

CCC WORK URGED IN DEVELOPMENT PRESCOTT PARK

City Council Asks Director for Winter Camp On Roxy Ann—Nine-Mile Stretch of Road Is Part of Program

The campaign underway in Medford for some time, to bring Civilian Conservation Corps men from the Crater Lake national park to Roxy Ann, better known as the Prescott Memorial park, for winter encampment, and development of the park program, was revealed to the public last night when a resolution was prepared by the city council...

The program, as outlined by the city of Medford, provides for the moving of one camp, now located at Crater Lake, to the Roxy Ann territory. The resolution, passed last night by the council, authorizes the invitation to national headquarters. Plan Nine-Mile Road.

An area, composed of 1700 acres, now known as the Prescott Memorial park, would be available to the Civilian Conservation Corps men, of which here are 200 now in the Crater Lake encampment, sought here.

The city of Medford, in the program proposed for development of the Prescott Memorial park site, plans to build nine miles of roadway to reach the park, all of which has been surveyed by the county. One mile was constructed by the unemployed last year. A general cleanup of the park site is also included in the plans to be presented to the government for Civilian Conservation Corps work.

Would Move Trees. Moving of trees from other sections of the forest for landscaping in the Prescott Memorial park will also furnish work for the CCC's if they are moved to Roxy Ann for the winter.

The program, advanced by the city, has met with the recommendations of E. C. Solsky, superintendent of the Crater Lake national park; Lawrence Merriam, district officer of the department of the interior, National Park Service, San Francisco; Regional Forester C. C. Buck and Major Clare H. Armstrong, City Superintendent. Fred Scheffel stated last night.

A report of the meeting of the League of Oregon Cities, recently held in Eugene, was given last night by City Attorney Frank Farrell. Resolution, directing that the notice for intention for widening of East Main street be given out for hearing October 17, was passed by the council, and the placing of gasoline tanks in the sidewalks at the corner of Sixth and Grape streets, for erection of a new street station, was authorized.

ROOSEVELT, in this writer's judgment, is right in meeting the veterans face to face and telling them his reasons for doing what he did. No harm ever came yet of frank discussion of issues by men who are sincere in their desire to do the right thing, but who may differ as to what the right thing is.

Minear, they moved to Bowling Green, and three years after the death of her husband, came with her two children, Mearl Minear and Maude Anderson-Nickerson to Oregon and has resided in and near Medford for the past 33 years, where she has made scores of warm friends who are deeply grieved by her untimely death.

She was an active worker in the Methodist church, in which she held membership practically all her life. She leaves one son, Mearl Minear; also six grandchildren, Alton W. Anderson Gladys, Ruth, Robert, Glena and Donald Minear, all of Medford; one brother, Geo. W. Teasorth, Vancouver, Wash., and a sister, Mrs. C. W. FIRE FIGHTERS SURPRISED BY GUST OF WIND

Had been identified this morning. Relatives of workers were permitted to view the bodies in an effort to identify them. Frank Merrill, superintendent of Griffith park, blamed the catastrophe on "lack of experience in brush fire fighting" on the part of those who died, and the men who sent them into the canyon of death.

Fire Chief Ralph Scott corroborated Merrill's views by the statement that "it was suicide to send those men into a walled-in canyon whose entrance was blocked by raging flames and whose only other means of exit was a winding cow-path up the wall of the ravine."

Ordered to Spot. Blindly following orders of their foreman, more than a thousand workmen streamed into the box-like Mineral Wells-canyon yesterday to extinguish a brush fire.

"Smack it out with your shovel, and cut a fire-break" was the order

Survivors Tell Horror As Men Roasted Alive

Deep in the canyon a small area was burning. There was little or no wind, the flames and smoke from the burning scrub oak growth in the canyon's floor shooting straight upward.

Wind Whips Flames. Suddenly a wind whipped down into the canyon fanned the flames into a furnace of death, sweeping outward from its center. In a few seconds the approximately 1,500 men who had entered the sides of the canyon wall.

The cow-path became a line of fighting, sweating, cursing, praying humanity. The strong clambered over the weak, in the awful climb. Upward, with death crackling at their heels, struggled the workmen.

Survivors said the flames jumped as much as 100 feet at the time, catching up with and bringing down the screaming, struggling men.

Searchers found that the men died in twos. Of the 36 bodies so far recovered, but a few were alone in death, the great bulk of the number seeming to have paired off as death flicked at their futilely fleeing heels.

Heroseum seen. Some of the pairs, pathetically nudged in their upward struggle on the canyon's side, gave evidence even of heroseum, in addition to the seeking of dying humans after companionship in the face of death.

One gruesome pair had almost reached the canyon's rim when the wall of flame struck them down. One or two, a stalwart, had been pushing his fellow struggler upward when the blaze cut them down.

Major Frank L. Shaw ordered a thorough investigation of the circumstances which caused so great a toll to be taken. He said if carelessness or negligence are to be found to be to blame the city will cooperate with the county in fixing the responsibility. He promised also that the city will provide relief for the families of the victims.
