

SCHERER ELECTION AS ADVISORY HEAD HONORS MEDFORD

By the election of many of its citizens to high offices in the business and commercial world, Medford is rapidly assuming a position of leadership in the Pacific northwest.

Paul A. Scherer

and on the Pacific coast, it was pointed out today by chamber of commerce officials. Election of Medford men to responsible positions in organizations throughout the Pacific coast not only is a distinct compliment to the ability of the men themselves but is an honor which should be appreciated by everyone living in Medford. Many instances can be cited of local business men who are officials in organizations and their efforts bring valuable publicity to the city.

Recent election of Paul A. Scherer to the presidency of the Pacific Northwest Advisory Board is probably one of the highest honors conferred on a Medford man in a long time, chamber officials stated this morning, and Medford should be proud that one of its leading citizens has been elevated to the head of one of the largest organizations of shippers and railroad officials on the Pacific coast.

In larger centers of the Pacific northwest the activities of the advisory board are watched with great interest, particularly by fruit men, lumbermen, and those responsible for creating a vast amount of tonnage and it is believed that more active interest will be taken locally in its future deliberations with the presidency now in the able hands of Mr. Scherer.

Mr. Scherer has also recently been elected president of the Northwest Fruit Industries, Inc., which it is pointed out by local fruit interests is a due recognition of his energies and ability in his chosen work. This also is another example of the leadership which Medford is supplying in the business world of the Pacific northwest.

A city is often judged by its citizens, and Mr. Scherer and other local men supplying the leadership in these regional organizations the inevitable results will be that considerably more attention will be focused on our city to the ultimate benefit of all who are in business here.

retary of the interior, who planned to fly to Tampico to direct relief work, said the number of dead "can not be stated exactly," but the military chief of the district reported by wireless that three-fourths of Tampico was destroyed with many victims.

Fear Many Buried Alive It was feared that hundreds had been buried alive in the ruins. Flood waters of the Panuco and Tamesi rivers added their terrors to those of the hurricane.

Tampico was placed under martial law. Its harbor was closed to shipping. Airplanes could not get through to its flooded airport, it was believed days might elapse before relief could reach the city. Today the possibility of disease, it was thought here, might hold new dangers.

In the entire Tampico district, as far west as 175 miles, the storm spread death and destruction. The city of Cardenas, in San Luis Potosi, reported that at least 30 drowned as the result of the collapse of a railroad dam.

It was feared that many more had been trapped by a sea of water and mud, which swept the city, destroying many houses.
