Medford Entrance is Most Popular, With 40,637 Using Gate — All States Represented—Ore. Leads

CRATER LAKE NATIONAL PARK. Oct. 5—(Sp.)—A total of 90,512 people visited Crater Lake national park during the past travel season, ending September 30, as compared to 109,738 for the preceding season.

The past season attracted visitors from every state in the union and numerous foreign countries, including one group of 45 members of the International Geological Congress representing five continents.

The heaviest travel of the season occurred during the Labor Day week end when 5993 visitors entered the park.

The educational division at Crater Lake, under the direction of D. S. Libby, park naturalist, reported a successful season. Figures reveal the one permanent and seven temporary members made 100,222 contacts with visitors in rendering service in the field and boat trips, lectures at the lodge, Sinnott-memorial community house and the E. C. W. camps and service at the information bureau and at the head of the lake trail.

Personnel Popular. The personnel of this division for the last season was regarded as the best in the history of the park.

General activities in the park during the past season included extensive activities by the E. C. W. camps, made up of youths principally from Illinois. They were engaged in the construction of motorways in different sections of the park to facilitate fire suppression. They were engaged to advantage in the sodding of a large section of the rim area, where approximately 1.5 acres of native grasses and shrubs were planted to restore the area to its original state and adding greatly to the general beauty of the park.

Improvements Made. A new trail to the summit of Mt. Scott, highest point within the park and the location of a fire lookout station, was completed, providing visitors with an easier ascent to the summit of the mountain. Eliminating fire hazards and enhancing the attraction of park highways, roadside cleanup was another important summer project in the removal of dead trees and debris in forests bordering the roads.

Other physical improvements in the park, authorized through the public works bill, were also placed underway.

J. F. Fieszel, exalted ruler of the Medford Elks' lodge, will give a brief report at tonight's meeting of the activities of the grand lodge, brought out at the recent convention in Milwaukee. Some important changes of the grand lodge statutes will be explained and will be of interest to every member.

The free beer, free food, supper will be served at 6:30 o'clock and all Elks will be expected at the festive board. E. C. ("Jerry") Jerome, past exalted ruler of the Medford Elks' lodge, is chairman of tonight's event.

SEWER FUND PLEA RUNNING GAUNTLET

Medford's second application for federal funds for construction of a new sewage system is progressing through the round of "checks and double-checks" it must go through before reaching Washington, D. C.

The application has been checked by State Health Officer Frederick L. Bicker and is now in the hands of C. C. Hockley, state engineer, under the public works program. Medford still anticipates receiving funds in time to start work on the much-needed project this winter.

ORDER SOLDIERS QUELL DISORDER IN MINE STRIKE

dynamite that had failed to explode in the wreckage.

The dynamite was believed to have been part of the 100 sticks stolen several months ago from a Harriburg powder supply warehouse.

Chief of Police Slow of Eldorado, home of Rip Evans, leader of the county organization of the Progressive Miners union, reported the destruction by dynamite of the Grand hotel at Eldorado this morning. He said the small frame building was destroyed.

Pickets Block Road. As the morning advanced the pickets were centering their attack on state highway 13 between Marion and Harriburg, and were said by officials to defy attempts of anyone to pass.

Members of the United Mine Workers union of Williamson county, who attempted to report for work today in the Peabody mine, were greeted by bullets when they arrived at a point three miles east of Shady Rest, headquarters of the former notorious Birger gang of bandits.

Due to lack of communication facilities, it was impossible to learn results of the fighting immediately.

The first account of the rioting in Saline county came from Lewis Dodd of Raleigh, Ill., who was shot in the face and shoulder by snipers as he was on his way to work in a Harriburg packing house. William Bowers of Raleigh, his companion, was slightly wounded.

Shooting Related. "We were driving moderately fast," Dodd said, "when about 20 pickets started firing on us near Peabody mine 4 1/2. Both of us were struck in the first volley, and when I ducked from the bullets, the car struck a barricade across the road, throwing us both into a ditch and wrecking the car.

"The pickets came over to us, and seeing we were not miners, apologized and took us to Harriburg in one of their cars."

Dodd said, however, that when he attempted to go after his car with a wrecker, he was fired on again and forced to return to Harriburg.

"They were like wild men," he said. "They shot at every car that came along."

GOSSIP FEATURES TRIAL OF HAINES ON GIRL'S CHARGE

The father testified that he and Haines were partners in a mine operation last January; that Haines came often to his house, and when he heard reports of misconduct he told the defendant: "You're not going to make a bad place out of my home."

The parent also testified: "I trusted Ted, and had faith in him. I thought he was more of a man."

