JUDGE TOU VELLE HEADS GROUP TO ENFORCE CODES

It is believed that most of the assumed violations are the outgrowth of misunderstandings and the committee is hopeful that it will be able to rectify these misunderstandings to the advantage of both the employer and employee. Every possible means will be adopted by the board to obtain voluntary compliance by adopting a tolerant attitude and offering a patient explanation. Employers will be asked to appear before the board from time to time so that they may make a voluntary statement of their side of the case. However, if any employer persists in non-compliance with the principles of the national recovery act, it is mandatory upon the local board to report his case to Washington with the recommendation that the Blue Eagle be removed by federal authority. Members of the board point out that the Blue Eagle is the property of the federal government and can be removed only by federal authority. It is to be presumed that every employer now displaying the Blue Eagle is complying with the president's agreement and consumers must accept this fact until such time as the Blue Eagle is removed by competent federal authorities.

Co-operation Asked.
Citizens of Medford are asked to co-operate with the board and are reminded that it will discourage in every way injurious rumors to NRA members, but requests that any one who knows of employers, who are violating the president's re-employment agreement, report the matter to the board immediately so that an investigation may be made.

The local compliance board has no affiliation with any other organization other than the National Recovery Administration, of which it is the only local representative.

Col. Gordon Voorhies, county representative for the state NRA committee, will work very closely with the compliance board and it is expected that many misunderstandings will be able to be cleared up by the local board working closely with the state committee.

However, as stated above, any flagrant infractions of the president's re-employment agreement will be reported to Washington and the federal government itself will take a hand in straightening the matter out. Names of the board have been sent to General Hugh S. Johnson and he will be informed of its future activities. In carrying out its work to its entirety the board is faced with a vast amount of responsibility and the effectiveness of its work can only be made possible by the full co-operation of employers, employees, and consumers.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PROMOTION DAY AT M. E. SUNDAY

Contributed.

The First M. E. Sunday school and church is a real live, peppy organization. Next Sunday is Promotion day and Rally day the next Sunday. Lots of new people have joined the Sunday school classes since the fall season started. There are a few of the old ones still missing. Next Sunday we are expecting a hundred percent attendance. Of course, everybody wants to be there on time to go into their new classes and meet the new teachers. When men of large corporations and heads of school departments consider the Sunday school a major part of their lives we know that they consider it a foundation upon which to base their business.

Several new classes are being started. Norman Taylor of the Standard Oil company is teaching the young men of the high school, and Ray Henderson of the public schools, the young men just out of high school. Georgia Holloway is instructing a class of young women just out of high school. If there is anyone not attending Sunday school at the present time, there is a place for you at the First Methodist Sunday school, corner Main and Laurel. Be there at 9:45 a. m.
