

Days Celebrate 60 Years Married Life at Ashland Reception by Masons

Sixty years ago yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Day were married in Grinnell, Iowa. Last night, in the city of Ashland, where they have made their home since 1907, they celebrated the anniversary, receiving the congratulations of hundreds of friends at the reception, arranged in their honor at the Masonic temple.

Recent photograph of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Day, who Wednesday celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary. They were first drawn to southern Oregon by the Ashland Tidings. For both Mr. Day and his bride of 60 years are newspaper people. Both were associated with the Grinnell, Iowa, Herald when they were married in that city October 11, 1873.

Mr. Day, known then as Susan Morse Mason, was one of the first women of the land to bring a feminine touch into printing. She entered the newspaper field as a pioneer, and was working on the newspaper in Independence, Iowa, in 1872, when Mr. Day came to town and romance began. Her home was then in Iowa Falls, but in 1873 she moved to Grinnell, to work on the Herald, as did Mr. Day, and that year they were married. One of the newspaper's editors at that time was Albert Shaw, now editor of the Review of Reviews.

Mr. Day began his printing career in 1880 in Waterloo, in the province of Quebec. In 1889 he moved to West Mitchell, Iowa, where he worked on the Mitchell County News, going from there to Independence. For 34 years he was foreman on the Grinnell Herald, and it was then he obtained his first introduction to the Oregon country. One of the newspaper editors joined an Editorial association tour of the west, and came back to Iowa with glowing stories of a little town called Ashland, Oregon, its park and springs, the promise of the southern Oregon country monopolized his conversation for many weeks. The stories appealed to William Henry Day, and so he subscribed to the Ashland Tidings. In 1907 he decided to see for himself, so the Days moved to Oregon. Mr. Day worked on the Ashland Tidings for some time, was secretary of the chamber of commerce in the Lithia city, and correspondent for the Mail Tribune, the Oregonian and the Sacramento Bee for a number of years. In spite of his many years in the newspaper trade, however, it is as a Mason that "Bill" Day is best known to many people in southern Oregon. "He is as much a part of the lodge as the charter," a friend once said, and to all followers of Masonry, the words ring true. For he has been a member of the lodge since 1872, his activities dating back over half a century.

HOPE OF HUSKIES RECEIVES SETBACK

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Washington's chances of conquering Oregon at football for the first time in six years here Saturday were less hopeful today with Paul ("Soxko") Sulikowsky, regular fullback, still in the Seattle general hospital with a sprained muscle in one knee.

Dr. Don Palmer reported that "it might be possible for Sulikowsky to play if necessary," but Coach Jimmy Phelan declared he would not use the rugged blocker unless "he is right."

JEROME, BANWELL SPREAD WORD OF COMING JUBILEE

Oregon's diamond jubilee—75 years of statehood which will be celebrated February 14, 1934—will be celebrated the week of June 3 in Medford, with pageantry and carnival that will break all records. A. H. Banwell, manager of the Medford Chamber of Commerce, and E. C. (Jerry) Jerome, general manager of the celebration, said here yesterday. Though they have eight months in which to complete their preparations for the celebration, the Jackson county men, who called at the Portland chamber of commerce yesterday, said they were losing no time in getting started. The idea of the diamond jubilee celebration originated with Mr. Banwell and the last legislature designated Medford as the festival city.

Oregon was admitted to the union in St. Valentine's day, 1859, but the observance of the 75th anniversary will not come until summer to assure better weather and attendance. Mr. Banwell said. "There will be no question as to the success of the celebration," he said. "Mr. Jerome has successfully managed every celebration in Medford for the last 21 years." Exhibits of Oregon-manufactured products will be a big feature of the observance, it is planned. Dog or horse racing, with pari-mutuel betting, will be held. A historic pageant is being planned by a pioneer committee of Jacksonville, second oldest city in Oregon. Every county in the state will be asked to send a queen to the Medford show for an all-Oregon queen contest. Between 40,000 and 50,000 persons are expected to attend the celebration.—Oregonian (Portland).
