

DIVORCE CAPITAL THINKS DRY LAW ALREADY JUNKED

Barred Doors On Reno Speakeasies Don't Mean a Thing — Lid Came Off When Federal Men Left

RENO, Nev., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Return of the old-time saloon is literally "just around the corner" for Reno.

As a matter of fact, so far as the nation's divorce capital is concerned, prohibition is about repealed already.

Barred doors to speakeasies don't mean a thing anymore. Strangers in for a lark are as welcome and get into the deep-hole joints as easily as do old customers.

The lid came off when economies effected by the department of justice resulted in withdrawal of all prohibition enforcement officers from this section.

City Unwarmed. Meanwhile what to do in the event of actual repeal seems not to be bothering the city fathers very much.

Actually, they are understood already to have reached an unofficial decision to permit sale of liquor openly over bars.

Mayor E. E. Roberts, who once advocated setting up of a whisky bar on every corner, admitted as much today.

"It's my idea," he said, "that we should permit sale of liquor, under high license, in all of these so-called beer joints around town. I guess they could be called saloons then, all right."

Will Draft Ordinance. The mayor plans to appoint a committee of city council members tonight to prepare the first draft of an ordinance to control the dispensing of intoxicating liquors in Reno.

A law enacted by the recent legislative delegates the local licensing authority to the city government.

Repeal of the 18th amendment would find dozens of speakeasies which line main streets and alleys in all directions ready and willing to set up in legal business for the first time in 13 years.

tering to a select clientele, composed mainly of the elite among the divorce-seekers, but most places apparently have no intention of being too particular.

This committee with membership throughout the entire Pacific Northwest, has already inaugurated an auction control program for Bosc pears which it is hoped will yield a fair return after being properly introduced through the early sales which are now being made.

"The agricultural adjustment act, under the authority of which, the secretary has acted in this instance, was drafted by congress for the purpose of assisting the fruit growers to solve their own problems. It must be borne in mind, however, that the new effort cannot be fully successful unless it has the united and wholehearted support of all those who are growing tree fruit.

McNary Aided. "The growers of the Pacific Northwest are deeply indebted to Senator Charles L. McNary and to Senator Borah of Idaho for their strenuous efforts on behalf of this agreement.

"The organization is now in full operation with offices in Portland and Seattle and it is expected that no time will be lost in obtaining the benefits of market control which have now been made possible.

"The officials of the agricultural adjustment administration in Washington, D. C., have been most active and will do their utmost in assisting from now on. It is understood that a representative of the secretary of agriculture will be stationed in the Pacific Northwest in the very near future."
