficit and directing three Oregon state fairs in 27 months, during a most difficult financial period, is to the credit of Max Gehlhar, who organized the department of agriculture, following its creation by the 1931 legislature. Strange as it may sound, Mr. Gehlhar will have directed three fairs in his first 27 months in office, while the next 23 months will have only one. And there's a fair every year. Figure it out; it's easy. Gehlhar assumed office in July, 1931.

Now with another state fair just around the corner Gehlhar says, "This year I promise the people the biggest and most economical week of entertainment and education ever offered at a western fair. We have planned for months to give Oregonians, even in these times, a fair that is really 'bigger and better'."

"And, last but not least, following my policy to give the people the best at the lowest cost, the admission to the fairgrounds has been reduced this year from 50 cents to 25 cents."

DENMAN OPENS OWN LAW OFFICES HERE

Kenneth Denman has joined the group of young attorneys in Medford, who have hung out their shingles, it was learned yesterday. After being associated for two years with Attorney A. E. Reame, following admittance to the Oregon bar, Mr. Denman this week opened offices for himself in suite 405, Liberty building.

Before coming to Medford, Mr. Denman graduated from the Oregon State college and Willamette university school of law, being prominently known in both schools for his high scholastic standing.

Net profits of the water department of Shreveport, La., were $8,000 greater the first half of 1933 than the same period in 1932.

DISPUTE ON NRA BUTTON WEARING RAGING MERRILY

Brave is the man who takes the stand to be first in anything. Be it as finder of the first lack in the spring or wearer of the first N. R. A. button. For, says Fred Wahl of the Farmers and Fruitgrowers bank, before another sun sets he is sure to find himself "just a good second."

It's even worse than that today for Mr. Wahl, who posed Wednesday as wearer of the first consumer button in Medford. The report was scarcely out in the Mail Tribune, when a woman appeared to challenge his claim, and reported two others wearing the same little buttons. Last night, John Young of the Pinnacle company called at the newspaper to challenge Mrs. Agnes I. Merrell's claim to such distinction, announcing that he had worn his button since August 15th. Mrs. Merrell had donned hers Monday.

This morning still another candidate for the honor of "first" to wear the little red, white and blue button, which says "We do our part," telephoned the Mail Tribune. It was E. N. Campbell of Swift & Company, who received his button from Chicago August 14. He has been wearing it every day since.

When the Mail Tribune went to press the honor was still his, but as the contest took on the shades of the good old game of "Button, button, who has the button," a new winner was expected to pop up at any minute. (And there is still no prize offered the genuine, original wearer of an N. R. A. button in Medford.)

G. O. P. CHIEFTAINS PREDICT FAILURE OF NRA PROGRAM

The first time an issue arises under their enforced codes.

When congress reassembles you may expect to hear Republican orators attacking what they term the inconsistencies of the Roosevelt administration.

They will point to Secretary of State Hull and his constant championing of lower tariffs on the one hand. On the other they confidently expect to be able to cite increased tariffs and even embargoes which they say must go arm in arm with operation of NRA.

To illustrate, the Republicans are now looking into the crystal and foreseeing what will happen in connection with the oil industry. The code imposed on oil, involving control of production and price fixing, is based on domestic consumption. There will be no market for foreign oil if American fields are to be fully protected.

Therefore, say leaders of the minority party, President Roosevelt will be forced to place an embargo on foreign importations.

Although the clause has had little publicity, there is a provision in NRA that specifically empowers the president to raise tariffs at will or shut off imports entirely. No limit is placed on the extent of tariff boosts—which the law actually calls "fees."

The act further instructs the president to raise tariffs whenever an industry proves that its compliance with a Blue Eagle code makes competition with foreign goods impossible without protection.

Republicans are positive that Mr. Roosevelt will be called upon very shortly to carry out this clause.

Rather paradoxically, the G. O. P. also is preparing to take up coupons for the consumer. Heretofore always a champion of big business and high prices, the Elephants is going to trumpet about "unwarranted gouging of the public."

And finally, the old war cry against "government in business" is to be raised again.

All this is rather unpleasant reporting at a time when everyone is supposedly putting a shoulder to the wheel.

Yet it reflects accurately what outstanding men of the Republican party are saying in the privacy of their offices.

One moulder of party policy, writing in to headquarters, referred to NRA as "No Relief Again."

Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce under President Hoover, is on his way out as president of the Iron and Steel Institute, if steel magnates recently here are to be believed.

Lamont, so the whispered story goes, was picked for the $75,000 job by high-ups of U. S. Steel on the possibility Mr. Hoover would be re-elected. Since the New Deal arrived the industry seems to have decided the Chicago millionaire doesn't speak their language any more.

One of the hardest-bottled codes signed from another industry ran into Lamont the other day. The first gentleman had won General Johnson's admiration when he pro-fanely rose to refute—with fact—assertions on his alleged laxity in whipping a code into shape.

"Why" queried the Blue Eagle of Lamont, "don't you tell 'em blarney-blank-blank-blank?" "I don't use that kind of language," responded our erstwhile commerce secretary.

"Well, you ought to," was the parting reply.

Shipping men have served private notice on General Johnson they will withdraw from the code if something isn't done about the disparity in working hours between private plants and navy yards.

The shipbuilders agreed to a 32-hour week. The navy is working its men 40 hours.