Jim Kerahaw, a dairyman of the Red Top district, testified that he had seen Haines going to the girl's home, and "that it was the talk of the neighborhood." Under cross-examination Kerahaw admitted hostility towards the defendant.

"Why shouldn't I, with my cows and my dog poisoned?" The court instructed the jury to ignore the implied allegation.

Ernest Pheletor, another Red Top resident, testified to Haines' movements and that "I always considered her a pretty girl, but she started losing weight, and grew pale."

Pheletor, under cross-examination, admitted: "I get pretty combative in an argument. 'Jim Kerahaw and I don't speak.' The witness further testified, 'we had an argument, and it went deep with Jim.'"

Country Physician C. I. Drummond testified to the uses of the capsules Haines is alleged to have given to the girl.

The companion of Haines and the girl on an auto trip to Grants Pass last August was the first defense witness. She left the car when it reached the McAndrews road junction, and Haines and the complainant drove to the Crater Lake highway.

Many of the courtroom spectators were residents of the Red Top district.

Efforts of the defense to introduce testimony and show that Red Top district residents had staged a demonstration against bondsmen for Haines when he was first arrested, in which it was insisted they withdraw, and Haines be placed in jail was disallowed by the court.

Attorney Rawles Moore, in an affidavit filed as part of a motion to secure trial delay, alleged he had received anonymous telephone calls, hinting he should withdraw as Haines' counsel.

EARL FEHL DENIES GRAND JURY VISIT AGAINST JOE CAVE

E. H. Fehl, serving four years in state prison for conviction by a Klamath county jury of ballot theft conspiracy, today filed with the district attorney's office an affidavit denying that he appeared as a witness before the grand jury last February against Joe Cave, city policeman, indicted for involuntary manslaughter, an action born of the political agitation over the death of Everett Dehaach, during a raid on a Reese Cave still in November, 1930.

Attorneys for Cave filed a motion to quash the indictment against Cave on the grounds that Fehl, then county judge, and L. A. Banks, former local agitator, serving life for murder, appeared before the grand jury and did not affix their names to the indictment, as required by law.

A similar affidavit to Fehl's is anticipated from Banks.

The affidavit of Fehl reads in part: "At no time did I appear before said grand jury," and this affidavit is made in the interests of the state of Oregon, that truth and justice may be upheld, and further sayeth not."

The affidavit is made on prison stationery.

Edith W. Patton, secretary of the grand jury, and O. L. Knight made affidavits in opposition to the defense contentions that Banks and Fehl appeared in the grand jury room and might have mentioned the Joe Cave case, but any statement made by them was not considered as evidence.

At the time that Cave was indicted, Banks was indicted for criminal libel and criminal syndicalism. William T. Grieve of Prospect was foreman. Testimony of Fehl and Banks in the Banks murder trial indicated that both had received advance information of grand jury business. Banks had long insisted that Cave be indicted. Former Sheriff Gordon L. Schermerhorn was arrested on a ballot theft information when he went to the city police station to serve a warrant on Cave.

The motion for quashing of the indictment against Cave is expected to be called as soon as the pending criminal cases before the circuit court are concluded.

ALLEGED FIREBUG PLACED ON TRIAL

Cecil Critzer, guide and packer of Agness, on the lower Rogue, in Curry county, went on trial this morning in federal court charged with setting forest fires on August 15 last. The indictment holds three counts.

Government testimony tended to show that the fire started soon after Critzer had passed by on the trail. There was no direct eye-witness evidence submitted.

Donald Buck, Klamath Falls, charged with selling liquor to an Indian in Klamath Falls last summer, was found guilty by a jury late yesterday, after short deliberation.

Leonard Kahmout, similarly charged entered a plea of guilty.

Benjamin Tupper, found guilty of manslaughter, for the slaying of Eben Mardock last June, following a drunken quarrel, will be sentenced tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Sentence will also be passed at the same time on Buck and Kahmout.

Why—

Chesterfields are Milder

TOBACCO to grow, to ripen and become mellow, has to take in or absorb something...not Vitamin D, of course, but something that it gets from the right amount of Sunshine

It's the Southern sunshine you read about, combined with the right sort of climate and moisture, that makes the Carolinas, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, and Virginia the best tobacco country in the world.

You can stand down there in that Southern sunshine and almost see it grow.

This ripe, mellow tobacco is skillfully cured by the farmer. Then, for 30 months, it's aged—just like fine wine.

It takes the right quantity of each kind of these tobaccos, blended and cross-blended—then seasoned with Turkish, to make a milder cigarette. Sunshine helps. Just try it!
